This and That About Women

"It's A Woman's World"

REMEMBER THE OLD CHAUTAUQUAS and the breathless business of finding seats beneath the big top, kicking the sawdust with your new Mary Janes, listening to tales of African game hunts, swooning in a maidenly way when Don Jose followed his gypsy coquette in Carmen . . . ?

It was professional association with a Chautauqua circuit that brought Florence Pielke, teacher at Riverside school to the Oregon country. She finished the season in Louisiana after playing on the West Coast, came back in 1922.

Daughter of a pioneer newspaper family (her father started the first paper in Hibbing, Minn.) Mrs. Pielke cut her reportorial eye-teeth under his careful guidance, later became a city editor . . . wrote radio continuity, spots for the late Al Jolson . . . appeared in well-known night clubs as a musical entertainer . . . was a concert pianist . . . served as publicity director for her own radio show in Oakland . . . appeared in the legitimate theater.

She was music director of Klamath Falls schools from 1922 to 1923, then left to spend several years elsewhere. Now she teaches boys and girls once more in the shadow of Mt. McLaughlin.

She wears, proudly a gorgeous Indian necklace, presented by an Indian head dancer of the Navajos after she thumped the Tom Toms in Old Albuquerque, loves teaching, the West, and Siamese cats.

The Conference, one of a series of twelve being held throughout the United States during the early fall month, will provide help, guidance and inspiration for the leaders of the Scout Movement in the region.

Vining Cast Starts Season October 31

ASHLAND—Theatrical folk are a notoriously superstitious lot, and even the more enlightened among younger thespians shy away from such things as whistling in dressing rooms, but Vining Repertory company, opening for a third season in Ashland's Lithia Theatre, is throwing caution to the winds this fall.

The company will open when the witches and goblins are in full cry—at 11:30 p.m. Halloween evening, October 31. Playing on that night—

the famous horror show, "Dracula."

The "special opening" begins a month-long season for the group, made up primarily of Shakespearean festival actors. Other shows scheduled for the season are Tennessee Williams' famous play, "The Glass Menagerie" and two comedies, "The Show-Off" and "The Vinegar Tree."

As last year, the group will play the shows in rotation, with a different play every night except Sundays through November 29. Regular opening for the season will be

With the special opening performance the evening before, however, the company thinks that it has scored a "first." They can find no record of another legitimate theater group doing a midnight show, much less opening with one on Halloween.
