

American Education Week

November 9-15

By RUTH KING

READIN', RITIN' AND 'RITHMEIC are making headlines in the news this week as all city and county schools observe the 32nd anniversary of American Education Week with open house for parents and friends. These pictures were taken by the Herald and News cameraman as boys and girls went about the business of learning to be good citizens in well equipped, modern classrooms. Pictured are (1) Roosevelt school, city; (2) Learning to work with tools in the shop at Fremont, James Scott, instructor, demonstrating for (l to r) Ronnie Hitti, Jimmy Hines and Jerry Hamilton. (3) Playground equipment at Fairhaven, where a modern addition has just been completed, is getting a working out. (4) Science class members at Henley High school solve a problem with Myron Hurlburt, left, and Allen Ward giving notes to Mary Dillard. (5) Keno school, one of the few remaining buildings of this type in the system. (6) Spuds and gravy and lots o' milk disappeared in a hurry at the Henley cafeteria when more than 400 hungry students appeared at noon. (7) It's turkey time and boys and girls of Mrs. Bolten's room at Riverside, cut and paste to make strutting gobblers. Deep in the business are (l to r) seated Camille Southard, Linda Gunderson, Roy Billings, Richard Coulson. Standing Janet Lee.
