Dangerous Drought Threatens Great Plains Area

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—A prolonged drought evidently is a dark year ahead for farmers in the Great Plains states.

The bread and meat basket of the nation is dry—too dry for crops, too dry for pasture and too dry for livestock from the cattle lands of Texas through the wheat plains of Kansas and Oklahoma to Colorado and Nebraska.

The working farmer and agricultural expert alike say that this is the worst dry spell in many years. Even if moisture were to come, it would be too late in most cases for winter wheat and pasture.

Typical of the wheat states' plight is Oklahoma, where about three-fourths of the winter crop has been planted. Because there is no moisture, the wheat won't grow. What little has sprouted is beginning to die.

In order to have any crop at all, Oklahoma farmers must have rain—lots of it—before Nov. 15. After that there's little hope.

But wheat isn't the whole story. Cattle are being sold for slaughter for lack of grass and water-filled ponds.

Farmers who last month sold their surplus beef cattle are now culling foundation herds.

In Texas, the last measurable rain was on Oct. 15, and then only a miserly .02 inches at Texas.

Some sections haven't had a good rain this year.

Louis P. Merrill, regional director of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service for Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana, says there is no improvement in the four states.

"As a matter of fact, I think the situation, if anything, is worse inasmuch as another season is almost gone without moisture to start fall crops. In the few places where rains have fallen, some grain and legumes came up to good stand. However, some of it is dying now," Merrill said.

Many cities in Texas have rationed water. Several points, particularly Dallas and San Angelo, have new reservoirs, but no water in them because there's been no rain. A dangerous by-product of dry areas is fire. States of emergency have been proclaimed in some.

IF the anti-anti-mutuel racing bill carries, these things will happen:
1. Your taxes will go up, an average of $7.27 per homeowner and if you own a farm, it will be lots more!
2. County fairs will suffer!
3. Personal rights will be taken away!
4. Racing can and will move to Washington!

SAM COON, former and Senator from Baker County, and present chairman of the powerful Senate Agriculture Committee . . .

SAYS

"When the farmers and lumbermen prosper, it creates purchasing power so the business man and laborer prosper. If I can protect the farming and lumbering industries of Eastern Oregon, the businessman and labor will have prosperity."

In these days of high taxes and uncertainties, it behooves the people of this agricultural and lumbering community to put one of their own kind in Washington to protect their interests.
