Unrest Stirs Ohio Prison

COLUMBUS, O. (AP)—Ohio Penitentiary officials today kept secret their tactics to regain the upper hand over 1,600 convicts they haven't been able to control completely since Friday.

Warden Ralph W. Alvis said he's afraid the information would get back to the unruly prisoners through their prison radios.

Guards and state highway patrolmen kept watch on four cellblocks after a guard shot a prisoner who tried to escape yesterday.

The warden said the situation has been tense ever since the Halloween riots and fires that resulted in hundreds of thousands get into the prison courtyard. There were three outbreaks of defiance yesterday. The first came about 1 a.m. Prison officials dis-

Mamie Slates Full Schedule

ABOARD EISENHOWER TRAIN

Mamie Eisenhower, refreshed and rested after a comparative vacation of four days, plunged back today into the rigors of campaigning for the windup tonight in Boston.

After an overnight trip from New York on the 19-car campaign special, the general's lady faced almost as busy a day as her presidential candidate husband. The morning will be filled, weather permitting, with an open-car tour of the Massachusetts capital and its suburbs.

Highlight of her day will be a reception sponsored by a number of Boston women's organizations.

Then will follow the big rally at Boston Garden, where she'll be presented to the crowd, and after that still another appearance—an 11th-hour network television and radio show which will formally bring the campaign to a close.

Since July, Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower has literally been the travelingest woman in the public eye.

She's chalked up almost 50,000 miles across the country, ridden in endless motorcades, smiled from the rear platform of their train in countless towns.

Occasionally, particularly when her husband was on an air "whis-tie-stop" swing, she's dropped out of the party for a few days. She was able to take a short breather the latter part of last week, when her husband was touring New York and environs and flying to and from Chicago.

Girl Murder Clues Sought

ROSEBURG (AP)—Pretty Georgia Lang walked along a Roseburg business street at 6:30 p.m. last April 9, accompanied by two men. Police hoped Saturday to find out who those men were in their quest for clues in the 19-year-old brunette's death.

Her body, found by a pheasant hunter in a drainage ditch this week, was nude. Dr. Homer Harris of the state crime laboratory investigated in an effort to determine the cause of death.

Mr. and Mrs. Everette E. Perry said they talked with Miss Lang briefly the evening of April 9, then went to a restaurant. A short time later they saw her walk by with her two male companions.

Police Saturday had been unable to locate anyone who had seen her after that time.
