WHAT'S THE RAP? Minneapolis police thought this fellow was a bit young to be wandering the streets alone. They gave him a ride to headquarters in a squad car. Hung up his trousers to dry. Fed him sandwiches and milk and put him to bed in the matron's quarters. Later his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nels Ormbeig, "bailed" him out. They said his name is Dennis.

Animals Cut From Will

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (P) — Three dogs and a cat aren't going to share in the estate of their master Carl F. Bergk, who died in 1949 at the age of 83. Superior Judge Stanley Mosk ruled yesterday that the animals, ranging in age from 8 to 14 years, cannot benefit from a trust fund of $11,184 provided in Berg's will, an outright gift for them from his $77,386 estate. So the estate will go to Berg's sister, Katherine W. Meloy, and a niece, Alice W. Johnson, who gave assurances the animals will receive proper care.

Fans Hold 'Depthie' Fate; Three Kinds Are in Mill

By ERSKINE JOHNSON
HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Shine up your polarized glasses, folks — the "depthies" are here. They are movies in three dimensions, and film industry fingers are crossed that theater screens with height, width and depth will lure Hollywood's low audiences away from their home TV screens.

Wearing cardboard-rimmed polarized glasses, Los Angeles moviegoers are seeing the first feature-length motion picture in Natural Vision Third-Dimension — Arch Oboler's "Bwana Devil."

Robert Stack and Barbara Britton, the screen's first third-dimension stars, seem to be right there in the flesh as they fight off lions and a hot passion for one another in darkest Africa.

Some Hollywoodites are hailing the first "depthie" as the greatest event since "talkies." Others say that the polarized glasses give them headaches and that third-dimension movies never will be more than just a novelty.

It's up to the moviegoers now, who will have their choice soon of two other color experiments in avoiding flat screens. One is Cinemascope, which uses a cylindrical screen 63 feet long and 20 feet high, giving you the illusion of being in the scenes. An experimental Cinemascope film has been playing to S.R.O. signs in New York for two months.

The first feature-length Cinemascope movie, probably a western, will face the cameras in Hollywood within two months, according to Producer Merian C. Cooper, who is in the Cinemascope Productions deal with Louis B. Mayer.

The other is Tri-Opticon, an English third-dimension process also requiring polarized glasses. Hollywood Producer Sol Lesser represents the U. A. rights to Tri-Opticon and soon will release five English-made short subjects in the process—two cartoons, a travelogue, a ballet number and a comedy.

GLAMOROUS LOUNGING SLIPPERS

Both pairs are crocheted — the pair in upper illustration are of turquoise wool in shell stitch, each shell decorated with a tiny pearl; soles are lipstick red. Second pair is done in bright tangerine wool in a mesh stitch, has elastic crocheted around top to insure snug fit. Both pairs are suitable for pretty lounging wear.

Send 25c for the two pairs lounging slippers (Pattern No. 562) sizes small, medium, large included, crocheting, trimming and finishing directions, your name, address, pattern number to: Carol Curtis, Herald and News, Box 229, Madison Square Station, New York 10, N.Y.

Patterns ready to fill orders immediately. For special handling of order via first class mail include an extra 5c per pattern.

her divorce from Franchot Tone is final. "Marriage" Barbara scooped. "I've had it."

Crooner Russ Landi tells about the two hoppers who like to get together and reminisce about the future.

Keenan Wynn and MGM are about to call it a day. . . . Belle Davis and Julia Harris are being paged for the mother-daughter roles in "Ballad and the Source." . . . Laurits Melchior, the opera star who clicked as an MGM musical find a few years back, is planning a night-club tour. . . . Jimmy Stewart will be part owner of a new Galveston TV station. . . . Darryl Zanuck's daughter, Susan, will make her film debut in an independent flick to be filmed in New York. . . . Lana Turner and Lex Barker are duking it out at the quieter spots. Lana wants out of the headlines for a while. Donald O'Connor's wife, Gwen, is slated for a night-club act. . . . The separation rumors are flying again about Danny Kaye and wife, Sylvia. But Hollywood has heard them before and nothing ever happened.

Now it's skin-tight leather pants for the blonde western menace. Audrey Totter's doll wearing "em" and by comparison Marilyn Monroe's blue jeans look like they were built for Oliver Hardy.

Designed by Adele Palmer with eyes closed to the censors for "The Woman They Almost Lynched," the pants are so tight Audrey can't even bend her knees to sit down. She's beaming: "I've worn a lot of low-cut gowns on the screen, but this is the first time I've ever got wolf whistles both coming and going."
