Holiday Color Scheme Used For Frei-Myers Wedding Decorations

Peace Memorial Church was the setting for a large wedding Dec. 20, when Rosemary June Frei and James Lindley exchanged nuptial vows in an 8 p.m. service. The Rev. Dwayne L. Proett read the double-ring service at 8 p.m.

The marriage, which was an event of the winter season, unites two well-known Klamath Basin families. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hans Frei, 2507 Gettle Street; and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Myers, 711 Pacific Terrace.

The lovely bride wore a gown of satin and lace, nylon net yoke, fitted bodice, and a full skirt with court train. Her veil was of illusion net, held with a cap trimmed with satin bands. She carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums and stephanotis centered with a white orchid. Her only jewelry was a pearl necklace.

She was escorted by her father to the altar, decorated with striking arrangements of red poinsettias, white and gold carnations and evergreens. Floor candelabra with tapers highlighted the interesting holiday color scheme.

Francis Hamilton, organist, accompanied soloist, Carl Hagel, who sang "At Dawning," "Because," and, after the vows, "The Lord's Prayer."

Maid of honor, Suzanne Joy Frei, sister of the bride, wore a gown of gold tulle; she carried a bouquet of variegated red and gold carnations and wore matching flowers in her hair.

Shirley Baldwin, from Canby, Ore., and Faye Peugh, bridesmaids, wore red tulle, and their bouquets and head pieces were the same as the maid of honor. The three attendants wore dresses styled alike, and in keeping with the color scheme chosen for decorations.

Tom Sloan, Medford, was best man; Russell Smith, Gunning Butler, Eugene; Bill Staunton, Tulake; and John Frei, bride's brother, were ushers. George Myers, younger brother of the bridegroom, and John Frei, were candlelighters.

Mrs. Frei wore a floor-length aqua crepe gown, black and aqua accessories; and a pink orchid corsage to her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Myers, bridegroom's mother chose rose-magenta in crepe and lace, for her floor-length gown. She wore black and gold accessories and her corsage was also a pink orchid.

Rosemary lacks only a few months of completing her nurses training at Emmanuel Hospital

KLAMATH SADDLE CLUB XMAS PARTY

The Klamath Saddle Club greeted Santa at Cal-Ore Sunday evening, Dec. 21. Santa led a "conga line" to the tune of Jingle Bells; and then joyfully distributed presents to the Saddle Club members and their escorts.

Smorgasbord appetizers and a pheasant dinner were served to the group. Decorations included miniature of Santa in his sleigh pulled by tiny reindeer, through a realistic forest of greens in a circle of red candles. Holiday favors marked each place at the table.

Hostesses for the evening were Beverly Negrevski, Georgia Lane, Hazel Turner and Loretta Stevan.
