JOHN G. JONES
DEMOCRAT FOR CONGRESS
ELECT A REPRESENTATIVE WHO KNOWS THE DISTRICT

John G. Jones has lived and worked in both Bend and La Grande. He knows the people of the 2nd Congressional District. He has traveled widely thru this broad district and learned the problems of every area. He understands the agricultural and industrial needs of the entire district. He has proved his capacity for leadership and his ability to work effectively with farm, business and labor groups. In Congress John will represent ALL the people.

Giant Steam-Electric Generators To Be Built For New Atom Plant

NEW YORK (AP) — The world's largest steam-electric generating stations will be built at Madison, Ind., and Gallipolis, O., to supply electricity to the new atomic center near Portsmouth, O.

Fifteen private electric companies joined forces to construct the greatest single block of power in the industry's history.

They have been planning the stations for months. Sites of the huge plants, however, were announced for the first time Wednesday.

The group of companies recently formed the Ohio Valley Electric Company to carry out the project.

Construction of the plant near Gallipolis will be handled by Ohio Valley and of the Madison plant by Indiana—Kentucky Electric Corp., an Ohio Valley subsidiary.

They chose Philip Sporn, president of American Gas and Electric Company, as head of both companies.

The generating stations will supply the full electric power requirements of the Atomic Energy Commission's billion-dollar uranium diffusion plant, still to be built near Portsmouth.

They will be called upon to provide 15 billion kilowatt hours annually.

The enormity of this power requirement is shown by the following comparisons.

Fifteen billion kilowatt hours is roughly 25 per cent more than the current annual consumption of New York City with its eight million people.

And it is roughly two-thirds of the annual electric power consumption of the entire highly industrialized state of Ohio.

It was estimated that 7½ million tons of coal will be needed at the generating plants.

Coal storage yards will be among the largest in the country and will be developed to hold up to three million tons.

Second District Congressional Race Seen As Closest In State Elections

(This is the third of four articles about the candidates in next Tuesday's general election in Oregon.)

By PAUL W. HARVEY Jr.

SALEM (AP) — Eastern Oregon's congressional race is one of the oddest Oregon has seen in many years.

Each candidate in this district, which is one of the country's biggest in area, shies away from claiming victory for himself. That is something unusual in itself.

On a recent swing through Eastern Oregon, I was surprised to hear the good things Republicans were saying about John G. Jones, La Grande, the Democratic candidate, and the nice things the Democrats are saying about State Sen. Sam Coon, Baker, the Republican.

Party lines are all mixed up, too. Coon is drawing some Democratic support, while Jones has some Republicans he can count on.

Oregon's four congressmen are Republicans. The Democrats think that Eastern Oregon's 2nd district is the place where they have the best chance to gain a seat. But the contest looks very close. Everybody agrees to that.

This is the seat once held by Democrat Walter Pierce, the Democratic former governor who now lives in Salem. Pierce was congressman from 1933 to 1943, when he was beaten by Lowell Stockman, the Pendleton rancher who now is leaving his congressional post after holding it for 10 years.

The main issue in this district is: Should the federal government build Hell's Canyon dam on the Snake River?

Jones says yes, and Coon says no.

Jones, who is campaigning 18 hours a day, has made the question of federal multi-purpose dams the big issue. He's all for them. Coon favors private power company development of the Snake River, but he doesn't talk about it very much.

Jones says he has made efforts to get Coon into a debate, but he claims Coon won't meet him.

Jones defeated State Sen. Ben Musa, The Dalles, for the Democratic nomination last May, and Musa is going all out for Jones now.

Coon scored a surprise victory in the primary over State Rep. Giles French, Moro publisher and veteran legislator.

French supports Coon, asserting "he is not an economic mendicant who has followed orders all his life. Coon isn't much of a talker but very much a doer."

While Jones is campaigning harder, Coon has a bigger organization, so Coon doesn't have to work quite so hard.

Both men are new to politics.

Coon has been a Baker County livestock rancher for 22 years. He has been active in livestock organizations, and served in the State Senate in 1951.

In the Senate, Coon didn't talk much, but he was chairman of the important Senate Agriculture Committee.

Coon has an engaging personality. With a ruddy complexion and a cowboy drawl, his personality apparently won the primary for him.

Jones has a good personality, too. He's had a varied career, including director of displaced persons camps in Germany, personnel training expert for industries, a dairy rancher, school teacher and radio station manager.

Both men have received help from the presidential candidates and, in a way, the congressional battle is a reflection of the No. 1 race.

Coon rode on the Eisenhower train through Western Oregon, which gave him a little publicity. But Jones' help from Adlai Stevenson was more direct.

Jones introduced Stevenson at the latter's recent appearance in Pendleton and gave Jones a good boost. Some political writers were trying to figure why Stevenson chose Pendleton for his only Oregon appearance on his recent Western tour.

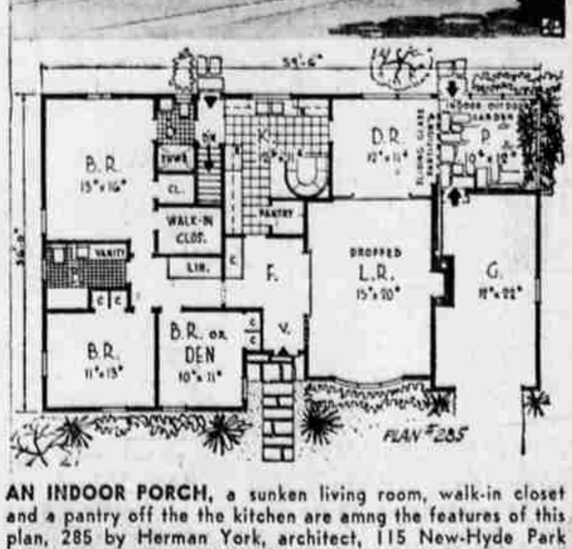
The answer they came up with was that Stevenson wanted to help Jones, where the Democrats have the best chance in Oregon of gaining a congressman.

In the first district, which includes Northwest Oregon, Rep. Walter Norblad, Astoria lawyer, is a big favorite to win for a fifth term. His Democratic opponent is Robert B. Jones, Clackamas County Commissioner.

This Jones, who is 37 years old, hasn't put on much of a campaign. He calls himself a Roosevelt Democrat, and claims Oregon's delegation to Congress hasn't managed to win from the federal government all that the state's entitled to.

Norblad, not very worried, hasn't done much campaigning, either. His main argument is that he has enough seniority on congressional committees to be of greater service to the state.

THE SOW SONG WAS SUNG by a blonde beauty from the Met, singing Louis Taucher, in a clever impersonation of a musical Miranda for the annual Kiwanis ladies day program. Accompanist was Frank Tucker, manager of the Klamath County of Chamber of Commerce. Take-off campaign for Kiwanians running for office were presented by Mrs. Burge Mason, Jr., Mrs. H. O. Juckeland, Mrs. Willard Ward and Mrs. J. Pinniger. The luncheon was at the Willard Hotel.



AN INDOOR PORCH, a sunken living room, walk-in closet and a pantry off the the kitchen are amng the features of this plan, 285 by Herman York, architect, 115 New-Hyde Park Road, Garden City, N. Y. The porch, glass enclosed on two sides, merges outdoor and indoor planting in conservatory fashion. A sliding glass wall separates it from dining room. The living room gains added ceiling height by being dramatically dropped down one step from the rest of the house. One of the two baths is given two entrances to make it convenient to the back door, which also has direct access to basement and kitchen. The house covers 1,730 square feet, including the built-in porch.
