

Pope Honors Sixteen New Cardinals

By FRANK BRUTTO
 VATICAN CITY (AP) — Against a background of blazing lights and the color of medieval pageantry, Pope Pius XII today placed red hats on the heads of 16 of the 21 Roman Catholic cardinals he created this week.

Among those honored in the ceremony in St. Peter's great basilica was the United States' first Far-Western prince of the church — James Francis Cardinal McIntyre, archbishop of Los Angeles.

The pontiff smiled affectionately at the American prelate after reciting over his bowed, cowl-covered head the ancient Latin words which accompany the presentation of the red hat, the special symbol of cardinal rank.

Cardinal McIntyre's face was radiant as he returned to his place among the other new princes of the church.

Some 35,000 pilgrims and Romans of high and humble rank thronged the world's largest church for the ceremony.

They broke into triumphant cries of "Viva il Papa" as the Pope appeared in the basilica moments after blasts from silver trumpets heralded his approach.

The pontiff, robed in red and white, was borne into the church on his portable throne. A gleaming golden mitre was on his head.

Shouts of praise broke again and again from the faithful, held back from the middle aisle of the basilica by uniformed Swiss guards carrying ancient halberds and wearing medieval helmets.

The red-damask-draped church sparkled with myriad lights.

Outside, a slight flurry of snow fell over Rome as the ceremony began. Huge St. Peter's Square was surprisingly empty.

Only the absence of two of the new princes of the church had not been able to come here from their Communist-ruled countries, Yugoslavia and Poland, marred the ancient, picturesque ceremony.

Other presentation ceremonies were arranged for the six other new cardinals—the apostolic nuncios to Spain, France, Italy, and Portugal and two Spanish prelates.

The attacks besetting the church from communism were underlined here today when a Rome Communist newspaper lashed at Francis Cardinal Spellman of New York — who flew here from Korea — as a "chaplains of aggression."

The newspaper, Il Paese, also charged that the consistory "emphasized above all the political aspects of the church." At the initial consistory Monday at which he named the new cardinals, the Pope declared that none of his selections were politically motivated.

His words primarily were in reply to Communist-ruled Yugoslavia, whose government broke relations with the Vatican after learning that Archbishop Alojzije Stepinac of Zagreb, storm center of a Yugoslav church-state dispute, was included in the list of new cardinals.

Stepinac, who was released conditionally last year after serving five years of a 16-year sentence for alleged wartime collaboration with the Nazis, was one of the two new cardinals from Red-ruled countries absent from the consistory. The other was Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski, primate of Poland.

Yacht Club Slates Vote

A new commodore will fly the Klamath Yacht Club flag after Jan. 17. He and other officers for 1953 will be installed at 8:30 p. m. by L. Orin Sismore, past commodore, who will also be master of ceremonies.

The party is for members only, and a large attendance is expected to cast ballots for new officers. All ballots must be in by 8 p. m.

Elbert Siles, director, assisted by other board members, Robert O. Sproat, Robert Waggoner, Wesley Guderian and Louis Kandra, Lloyd Derby, secretary; Bruce Davis, treasurer; and Maury Clark, house committee, have planned a cocktail hour from 6:30 until 7:30, and dinner from then until 8:30, but members are warned to be on time for dinner — no food will be served after 8:30.

Kathryn Halaas will play during the dinner hour, and dance music by Sync Halaas will start at 10.

Howard Pernel is the outgoing commodore, and Dr. Neil Black vice commodore.

Hutton is Changed Girl; Says She'll Win Oscar

By JAMES BACON
 (For Bob Thomas)

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "I'll win an Academy Award one of these days. I know I will."

That's the new and emancipated Betty Hutton talking. And when Betty talks, there's not much a reporter can do but sit back, listen and usually agree with her.

"I know that sounds cocky," explains the bouncy blonde from Battle Creek. "I don't mean it to be. I'm just so intense about everything I do—and so hard to please—that it's just bound to happen."

Betty, like most successful graduates of the hard knocks school, is more self-confident than conceited. When she says she's going to win an Oscar, it's like Babe Ruth at home plate waving his bat in the direction of the center-field bleachers.

"The main reason I left Paramount," she confides, "was because I couldn't convince them over there that I could act."

Ironically, her best Paramount picture in years, "Somebody Loves Me," was her last for the studio.

The studio wanted her to do "Topsy and Eva," the story of the Duncan Sisters. There was a front-office hassle over the script one day and suddenly it was announced that Betty and Paramount had parted after 12 years.

"I know people around town thought it was a little screwy for chucking $5,000 a week but I just couldn't go on playing crazy blondes the rest of my life."

Betty had one of the choice studio contracts around town. She got paid the year round instead of the usual 40 weeks.

"The money didn't bother me," she discloses, "because I can make as much in eight weeks with my stage show as I could in a year with the studio."

She and her husband Charles O'Curran have formed a new corporation wherein the Hutton stage show goes on the road like a circus. They even rent the theaters themselves. It's opening this week in San Francisco.

I asked her if there was any truth to the reports that the Paramount hassle followed her insistence that O'Curran direct "Topsy and Eva." Some columnist had printed rumors that co-star Ginger Rogers refused to be directed by O'Curran.

It seems that in Hollywood, the land of choice closeups and camera angles, one feminine star doesn't want the other star's husband calling the shots. It was no reflection on O'Curran, a very talented director.

"Nothing to it," answered Betty, holding up her right hand. "The whole trouble was over script. I'll argue like hell when I know I'm right." She apparently was right because the Duncan Sisters story since has been shelved at Paramount.

She says the only fight she had at Paramount was trying to get O'Curran's contract broken.

"They were glad to drop a hot potato like me but they wanted to hang onto Charlie. He didn't need me but I needed him to stage my road show."

The O'Curran-Hutton combine also is incorporating for movies and television. Betty owns the rights to make a movie of Sophie Tucker's life. She's holding off on television until she gets the right formula.

"I'm nuts about corporations," exude Betty. "I've been supporting my family since I was a kid. I have a business head on me. I'll bet you'll go away from here thinking I'm not a lame-brained blonde after all."

Jury Indicts 'Grandmother'

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Grandma the Bank Bandit—Mrs. Ethel Arata, once the heiress of millions — is under federal grand jury indictment on bank robbery charges.

Mrs. Arata, 52, who is no grandma at all, is the daughter of the late Robert Catta, New York multimillionaire who lost his fortune in the 1929 crash. She said she gave away most of the bank loot.

Her attorney said she will plead innocent on the novel grounds that she acted under an uncontrollable love for the human race.

She was indicted on three counts yesterday.

Trash Taken In Baltimore

BALTIMORE (AP)—City collections of garbage and trash began here today for the first time since city laborers went on strike two weeks ago.

Yesterday, the city severed all connections with the AFL union representing the strikers and ordered workers to be back by tomorrow or forfeit their jobs.

There were some indications yesterday of a back-to-work movement. The park board said 93 strikers returned and the city labor staff reported that about 35 city employees either came into the office or telephoned to ask how they could get back their jobs.

The strike began Jan. 1 over a wage dispute. The workers, making from $1.19 to $1.22 1/2 per hour, asked a 9 per cent wage boost.

Mayor Thomas d'Alessandro, a Democrat, told them the city had no money for a wage increase. The striking employees include garbage and trash collectors, school janitors and engineers and repairmen on the city water and sewage system.

PICKUP RECOVERED

A 1950 Chevrolet pickup stolen from Albany, Ore., was recovered here last night. It was left on a lot adjacent to the Smith auto shop last Saturday, and towed in by City Police last night.
