Pres. Andrews is to attend a luncheon meeting in Medford tomorrow noon. Before returning to Seattle, he will have visited chapters in Portland, Eugene and Boise as well as in Southern Oregon.

C. L. McDonald, president of the local chapter, is to present gifts of local products to Andrews, who is office manager for the Carnation Company, Seattle. He has been with Carnation for 30 years, and was elected to NOMA's highest office during the national convention in May.

Roy Premo, program chairman and past president of the local group, is to be master-of-ceremonies with Frank Tucker, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, to feature in the entertainment.

Students Air Radio Spots

Use of student-written 55-second radio spot announcements to bring to the public facts about local schools was discussed in the November issue of the NEA, monthly publication of the National Education Association.

The article was written by C. G. Woodhouse, instructor in English at KUHS. His classes in radio speech have put into practice the spot announcements over station KFLW, and plans are to continue them once more after Christmas.

Woodhouse writes that the brief-writing covers a lot of academic ground quickly and represents a part of the students training in composition and radio speaking.

Livestock Prices Dip

Hog and cattle prices the past week declined at most markets, with salable supplies continuing high, according to the weekly cattle and hog market review of the Oregon State College extension service.

Cattle receipts for most major markets continue large, and at Portland the available supply was the largest since 1949. At Ontario the receipts were the largest since late last year, and at Klamath Falls receipts were the largest of the season.

At Omaha over 40,000 head of cattle and calves were offered for sale last Monday.

The Klamath Falls market showed some strength in slaughter cattle with some going for from 25 cents to $1 more than the previous week. But at Ontario slaughter cattle were off $1 to $2.

Christmas Tree Pointers Told

Assist. State Forester Lynn P. Cronemiller said today that the State Forestry Department has been circulating an education program which will aid people in eliminating wasteful and harmful Christmas tree cutting practices.

He advised that Christmas trees should come from marginal lands which are not to be used permanently for forests; from Christmas tree "farms" where trees are grown commercially for the Yule trade; from pasture lands where the trees are not desirable; from forest thinnings and from the farm woodlands.

The forester reported that no Christmas trees will be cut from state forests this year as many are understocked and extensive planting and aerial seeding programs are under way in such areas as the Tillamook Burn and similar tracts. He advised that commercial tree choppers would be required to obtain harvesting permit from the state forester's office before removing the Yule trees from private or public lands. This permit is in addition to permission and sale of trees by the landowner.

For those Oregonians who plan to cut their own tree, the following guides have been suggested by Cronemiller:

- (1) Don't cut your tree close to the road and spoil the beauty of the roadside.
- (2) Secure permission before cutting from private or public property.
- (3) Don't cut all of the trees from one patch.
- (4) Don't cut the top from a large tree.
- (5) When you cut a tree, leave a branch or two on the stump. A branch will develop later into another tree, and save several years growing time.
- (6) Be certain you are satisfied with the tree of your choice before you cut it. Wasted trees are wasted years.

As a final word of caution, the forester urged extreme caution in using lighted candles on the inflammable tapers. Place your tree in a cool part of the room—keep it away from heaters, stoves and other sources of fire.

ONE OF THE COMEDY HITS of New York's 1951 theater season, "Glad Tidings," produced by the New York Civic Drama Guild and brought to Klamath Falls under auspices of the Business and Professional Women's club will be presented Tuesday night, 8 p.m. in Mills School Auditorium. This light-hearted, humorous play of a modern-generation family is the story of a father who finds he has an attractive daughter, of whose existence he has been unaware for 20 years. Tickets for the three plays, "Glad Tidings," "The Fledermaus" and "Jenny Kissed Me" are still on sale at the chamber of commerce, Neal's Fountain and at the door, Tuesday night.

Southern Pacific Engineer Retires After Long Service

DUNSMUIR — Harry E. Willis, Southern Pacific Shasta Division conductor has announced his retirement between Ashland and Hornbrook on a turnaround.

With his wife, Jane, he will continue to make his home on a 12-acre farm 10 miles south of Ashland on Highway 99. The address is Route 1, Box 403.

Willis started as a worker on the railroad section June 21, 1899 in Chanute, Kan., for the Atchison, Topeka, and Santa Fe railroad. In March 1906 he started work in the engine service with the Kansas City Southern railroad. Returning to the Santa Fe in 1903, he hired out as a brakeman and continued with them until 1918, when he began working out of Dunsmuir, Feb. 2. He was promoted to conductor July 15, 1925.

He moved to Ashland in 1921 and back to Dunsmuir and Weed in 1940. In 1960 he moved to Ashland again, where he was since remained.

He has a daughter, Mrs. Cleo Thompson, who makes her home in Balboa, Panama. She makes frequent trips home to visit her father and step-mother.
