State Studies Discrimination
 SALEM (AP)—The State Labor Department reported Tuesday that in at least six cases other state department heads had discriminated against job applicants because of their race.
 Mark Smith, deputy state labor commissioner with the State Fair Employment Practices Division, reported that the six cases of discrimination in state departments and institutions had been turned up in investigation of eight cases where discrimination was claimed.
 In each of the six cases the department head said that the discrimination had been condoned on the ground the public would object to dealing with non-white state employees—despite the fact that Oregon law forbids discrimination because of race, religion, color or national origin.
 "When state officials do not set a good example in complying with the Fair Employment Practices Act, they jeopardize the good name of the people of Oregon," Smith said.

Child Protests Street Sanding
 GLEN COVE, N. Y. (AP)—The City Council last night received this letter from 8-year-old James Curran III:
 "I want to complain about the way all the streets are sanded every time it rains. Why can't one street be blocked off in each section for sleigh riding?"
 Mayor Joseph A. Stano ordered his public works and public safety commissioners to make a survey.

Fire Sweeps Nursing Home
 WARREN, Pa. (AP)—An elderly woman is dead and six others—four of them children—are missing in the wake of a wind-whipped fire which early today destroyed an isolated 14 room nursing home near this Western Pennsylvania city.
 The blaze was discovered shortly after midnight. Firemen from nearby Youngville said the two-story frame building was enveloped in flames when they arrived.
 Louis Heath, who lived in the home, said he rushed to the scene and carried Mrs. Mary McCormick, 53, of Union City, to safety. Mrs. J. A. McCoy, 69, who had operated the nursing home for more than 19 years, said she escaped through a side door.
 J. E. Chapel, Youngville police chief, identified the dead woman as Mrs. Nettie Clark, 80, formerly of Youngville. Chapel said she died a few minutes after being rescued from the blaze. He listed the missing as:
 Mrs. Maude Stroupe, 75, formerly of Clintonville, and Merle Nourse, 70, both patients at the home for more than eight years and their niece and nephew of Mrs. McCoy; James Durlin, 12; his brothers Thomas, 19, and Joseph, 14, and a sister, Jo Ann, 16.
 Patricia Durlin, 15, another sister, climbed down a fire escape to safety. The Durlin children are orphans.
 "This is horrible. Everything is destroyed. There is just a thick pile of glowing rubble there now," Firmin combed the smoldering debris through the night searching for bones.
 Firemen said the blaze apparently started on the first floor where two coal stoves were used to heat the entire building.
 Mrs. McCoy had been caring for the Durlin children since the death of their parents about a year ago.

Litter Born Aboard Ship
 ABOARD USS ORISKANY, Korea (AP)—Schatzie, 2-year-old natchund, was the only dog aboard this flat-top—until she gave birth the other day to four pups.
 Eyebrows tilted all over the ship. One sailor volunteered, "It could have happened during shore leave."

Dairymen Seek Law
 CORVALLIS (AP)—The Oregon Dairymen's Association may ask the Legislature to make it illegal to use a name associated with dairy products for frozen confections made of vegetable fats.
 The association's resolution committee reported at the group's convention here Tuesday that such an amendment to the state milk control law was being prepared.
 Convention speakers said that vegetable fats were making inroads on the dairy industry. R. S. Waltz, Seattle dairyman, said margarine had taken over half of the butter market and that the vegetable fat interests were threatening the ice cream market. He urged legislation to curb the sale of vegetable fat products "the consumer thinks are ice cream."
 P. M. Brant, of the Oregon State College dairy department, said the dairy industry, instead of trying to obtain legislation to limit the sale of vegetable fat products, should obtain legislation to give "the industry and the public protection against fraud."

1953 Cadillac 62 Coupe de Ville is characterized by graceful airiness and handsome interiors. Cadillac engineers achieve gasoline economy plus added acceleration and versatility of performance through their 210 horsepower engine for 1953. A new 8.25 to 1 compression ratio, high valve lifts, 12 volt electrical system and a low 3.07 to 1 rear axle ratio combine to deliver new efficiency and driving satisfaction. Air Conditioning, which Cadillac engineers introduce this year heads a list of optional effort-saving features.

Smith Wants Quiet Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.) moved Wednesday to countermand a decision by Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) to hold "wide open" hearing on proposed revision of the Taft-Hartley Act.
 Smith told a reporter he believes agreement can be reached between the two sides. He said he would like to see some amendments which could be placed before the Senate without any extensive hearings.
 He mentioned as an example an extension of the Communist oath requirement to employers and lifting of the ban against strikers voting in a union representation case.
 Taft, who turned over the Senate Labor Committee chairmanship to Smith upon being chosen Republican leader, said he had discussed the matter with the New Jersey senator but wasn't sure the plan would work.
 "If the committee brings in some amendments, other people are likely to offer some others, and we would have a flood of them on the floor," Taft said.

TV Harder Than Movies, Agree Abbot, Costello

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Bud Abbott and Lou Costello agree so much that sometimes you can't tell when it's part of the act and when it's for real.
 "I realized this when I had lunch with them during a break in their TV rehearsal. They were jokingly japed by a large audience, consisting of their producer, writers, etc., and both boys were in good argumentative form."
 "I started with the Limburger cheese."
 "Bud was having a dish of Limburger with raw onion as a chaser. This pained Lou, who put a napkin over the program: 'Repeat: It's dead,' said Lou. 'Let's give it a decent burial.'"
 "Cut it out!" snapped Bud. "That cheese doesn't smell." This touched off a heated exchange that lasted several minutes.
 After the battle cooled off, I put forth the question of whether it's harder to make the public laugh today.
 "Absolutely," replied Bud. "With all the war and taxes and unrest in the world, people don't laugh as readily as they used to."
 "I disagree," countered Lou, who used to be the fat one but who has slimmed down to Abbott's size. "I think people are more eager to laugh than ever before—because of all their troubles."
 "You're nuts," answered Bud. "I'll tell you another reason it's harder to make people laugh today. Thanks to TV, more people are getting more entertainment than ever before in history. Something's got to be really funny or they'll switch the dial to another program."
 They argued this back and forth for a while. About the only thing they could agree on was: TV is wonderful.
 "Ten or 12 years ago, we'd get mobbed wherever we went because 'After a few years, that sort of thing died down. But now we're getting it all over again.'"
 "I just took a trip east. When I stopped over in Chicago, I had to make my way through the kids. When I walked through the lobby of the Waldorf-Astoria in New York, it was a mob scene."
 "The same thing happens here in town. I used to take my kid to the amusement park with no trouble at all. Now I can't go there unless I want to sit down and write autographs for an hour."
 Both comics agreed that they work hard for the new revival of their careers. Their show looks like a breezy, easy hour. But Lou said, "I'd rather make a feature picture than do one live show on TV."
 "TV is actually harder work than pictures. Before starting to prepare for a show, I go in training—just like a prize fighter. I'm constantly working on new ideas for the show."
 The boys are keeping up their strenuous schedule. During the last of the year, they will do several more live TV hours, 26 half-hour films for TV, two or three movies for theaters and also play the El Rancho Vegas in Las Vegas, their first night club date in several years.
 "Don't they ever run out of material?"

New Freight Line Here

A new general commodity freight service which will offer Klamath Falls merchants overnight service to Reno, Susanville, Westwood and Chester Calif., began operation today in Klamath Falls.
 The new company is the Nevada California Transportation Co. and has been operating in Nevada since 1913. It is under the ownership of the J. R. Gimocchio family and has been since its inception in 1913.
 Earl Cassidy, agent for the line, says the terminal here will be located in the People's Warehouse and all pick ups and deliveries will be arranged from there.
 Cassidy added that another of the specialty services of the freight line is the transportation of high explosives.

Drake Seeks Swan's Job

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—A Drake hopes to succeed a Swan as a city councilman.
 Thomas D. Drake, retired Army colonel, yesterday took out nomination papers for First District councilman.
 Vice Mayor Franklin F. Swan has announced he will not seek a second term as councilman from the First District.
 At the time the case was dismissed, Davis said the action was taken "at the direction of and on the authorization of the attorney general after due consideration of the department of Justice and the parties involved." He said last night he had insisted on getting written instructions from Washington.
 Clark was head of the Criminal Division when the indictment was returned. He was attorney general

Congressional Investigators New Charges of Influence

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congressional investigators pushed along today on new trails of influence peddling and Justice Department operations and indications Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark and Sen. Morse (Ind-Ore) eventually will testify.
 The developments:
 1. A House Judiciary subcommittee wanted arrival of a file from Atty. Gen. McGrath on a mail fraud case which the Justice Department junked in 1948.
 2. Aides of the House group and the Senate investigations committee named hands in closed door questioning of a public relations man about what one member termed "an influence peddling ring on the West Coast."
 Rep. Keating (R-N.Y.) failed to succeed Rep. Chertoff (D-N.Y.) as chairman of the House probe when they organized, told newsmen the witness is Russell Duke of Portland, Ore., and San Francisco.
 He said Duke faced a day of questioning about his operations and relations with Morse, the Oregon senator who broke with the GOP during the presidential race and a Washington lawyer, Edward P. Morgan.
 It was Keating, too, who said it is essential that Clark be questioned about the mail fraud case dismissed.
 McGrath announced last night he will give the committee the file concerning the indictment of Roy E. Cramer and to other individuals along with the R. E. Cramer Company and the Cramer Company by a federal grand jury at Topeka, Kan., in August, 1944.
 Justice files showed that Cramer and co-defendants were charged with scheming "in default bondholders of Citrus County, Fla., and the town of Panama City, Fla., and using the mails to execute their scheme." The government said at the time the Panama City refunding case involved $1,000,000 and the Citrus County refunding case $1,511,000.
 A Circuit Court of Appeals, reversing a trial court's finding, held the indictment "was a good pleading."
 Then, on June 10, 1946, the government had the charges dismissed.
 U. S. Atty. Eugene Davis helped prepare the case as an assistant prosecutor, said at Wichita last night that "we were positive we had a good case against Cramer, we were charged at the order to dismiss."
 The government had charged that Cramer and his associates obtained some old bonds on which interest had been defaulted during the Florida boom collapse and refunded them at a lower interest rate. The bondholders got their principal and some interest, the government said, but not the defaulted interest.
 Cramer said a valuable service had been rendered the bondholders and only a small profit made.
 At the time the case was dismissed, Davis said the action was taken "at the direction of and on the authorization of the attorney general after due consideration of the department of Justice and the parties involved." He said last night he had insisted on getting written instructions from Washington.
 Clark was head of the Criminal Division when the indictment was returned. He was attorney general

Women Lose Tax Cases

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two Portland women operators of a hair-dressing chain, were turned down Tuesday by the U. S. Court of Claims in their effort to reclaim what they said was overpayment of income taxes.
 The women, Ruth Barnell and Beatrice Cook, formerly operated the chain of salons which was closed during the summer of 1951 in one of a series of raids against what police said were abortion clinics.
 Miss Barnell was convicted of maintaining an establishment where an abortion was performed, she appealed the conviction.
 Shortly after her arrest the government filed a claim against her for $1,363.355 and against Miss Cook for $291,620 for unpaid income taxes, interest and penalties.
 The women had contended that they overpaid their taxes, were entitled to rebates and that the government's claims should be dropped.
 The court rejected a plea that the government had not set forth the details on which the claim for additional taxes had been based, stating that the commissioner of internal revenue had filed in March 1952, a notice setting forth the details of the claim.
