Movie Maker Has Trouble Filming Real Life Tales

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD — In my book, the bravest kind of movie maker is the one who attempts to film somebody's real-life story.

What hazards the producer faces! Everybody gets into the act, including the family, friends and business associates of the person being portrayed. Some demand payment for the use of their names. Some threaten suit if their names aren't used. Some want the facts juggled so that life will seem more pleasant than it really was.

The picture is finally completed. The producer is bombarded by critics for making a watered-down or corned-up version of the person's life. And law suits for defamation of character or invasion of privacy start popping up all over.

That's why I consider Henry Blake a brave man. He is now producing "The Grace Moore Story," based on the life of the late singing star.

"The legal clearances are indeed a headache," he sighed. "Even if you use fictitious names for certain characters, you have to be careful. If the character is unmistakably someone in real life, the person may have grounds for suit."

He added that certain liberties have to be taken in real-life stories because of dramatic needs. For instance, the picture showed Zola writing "Nana" before the Franco-Prussian War instead of after. And Pasteur was pictured as finding a cure for childhood fever, while another scientist was actually responsible for it.

Blake said that the Grace Moore film will stick as closely to the singer's life as possible. It will be concerned mostly with her early days.

"The climax of the picture will be her debut at the Metropolitan," he explained. "You see, in real-life stories, the problem is getting a dramatic story. The drama in Grace Moore's story was her struggle to get to the Met. After that came nothing but triumph—Hollywood, 17 trips to Europe, etc. Too much success doesn't make a dramatic picture."

He added that the story has also been tailored to the talents of Kathryn Grayson, who is playing Miss Moore. "They are two different kinds of people," he remarked. "Miss Moore was more the vivacious, peppy type."

The picture is being made at Warners, and that's a matter of poetic justice. Al Jolson, who scored his triumph at Warners, had his biography made by Columbia. Grace Moore, who made millions for Columbia, is now being immortalized by Warners.

Sheriff Gets Huge Still

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. — Hamilton County officers destroyed a 2,900-gallon copper still yesterday and confiscated enough chickens to provide Christmas dinner for county prisoners.

Sheriff Rex Richey said the big moonshining outfit was being operated in a chicken house and some chickens were being kept around "as a blind."

"The prisoners at county jail are going to have the biggest chicken dinner for Christmas as they've ever had," the sheriff said.

Xmas Greetings Go By Radio

ATLANTA (AP)—Airwaves tonight will carry the Christmas greetings of a 22-year-old polio victim who was too ill to write cards to her friends in Kentucky this year.

Doris Whitaker will tape record her holiday messages and amateur radio operators have volunteered to transmit them by ham network to her hometown, Somerset, Ky. There they'll be picked up by Ivan Kelley's station W4TUT, where her friends will be gathered.

They'll return her greetings, via radio, and their voices will be relayed to her by phone.

Miss Whitaker came here last summer to find a job. A week later she became ill and has been in Grady Hospital since.

Queen Slates Xmas Address

LONDON — Queen Elizabeth's Christmas radio address, her first as sovereign, will begin tomorrow three minutes later than usual—at 3:03 p.m. (10:03 a.m., EST). It will be the first delay since the royal broadcast started 20 years ago.

The Queen approved the change so that more than 1,000 overseas radio stations which will carry the address can be cued in to pick up the broadcast.
