Robinson Stripped of Title

Sugar's Manager Screams

By TED MEIER

NEW YORK (U.P.) — The New York State Athletic Commission stripped Sugar Ray Robinson of his world middleweight title in a surprise move early Friday.

The action brought this rector from George Gairford, Robinson's manager, "somebody is screwing somebody. A title is won in a ring and taken away in a ring."

Robert Christenberry, commission chairman, declared Robinson's title was being vacated because he had not met the rule which requires a champion to defend his title every six months.

"We had given him an extra month to decide whether to continue his boxing or go into a career as an entertainer," said Christenberry. "Up to now we have not had an answer."

To this, Gairford, contacted on a train at New Haven, Conn., en route to Boston, asserted he had mailed a special delivery letter to Christenberry before he and Robinson had left New York.

"It is our understanding that we were only to notify the commission that negotiations were under way for a fight," Gairford said.

"In the letter, which Christenberry should receive Friday we explain that we are negotiating with Jack Solomons, the British promoter, for a title fight with Randy Turpin in London next June."

Robinson lost his middleweight title to Turpin in London in July, 1951, but won it back in a return bout the following September at the Polo Grounds, New York.

Krause in Shift Fuss

By WILL GRIMSLEY (For Gayle Talbot)

NEW YORK (U.P.) — The most interesting controversy of the dying football season is the fuss being raised over Notre Dame's so-called "sucker shift." Is it legal? Is it treacherous? Does it violate the spirit of the game?

You can't be neutral. For this reason we are forced to line up on the side of big Ed (Mooney) Krause, Notre Dame athletic director, who contends all the fuss is a move to kill "football wit and intelligence."

All our combative sports, in a measure, are based on outsmarting as well as outbattering our adversaries. Any trick or stroke, then, which helps promote victory is good so long as it doesn't break the rules.

The severest critics of the Irish's offside-provoking maneuver acknowledge it's probably not illegal. They simply say it's unethical or a heck of a way to win a football game.

By the same reasoning, it seems to us, you might say a fighter is a sneaky culprit for feinting with his left and then refrigerating his opponent with a straight right-hand bolt to the chin. Or a baseball pitcher is unethical in feeding the batter a slow curve when the batter is looking for a fast ball.

In any of these cases, the fellow caught off guard is made to look a bit foolish and you can't much blame his chagrin—such as Southern California's chagrin—at being beaten by such a trick. But the answer doesn't lie in the rules. The answer is to be careful the next time.

On this type of play, Notre Dame lines up in the T-formation and then shifts into a box. At South Bend Saturday three Southern Cal Trojans boiled over the line of scrimmage at the shift. The Trojans were penalized five yards to their own four and Notre Dame soon had a touchdown.

Krause points out that Notre Dame has had the shift since it came out of Knute Rockne's head in 1913. Then he asks the reasonable question: "What's wrong with trickery?"

Football is founded on trickery. Teams maintain elaborate espionage systems to spy on opponents, steal plays and conceive means of beating them to the punch. The status of Liberty, the reverse, the screen pass, all are intended to mummify the enemy.

And it's not only true of football. TRICK SERVE

Back in the halcyon days when we thought some day would be another Don Budge, a prankish tournament tennis player pulled a unique and effective serve.

He tossed the ball high in the air, in the accepted fashion, as if to whistle across a cannonball delivery. But while the first ball was still in the air, he undercut the second ball and sent it sneaking over the net.

This frequently was good enough for a point. While the opponent was watching the first ball, never touched, the second slipped across too quickly to handle.

This was great stuff until one day the second ball failed to fall into the court. The opponent yelled "double!" The prankish server insisted he had another delivery since the first ball wasn't touched.

They're probably still trying to find it in the rule book.

Dallas Club to Take

Beef to Commissioner

PHOENIX, Ariz. (U.P.) — The Dallas Club of the Texas League, rebuffed in its efforts to terminate the major-minor league agreement at the minor league convention Thursday will plead its case before Commissioner Ford Frick and will appeal to the courts for a ruling only after all other efforts have failed, league attorney Prentice Wilson said Friday.

Openly disappointed by the overwhelming vote against the two proposals submitted by the Dallas club to either permit all minor league players to waive their draft rights, or terminate the major-minor agreement, Wilson said the Texas League would continue its fight against "major league domination" of baseball until "an equal distribution of power and control is brought about in the minor leagues."

"The way it stands now," said Wilson, "The independent minor league club is at the mercy of the majors. In actuality, it is taxation without representation."

"The interests of the major leagues are directly opposed to those of the minors. They violate the terms of their own contract but they won't give us the privilege of trying to adjust or revise the contract."

"I am in favor of tearing up the old contract and writing another one with teeth in it."

Wilson called the rule that confers to Pacific Coast League players the right to waive their draft right but refuses the same to the rest of the minor leagues "is arbitrary, discriminatory, capricious and confiscatory and I do not believe that the rule can be enforced against any minor league club that defies it."
