Tape Recorder Has Evidence

A stolen tape recorder and the voices it recorded may be submitted as evidence in court in prosecution of three young men charged with burglary at Gresham.

One is Arley S. Tacker, 19, Boring, Ore., who was apprehended in the northern part of Klamath County last weekend and jailed here. Tacker since has been transferred to Multnomah County.

The other two boys are juveniles.

While here Tacker admitted to State Police the burglary of a school at Orient, Ore., where the tape recorder was stolen, and also burglary of a garage at Gresham where a safe was kidnaped and broken open.

Detective Art Graves of Portland said voices on the recorder tape can be identified as those of Tacker and the other two youths, and that the recording is an accounting of the burglary loot and what happned to it.

SUGAR PLANT READY

NAHA, Okinawa (AP)—The Army says the largest centrifugal sugar plant ever established in the Ryukyu islands is ready to begin operations. The 750-ton plant was purchased with U.S. funds. The plant is two-thirds owned by Ryukyuans, the Army said, with Okinawa cane farmers holding 50 per cent of its outstanding stock.

[illegible]on Legislators Hope to Finish Session Within Ninety-Day Period

[illegible] W. HARVEY JR.

[illegible] — Oregon's [illegible] state [illegible] will meet [illegible] next [illegible] a hope and prayer [illegible] problems will enable [illegible] wind up their session [illegible]ys.

[illegible] grounds for this op[illegible] the Legislature [illegible] difficult chores that [illegible]51 session ran for a [illegible]ays.

[illegible] helped, too, by set[illegible] when they de[illegible] ballot measures at [illegible] election two months [illegible].

[illegible] will start off [illegible] major tasks, but most [illegible] be settled without [illegible].

[illegible] the main legislative [illegible] the state's new [illegible] Paul L. Patterson, [illegible] some new ones in [illegible] Monday:

[illegible] Reorganization. [illegible] proposals to com[illegible] depart[illegible], and to [illegible] vehicle de[illegible] the [illegible] of state [illegible] commissioner. [illegible] for a [illegible] of all [illegible].

[illegible] District Reorganiza[illegible], by a narrow margin, rejected the 1951 Legislature's plan to make it easier to consolidate school districts. The new Legislature probably will either pass it again, or modify it in order to meet objections of the state Orange and little school districts.

3. Statute Revision. The Legislature will be asked to approve the Statute Revision Council's four-year job of rewriting the state's laws.

4. Liquor by the Drink. The Legislature will have to pass laws to set up the machinery to sell liquor by the drink. The people directed it to do this at the last election.

5. Highway Bonds. The Highway Commission wants 32 million dollars worth of road construction bonds to continue the road bond program started two years ago.

6. Parole Reorganization. National parole officials and a special parole committee appointed by the governor will ask for a full-time parole board.

7. Taxes. No new taxes are expected, because the state has enough money for the next two years. However, an important tax measure probably will be passed. Sponsored by the Legislative Interim Tax Committee, it would simplify the state's tax system by allowing spending of income tax revenues, which now can be used only to reduce property taxes.

8. Election Reforms. These include proposals to make it harder to put measures on the ballot, to have ballot titles on election measures written more clearly, to provide more rigid controls over campaign spending, and to make candidates for delegates to the national party conventions sign pledges to support the winner of the state presidential primary.

While those are the big jobs, there will be many smaller ones.

The Joint Ways and Means Committee will try to prune the governor's budget for the next two-year budget period. It will try to find money for new state college and institution buildings. These building requests total 20 millions, and are not included in the governor's budget.

As usual, there will be a fight over fishing and hunting laws. The two main bills in this class would transfer game law enforcement from the state police to the game commission, and give the governor power to postpone hunting seasons in the event of forest fire hazards.

Labor will want bigger unemployment compensation payments, and employers will ask for lower payroll taxes.

There is some agitation to create the office of lieutenant governor. Salary increases for some state officials and employes will be sought. The veterans organizations want the $6,000 ceiling on farm and home loans for veterans to be increased.

The Board of Higher Education and State Civil Service Commission will carry their feud to the Legislature. This quarrel is over whether non-teaching employes of the colleges and universities shall be under civil service.

Communism probably will be an issue again. The 1951 Legislature didn't take final action on bills to require public school teachers and candidates for state offices to sign non-Communist affidavits. So the new Legislature will have the same bills to consider.

It will be an interesting session.

You can bet on one thing—that the legislators will start work sooner than usual, because they have bitter memories of that 116-day session of two years ago.
