It Happened This Way in New Pine Creek

By IRVIN FARIS

Words of sympathy and anxiety are on the lips of everyone as they anxiously await last minute news concerning the condition of Andrew (Andy) W. Lightle who was sent to the Lakeview Hospital on New Year's eve by a freakish accident that broke one of his legs in four places below the knee, smashed a hip-joint causing multiple pelvic bone fractures and broke a lower spinal vertebrae, according to reports.

The irony of the fateful mishap is this: if Andy had not been a kindly man, the accident might never have happened. A young chap had run off the slippery road that evening at around 7:30 or 8 o'clock on that dangerous half-way curve between New Pine Creek and Lakeview, just this side of the Cleve Snider Ranch. Andy came chugging along, carefully in his pickup, stopped and pulled the helpless car back on to the highway.

The feat had scarcely been accomplished when another car approached, coming from New Pine Creek and driven by Donald Butler, recently out of the Navy. He, although driving at a moderate rate of speed, according to Mrs. Hazel Lightle who was sitting in the Lightle pickup, was unable to get his weaving, skidding car stopped which slammed into the pickup, knocking it about ten or fifteen feet. Andy who had seen the Butler car approaching, apparently out of control, ducked behind the front of his pickup at the instant the collision occurred, thus causing his own car to knock him down and run across his body. The Butler car careened off the slick highway and rolled over the embankment badly damaged but luckily young Butler was apparently unhurt.

He came hurrying up to the Lightle car just as Mrs. Lightle started over to where her husband lay writhing in agony on the asphalt. Her knee had jammed into the dash board and her back and hip bruised more than she at first realized. She would have fallen to the ground as her knee buckled had it not been for Butler who grabbed her and held her up.

About that time our son, Robert Faris, who was on his way up to play for the Elk's New Year's Ball, barely brought our Packard to an exciting and harrowing stop at a spot approximately where the Lightle pickup had been before it was hit. Scared pale, Robert hurridly surveyed the scene. Realizing that an ambulance would be necessary to move the injured man and without taking time to find out even who it was, he hurried on into Lakeview and called the Disaster Car. A doctor and traffic officer were notified and quickly all were at the scene of the accident.

Mixed into the scene a little later was a car driven by Diamond Newman's son of the Westside, and a car driven by Rudy Ekstrom of Willow Ranch whose cars sideswiped trying to pass simultaneously at that congested point where the cars involved were sort of awry upon the highway.

Having had little rest the night before due to worry shock and high nervous tension, Mrs. Lightle, accompanied by her niece, Miss Patricia Furman, went to meet her daughter, Mrs. Helen Tucker who had just arrived from Roseburg early Sunday morning at the Lakeview bus depot when the trio went to the hospital to see Andy. Mrs. Lightle collapsed from nervous exhaustion and possible internal injuries. She has been confined to the hospital for the last three days where she was treated and given a thorough examination.

Last word received of Lightle's condition was from his daughter, Mrs. Violet Smith. She said that Monday night her father had spent his best night—having his first night of rest. His condition has been the more complicated due to the fact that he has a bad heart and is unable to take any anesthetics. It will be remembered also that two or three weeks ago Andy had the mishap of falling into his buzz-saw, gashing his right forearm to the bone. This wound had been healing nicely, however, until the misfortune New Year's Eve. Andy's many friends hope he recovers successfully, even in face of the possibility that he may have difficulty in ever walking again.

New Pine Creek lately has been (sorry to say) well represented at the Lakeview hospital. Besides the Lightles, Dan Fox was taken to the hospital last Saturday morning suffering from a hemorrhaging at the nose. He was still unable to be brought home on Tuesday, Jan. 6th.

When fortune smiles! (Even in a hospital) Mrs. J. T. McDonald Jr. is in the hospital with a $5,000 baby girl—we hear. "Now that ain't bad!" Yes sir—with a family of three boys, Jim and his wife were encouraged by the grandfather, J. T. McDonald Sr. years ago when he told his son he'd give im $20,000 for a baby girl but—those three boys in a row—they had to have something so after they got their share the amount dwindled down to $5,000. But she's here now—winsome Elizabeth McDonald and everybody's happy.

Mrs. Amy Cloud is also in the hospital and she has a new baby boy. It's her third boy too—an 8 pound son born last Sunday morning.

The first Grange meeting of the New Year was held last Saturday evening with the new master, Earl Sanford, presiding. Owing to the joint installation meeting of the Eastern Stars and the Masonic Lodge over at Ft. Bidwell which was attended by quite a few local members as well as several from Willow Ranch, many of whom were grangers, and the basketball grange meeting attendance was somewhat dwarted. However— it was a good, business-like meeting preceded by a warm pot - luck dinner.

A report was made of the Grange Christmas benefit dance which netted $65.25. Treasurer Fred Fisher reported that the building indebtedness had recently been paid off but that the Grange still had a net indebtedness of $320. He felt confident that this amount could be paid off in about six months time and, in general, he thought the New Year outlook for the Eastside Grange was quite favorable.

The members voted to hold a dance as usual during January. The exact date will be left up to the dance committee and will be announced later.

Considerable time was taken up in the meeting discussing the pros and cons of whether or not the Eastside Grange should actively get behind the proposal to build a new courthouse in Lakeview and get the construction underway by May 1st.

It was explained thoroughly by County Treasurer Harvey Sanders that if some definite construction was not started on a new courthouse by May 1st, the Memorial Fund of roughly $160,000 that had been set aside as a building fund, would revert back into the general fund and would no longer be available for a new building. He said that it was immaterial to him, personally, what was done but he could see that if the taxpayers made use of this money now, it would save them a lot of money when it became an absolute necessity that a new building be constructed, in a fire-proof manner (which is certainly not the case now) to house all the county records.

Mr. Sanders brought out the following reasons why action should be taken now: (1) The longer the voters put off building a new courthouse, the dwindling returns from timber sales in the county will throw a greater and greater burden on all property tax-peyers in the county.

In substantiating this assertion he pointed out that in 1946 when a new courthouse proposal was first projected, the sales of Weyerhaeuser timber cuttings alone would have paid 50 per cent of the cost of a new courthouse and that other corporations in the county would have paid 37.6 per cent. By contrast — due to extensive cuttings in the past few years, WTC now would pay only 32 per cent. The dwindling nature of these returns, he said, argues for only one course of action left for the voters and taxpayers. If they are wise they will get busy and see that the construction of a new courthouse is begun right away.

(2) If construction of a new courthouse is not begun before May 1st, he said, this $160,000 will vanish. General taxes might be lowered for a few years but they soon would come back up again as it takes around $400,000 to run the county for a year.

(3) The county jail—housed in the basement of the courthouse for various reasons has been condemned. It is only a matter of time until new provisions will have to be made for a new county jail.

(4) The present courthouse structural capacity is incommodious and inadequate to properly house the important and highly valuable county records.

(6) The building itself is antiquated—having been built in 1909 from plans that had been drawn up in 1879. If the building had been built on then modern and up-to-date plans back in 1909, Lakeview would today have a courthouse that was not only comparable to the Alturas Courthouse but would even be more modern and far surpass the Lakeview structure not only in looks but in accommodative detail, as well.

(6) A five year serial bond levy has been devised (1950) that will provide an additional $192,000 which has been assumed to be sufficient to build a new structure that is wholly adequate to meet the growing needs of Lake County. This plan will keep down interest payments and make the drain lighter on the taxpayer, the treasurer pointed out.

After the discussion a motion was passed that authorized the master to appoint a committee to study the courthouse situation and if the committee deemed it feasible that the people should get behind the movement with no time to be lost, it being to the best interests of the majority of the people who are taxpayers, then that committee should be instructed to draw up a favorable resolution putting the Eastside grange on record as favoring the immediate construction of a new courthouse. It was further added, by Raymond Fisher who made the motion, that a copy of the resolution be sent to each subordinate grange in the county; to the Pomona Grange, to the various Farm Bureau organizations and to the State Grange.

The legislative committee appointed for the year that were designated to handle the above courthouse proposition were: Earl Butler, Fred Fisher and guess who—me. So this committee will investigate and draw up a favorable resolution if the facts warrant same.

Mrs. Fannie Fisher was acting secretary in the place of Mrs. Louise Miller who attended the Star and Masonic joint doings over the hill at Ft. Bidwell. Others from New Pine Creek who attended the Ft. Bidwell installation meeting were: Mrs. Sara Johnston, Mrs. Frankie Williams, Mrs. Ethyl Cundiff, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Cundiff; Mrs. Hazel Sanford and daughter, Helen, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Perry, Mrs. Myra Robnett and Mrs. Margaret Carter, formerly of New Pine Creek but now of Alturas who was installed as the new Worthy Matron of the Eastern Star.

Roy Millsap was installed as the new Worthy Patron, succeeding himself in the office. The meeting began at 7:30 in the evening with a splendid banquet dinner built around several, nice, juicy baked hams and all the ceremonial work was put on beautifully and very impressively.

Hot-dinner lunches were started at the Kelly Creek school Monday, Jan. 5th. This new feature for this school year is proving quite popular with the pupils and many have expressed their delight and enjoyment of same. The lunches are being prepared and handled by Mrs. Zola Partin who seems to know just exactly what she is doing.

Raymond Fisher was recently elected to the New Pine Creek Rural Fire Protection District Board, succeeding Mearle Leehmann whose term expired at the end of the year.

Mrs. Lydia Smith, mother of Roy and Mark Partin, celebrated her 89th birthday last Sunday. A dinner was spread in her honor at the home of Clifford Partin, her grandson. Those present at the birthday dinner were: Mr. and Mrs. Roy Partin; Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Anderson and their two daughters; Jimmy Cogburn, Jim Hanks, Clifford and Zola Partin and their son, Melvin. Mrs. Smith seems to be in fair health and it gives us pleasure to write this item honoring the aged who have been builders of this community.

BED-WETTING IS A SYMPTOM

It has been definitely established that bed-wetting is a symptom of an emotional maladjustment, which can be caused by any of a multitude of simple emotional disturbances.

What is of even greater importance than the cause, however, is the effect in the life of an individual. A bed-wetter often develops introverted habits because of the embarrassment he feels, or, in other cases, he becomes overly aggressive to compensate for his weakness. In the latter case, he reassures himself every time he opposes authority or acts the bully.

Obviously, other unpleasant behaviour traits can develop because bed-wetting is socially embarrassing and thus causes a person to feel insecure about his capabilities.

Fortunately, bed-wetting can now be corrected and often within a few days. The Oregon Psychological Research Foundation has developed a system of treatment which corrects enuresis (bed-wetting) in ninety-seven out of every hundred cases. (The other three can be cured, too, but they may require more time).

For information about how the OPRF system can help your child—call BE 4364 or write: The Oregon Psychological Research Foundation, 1019 S. W. 10th Ave., Portland 5, Ore.

STREAKING FOR THE STRATOSPHERE — Leaving the earth, to attain a speed of more than 1500 miles per hour, this "GAPA" (Ground to Air Pilotless Aircraft) will be tracked by radar, theodolite cameras and special radio instruments. It is one of more than 100 such missiles built by Boeing Aircraft for the U.S. Air Force to explore new type defenses against possible bomber attacks. The missiles were fired at Alamogordo, N.M., in a program that started in 1945 and ended in 1949. They provided valuable knowledge now being utilized by Boeing in a new advanced missile program. This photograph was released for the first time with approval of the Department of Defense.

CROCHETED CAPE SHAWLS

Upper illustration shows the most popular of all the shawls—the big white circular cape enlivened with tiny gilt beads, pearls or glittering sequins. It measures 38 inches in diameter, is done in a big, fast-moving openwork stitch and is pretty as a picture. Use it over a dance frock, make it in soft pastels to use as a flattering bed-cape. Lower illustration (Pattern No. 382) is a natural for teen-agers for party wear as it is trimmed with bright velvet ribbon bows and tie-ons. Pretty in any color!

Send 25 cents for each of the Crocheted Cape Shawls—(Pattern No. 151 or Pattern No. 382) complete crocheting instructions, your name, address, pattern number to Carol Curtis, Herald and News, Box 229, Madison Square Station, New York 10, N.Y.

Todays Women

BY DOROTHY ROE

NEW YORK (AP)—America's fashion capital is staging its semiannual edition of the "Greatest Show on Earth" for visiting editors this week, presenting styles of the new season with all the dramatic trimmings of a Broadway opening.

For about 150 fashion reporters, representing newspapers throughout the United States and abroad, the daily schedule usually begins with an 8 o'clock breakfast showing. It proceeds far into the night, with nary a breathing space for those hard-working gals who try to see every show.

One of the houses usually sure of a full turnout is that of Maurice Rentner, whose openings are accompanied by all the fanfare of a first night at the opera, complete with impressive programs, elaborate lighting, haughty models and a hushed air of reverence. His night showing this time climaxed the opening day of the industry's "Press Week" and was definitely gala.

Among his innovations for the spring season are the butterfly sleeve, the demijacket and the standoff collar.

Following the general trend toward sleeve interest notable in most collections this season, Rentner shows sleeves with floating flounces from the elbow, giving a winged look to the silhouette.

His demijacket is hardly a jacket at all. As he puts it, it's "a mere half jacket caressing the shoulders." Usually it is a coverup device concealing a daring decollete on dress or blouse beneath.

The standoff collar stands away from the neck, as the name indicates, making a frame for the shoulders.

He shows a series of slim, molded dresses with full panel backs, presents a group of suave dressmaker suits cut on slim lines with discreet touches of white or jeweled trim, accents the importance of draped chiffon for cocktail and evening wear.

Not on the official schedule of the New York Dress Institute but enthusiastically applauded by visiting editors is the collection of Vera Maxwell, whose casual skill with tweeds has won her a following of well-dressed women throughout the country.

A handsome career woman who wears her own clothes, Miss Maxwell believes most U. S. women like casual, functional garments without frills and handsome fabrics and fine tailoring are of first importance.

She works with fabric manufacturers to obtain exclusive colors and weaves in her woolens, blends them with a masterly hand and turns out the kind of suits, costumes and coats that women boast they "live in."

This year she is showing ensemble combinations of short coat and sheer wool dress, long coat, skirt and blouse and two-piece dress with harmonizing topper.

Outstanding is her "Bostonian" ensemble—a slim gray flannel coat with matching skirt and a harmonizing blouse. Another group of interchangeable coats, jackets and skirts is in lightweight camel's hair. As always, her tweeds are stubble in color and handling.

Chiloquin

By DARLENE WOLF

Roy Gienger returned early this week from south of Willows, Calif., where he made arrangements to pasture the Gienger and son cattle for the remainder of the winter. Since then they have been rounding up cattle, getting them vaccinated and shipped.

Vince Bosner Sr., who has been living this winter in the parsonage of the Assembly of God church, this week replaced the windows of the church, which some person shot out with a gun several months ago. All during the fall and early winter services have been held in the windowless building.

From Seattle comes word of the Nov. 20 birth of a tiny (less than five pounds) son to Mr. and Mrs. Harlin Lindstrand (the former Marlene Johnson). Maternal grandparents of young Norman Alan, the first grandchild, are Rev. and Mrs. E. W. Johnson of Everett, Wash., past pastor of the local Bible Standard church.

Recently moving to the Williamson River district are Mr. and Mrs. Bill Kellogg and her young son Dennis, a third grader. Kellogg is a mechanic for Tulana Farms.

Jan. 13 is the date set for the Chiloquin basketball team to meet the Harlem Globemasters. The evening promises to be full of fun and a huge crowd is expected to attend.

Sunday evening, Jan. 18, the Methodist Church congregation is planning a kickoff for the 1953 advance movement. A potluck dinner will be held in the church basement at 6 p.m. followed by a 65-minute film entitled "All That I Have." Everyone is invited to attend.

Last Saturday Mr. and Mrs. Frank DiUlio, their four children and Mrs. DiUlio's mother, Mrs. James Bowman, drove to Bend to visit Mrs. DiUlio's brother, sister-in-law, and six-weeks-old baby girl, the Charles Bowman family. They stopped in Crescent on the way back to visit another brother, Mr. and Mrs. Orin Bowman, Debbie and Ronnie.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Markley (Jennie Erickson), married in Roseburg earlier in the week, were guests over New Years Day with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Erickson. The Markleys left for Seattle and from there he reports for work in Coos Bay.

Rev. and Mrs. David Sutton took a group of young people to Eugene to attend a statewide young peoples' rally of the Bible Standard Church. The program began with a watchnight service New Year's Eve, continued all day Jan. 1. Going from here were Edward Braulacht, John, Jim and Karen Wilson, David and Naomi Johnson, Kenny Reed, Louise Niehaus, Jack Jones, the Suttons and their daughters. Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Mangum attended part time after driving to Silverton to visit with former Chiloquin residents, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Albert.

Mr. and Mrs. David Lundeen and daughters are in Western Washington on a week's holiday, visiting with relatives of Lundeen.

Rev. David Sutton announces a special speaker for Sunday evening, Jan. 25. Lawrence Smith, state president of the youth group, and a senior at the church college, will preach. He is an accomplished singer and plays an electric guitar. He is accompanied by his wife, who plays the bass viol. Everyone is invited to attend.

Marlene Norris, eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Norris, is in a cast for eight weeks. She fell the day school was out, Dec. 19, and broke her leg in such a way that doctors advised a cast on both legs so she wouldn't move. She is planning to keep up her school work at home so we won't get behind her class.

Wayne DuBois and Joe Ball Jr., were both omitted from the list of local students home for vacation from college. Wayne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill DuBois, is a freshman at Bible Standard College in Eugene. He has been going to school and working part time, but is going to stay at home now and is working for the Chiloquin garage. Joe is a junior at Santa Clara University in California. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ball Sr., of San Creek station on Highway 97 north of town.

There was such a wind accompanying the snow storm on Tuesday night and Wednesday that Mrs. Roblin Pheiffer was unable to bring the bus to school. At about 8 a.m. the sky cleared so Mrs. Pheiffer drove her car to school and picked up a few youngsters along the way. The storm near Chiloquin was not so severe so the other busses came in on time.
