Livestock

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK

CHICAGO (AP) — Hog marketings Wednesday and the underlying weakness in prices which goes with the season again became apparent.

Values were steady to 15 cents lower, sows holding up best under the dickering.

Cattle were unevenly weak to 25 cents higher with better grades making the advance. Ewes were steady.

Most choice butcher weight hogs were taken at $15.90 to $16.85. Sows were $14.00 to $15.50 in the main.

Good to prime steers and yearlings developed a still broader range at $24.50 to $36.00.

Grading high-prime topped at $38.00. Good to low-prime heifers took $24.50 to $33.75.

Cows could get no higher than $16.50 but bulls remained at $21.00 and vealers at $29.00 and below.

Ewes held to $8.35 and below but in other sections of the ovine trade, yearlings were scarce.

ker, former party boss, has fallen from grace with many others; in Poland and in the other satellites.

In Czechoslovakia, it looked like only the beginning of a reign of terror among former party stalwarts who backed the wrong horse.

The assignment of a new ambassador from Prague to Moscow and the arrest of the foreign trade minister, announced Tuesday by Prague Radio, hinted at more bloodletting in the purification of the Czech party.

OTHERS

Those who died with Slansky, the Czech party's former secretary general, were:

Vlado Clementis, former Czech foreign minister;

Bedrich Geminder, former head of the Communist Party's international section and Kremlin spokesman in Prague;

Otto Sling, former deputy secretary general of the party;

Ludvik Frejka, former head of the State Eeconomic Commission;

Bedrich Reicin, an ex-general and former deputy defense minister;

Otto Fischl, former deputy finance minister;

Rudolf Margolius, former deputy trade minister;

Andre Simone, ex-editor of the Czech Communist newspaper Rude Pravo;

Josef Frank, formerly Slansky's deputy and a member of the party's presidium;

Karl Svab, ousted last year as deputy minister of state security.

Dulles Starts

relations with their Truman administration predecessors—an unprecedented move suggested by President Truman to ease the shift of administrations.

ANOTHER

Another of Eisenhower's Cabinet appointees, George M. Humphrey, due to be secretary of the Treasury, also confers today with the present holder of that post, John W. Snyder.

Five fat volumes dealing with the whole range of American foreign policy and its operations were available for Dulles' initial study. Two of these, prepared especially for Dulles, deal with the work of the State Department in countries all over the world. The other three, prepared for Eisenhower and presented to him by Truman, concern a global survey of foreign policy, world danger spots and emergency plans for dealing with any sudden crisis.

Officials said Dulles can write his own ticket on the work he wants to do here preliminary to taking office. All of the departments experts and policy makers are at his disposal.

PROBLEMS

Among the problems Dulles is expected to take upon this visit or his next are those involving:

1. Korea, listed as No. 1. There are diplomatic aspects to the Korean question, such as the debate of truce negotiations which has been under way in the U. N., which are not apparently involved in Eisenhower's trip to the war zone.

2. Indochina. The French are carrying the burden of resistance Communist aggression there now, and evidence of Russian military supplies being shipped in was recently uncovered. Indochina is a drain on French resources and the Paris government in the past has pressed for greater American assistance because of it.

3. Iran. A crisis is believed to be coming up in Iran, where State Department officials have long been concerned about the dangers of a Communist takeover.

4. Berlin. This is regarded by authorities here as a constant danger spot.

5. France. West German rearmament has caused an increase of political tensions in France.

6. Latin America. Some concern is beginning to be expressed here over the trend of political developments in Latin America, where diplomats report a growing nationalism which in some countries takes an anti-United States line.

Klamath Leases

Wamstad has said it is possible for flood control work to be completed enough to homestead a good part of the lease land by 1954 and most of the rest of it in 1955.

Cross, however, thinks much of the land should be homesteaded now. He said he would be willing to assume flood risk and homestead on either the League of Nations or Frog Pond tracts immediately.

Wamstad revealed that an engineering survey had shown high flood danger would probably occur on the land once in 36 years.

Sam Anderson, Newell rancher who was to have been the fifth member of last night's panel, could not attend because of the serious illness of his wife. However, a statement of Anderson's views was read by Moderator Bud Chandler.

Anderson said he felt the present lease arrangement should be continued for at least four more years to allow the Bureau of Reclamation to complete the flood control work. He said he was definitely against turning the land over to Fish and Wildlife.

He added that he thought Reclamation Bureau Chief Michael Straus had ordered leases not renewed so as to release the land under new contracts.

Home to Be Decorated

The Klamath Falls Garden Club will decorate the large home of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Olson, 2035 Portland, one-half block above Pacific Terrace as the Christmas offering to the public this year.

The decorations will show the possibilities of using native greens and original ideas in Christmas decorations for all rooms in the house.

Hours for the "Christmas Through the House" tour, Saturday Dec. 6, will be 2 to 5 p.m.

A silver tea is planned and the tour is open to the public.

Mrs. Scott McKendree and Mrs. Hugh O'Connor, co-chairmen were responsible for the success of last year's tour of homes. Mrs. Fred Karlson, club president is assisting.

Con Flogged In England

DARTMOOR, England (AP)—Twelve lashes with the "cat" have been meted out to a convict—the first flogging at the government's grim Dartmoor Prison in seven years.

Prisoner William Edward McGuire, 22, sentenced two years ago to 14 years for various crimes, was punished a few days ago for attacking a prison officer.

He also lost 12 months off his sentence he might have earned by good conduct, it was announced.

McGuire was strapped to the "triangle" after being stripped to the waist. His neck and kidneys were protected by leather pads and a medical officer stood by while the long nine-thonged whip known as the cat-o'-nine-tails was wielded by a prison officer.

Safecracker Out of Jail

EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP) — An expert safecracker broke out of Saughton Jail here with a pen, authorities discovered today.

Hugh Kelly Mannion—who three years ago broke into the same jail to rescue a friend—made good his escape by rewriting bail papers and calmly walking out the gates to freedom. It took 50 hours before the forgery was discovered.

Officials said that Mannion, who was awaiting trial on safe-stealing charges, somehow got hold of another prisoner's bail bond in the sheriff's office and put his own name on it.

Seed Growers Plan Meeting

Seeds and their problems will attract a number of Klamath County farmers—mostly seed growers—to the annual meeting of the Oregon Seed Grower's League in Portland Dec. 8-10.

And with the growing emphasis on seed growing in this area, County Agent C. A. Henderson said today Klamath County has a special stake in seed problems.

"This county," he said, "grows more than 40 per cent of all alsike clover seed produced in the nation, and although the crop is subordinate in income to potatoes, it is the alsike which puts plant food back in the soil, provides organic matter and in other ways increases our spud yield."

Without such a legume seed crop, he said, it would be most difficult to grow high-yielding and high-quality potatoes.

The League's potato committee, Henderson noted, has in recent years taken the place of a statewide potato association and has been more or less the voice of the industry in Oregon in legislation, federal programs and in other way.

"The league deliberations," he added, "result in somewhat of a program for guidance of the entire seed business in the state the following year, particularly recommendations on expansion or contraction of acreage of the various seed crops."

Work of the league is handled mainly through committees. Ed Geary of Klamath Falls is chairman of a standing committee on seed certification. A long-standing seed grower himself, he has reported major rule changes will be studied by the group before the new rules are put into effect.

Henry Semon, another local seed grower, is a member of the legislation committee.

LESS ACCIDENTS

NEW YORK (AP)—In a nationwide drive to help reduce night traffic accidents, the U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce has already put 5-foot stripe of red reflective tape across the rear bumpers of hundreds of thousands of automobiles, says Horace E. Henderson, national president of the organization. Such light-reflecting bumpers are said to be visible for half a mile. It is hoped to cut down rear-end collisions and other accidents resulting from attempts to avoid hitting parked or stalled cars not seen in time by approaching drivers.

Conger PTA Hears Artist

Richard Reinholtz, art supervisor for Klamath Falls schools, gave an interesting talk to Conger PTA at the Nov. 19 meeting. He illustrated with blackboard sketches the stages of a child's art development and emphasized the daily use each of us makes of our knowledge of color and design. Samples of the students' art from the various schools were displayed.

Preceding the talk by Reinholtz, Mrs. Gene Woods, president, conducted a brief business meeting. This meeting was opened with a flag salute led by Sharon Davis.

Gerald Clemens, principal, spoke of the need of a spotlight for the stage and it was voted to buy the light as part of this year's project. It is to be purchased immediately for use in the presentation of the Christmas program Dec. 12.

"One Alone, "The Desert Song" and "Marianina" were sung by the girls' double sextette including Sandra Madras, Eleanor Prock, Pat Wilson, Judy Hull, Jane Swaney, Janice Menti, Sandra Langslet, Joan Marshall, Claudia Geist, Sharon Davis, Evelyn Thorne and Sharon Spangler. They were accompanied at the piano by their instructor, Mrs. Jane Craig.

Mrs. Jennie Mills' third grade won the room count.

Following adjournment the sixth grade mothers served refreshments in the cafeteria.

Gum Machines Make Money

Klamath Falls Kiwanis Club "gum ball" machines, scattered throughout the area in business locations, have summed up some $4,000 in total receipts since 1948, it was announced today.

The proceeds from the machines have been used for development expenses at Kiwanis Park. Kiwanians this Saturday plan to reroof the rest rooms at the park with mostly volunteer labor.

The park is one of the most successful of the in-town recreational areas.

SHOWBOAT AIDS

MANILA (AP) — The Philippine armed forces psychological war against Communist Huks is taking a new twist this month with the launching of a "showboat," in 1850 Mississippi River style. Complete with entertainers, the boat will cruise the coastline and Manila Bay areas. The program is aimed at carrying out Defense Secretary Ramon Magsaysay's idea of "selling" the armed forces and the government to the people living in the bay towns—a frequent gathering point for the Reds.

Howe Guest Of Merrill Lions

MERRILL—Carrol Howe, Klamath County School Superintendent, was a guest at a Lions Club meeting Monday evening. Howe revealed some interesting facts about the County school system. School buses haul 2653 passengers a day, more than all other carriers in the county combined. Klamath County district ranks third in enrollment in the state, and first in an area covering 6 square miles, 2800 meals are served every day in the 15 elementary and 7 high schools in the county.

One new member, R. R. Walker, was presented his club pin. Alonzo Hodges announced that the fire department needed toys to repair, and anyone wishing to make a donation could leave them at any business firm in town, or at the fire hall. The renovated toys are delivered to needy youngsters just before Christmas.

The club will donate $25 to help defray expenses of the annual Community Christmas program to be held at the high school just before Christmas.

At the next regular meeting Dec. 15, the annual Christmas party will be held at the Spud Cellar. Ladies are invited, and each person attending is asked to bring an appropriate gift.

A director's meeting followed the dinner. 29 were present.

Tall Actor Has Trouble Finding Roles in Movies

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — You'd think that a towering young man with acting ability, a handsome face and blonde hair would be a cinch for film success.

"It's not as easy as all that," comments Jim Arness, who has all those qualifications. There's one difficulty: He towers too tall for most Hollywood leading men.

"Jim, a good-looking boy from Minneapolis, is a shade over 6 feet 6. He's considerably taller than most leading men, and two inches taller than the biggest one (Dan Dailey).

"It wouldn't be bad if I played leads myself," he explained. "Then it wouldn't matter how tall I was. But a lot of leading men don't like to have actors taller than them appear in their pictures. I don't blame them. If I were a star, I'd probably object to having someone seven feet tall in one of my pictures."

Jim's career is finally hitting on all cylinders after some lean days. He decided to take a flier at acting after he got out of the Army (he slumped down during his Army physical so he wouldn't be rejected for over-height). After appearing in a little theater here, he landed a movie job as one of Loretta Young's brothers in "The Farmer's Daughter."

"They wanted a guy who looked like a big Swede," Jim recalled. "So I had no trouble getting cast. But when I tried to get an acting job after that, I realized what I was up against. The studios told me I was too big to appear with their male stars.

"I had interviews again and again for Alan Ladd pictures. But I was always turned down for the same reason. But then I realized that Ladd probably had just as much trouble getting a break in pictures—because he was shorter than most leading men."

Jim had some lean days during which he sold anything from newspaper advertising to plywood. Then Dore Schary, who had hired him for "The Farmer's Daughter," gave him a job in "Battleground." He followed that by playing the title role in "The thing."

"The publicity was good for me," he said, "but I was afraid I was going to be typed in horror pictures."

Fortunately he wasn't. He went back to MGM to play the defendant in "The People vs. O'Hara." He landed a contract with it.

"But I only lasted six months," he remarked. "It was the same old story. I'd come up for a role in a picture with Van Johnson or Clark Gable and they'd say I was too tall. And the studio doesn't put its players into leads until they've had plenty of experience. I was stymied."

He was out of work again, and with a wife and three children to support. Again he enrolled in a little theater play. It paid off for him. Robert Fellows and John Wayne signed him to a contract and put him in Wayne's film, "Big Jim McLain."

"It was one of the few times I didn't have to play scenes with other actors while I was sitting down," Jim said. "Even though I was a few inches taller than Wayne, he didn't mind standing next to me in scenes."

Jim is again with a big actor—Victor Mature—in "Prince of Bagdad." He is hoping he can continue finding enough tall stars to support in pictures until that happy day when he might be a star himself.

Cons Punished For Swearing

SALEM (AP) — The 14 men in the penitentiary's segregation unit are confined to their cells for at least a week for using foul language.

Warden Virgil O'Malley said he ordered the men, considered the worst in the prison, confined to their cells after they staged a cussing demonstration Monday afternoon while the prison tailor shop was burning.

The 14 men were eating dinner in the corridor of the segregation unit, located on the ground floor of a cell block about 100 yards from the fire.

They called the Salem city firemen every profane name they could think of.

Warden O'Malley told a guard to go into the segregation unit and tell the men that if they didn't quiet down, he would have a fire hose turned on them.

The guard then went into the unit and gave the men a little tear gas, but they wouldn't go back into their cells.

The guard reported back to the warden, who ordered a large dosage of tear gas. This was done, and the men went into their cells.

On Tuesday, the men asked the warden how long they would stay in their cells.

"I told them they would stay there until I get good and ready to let them out, but that it would be at least a week," the warden said.

The men in segregation normally are let into the corridor to eat and to exercise.

How would you like the fun of Christmastime to last all the year through?

That's the way it seems to be when you call this Buick beauty your own—what with the constant cheer it brings to you week after week, month after month.
