LOVE THAT PARADE!: President Eisenhower, standing in front car, and Vice President Nixon, in second, wave to cheering crowds as the Inaugural cavalcade rolls down Pennsylvania avenue.

Starlings Heckle Officials

LOVINGTON, N. M. (AP) — Jesse Benon figures he'll just have to get a grip on his patience and wait until the horde of starlings leaves.

The normally mild-mannered Courthouse custodian has just had his annual go-round with the Lea County Commission about the pests.

He'll have to bear with the raucous screams of the small, speckled birds until they decide they like some place else better.

The session with the commission started quietly enough.

"Jesse," asked Commissioner Carl Denon, "what have you done about those starlings?"

Jesse rose from his chair, staring at the commission with a glare usually reserved for those who walk on public lawns.

"I've thought about them. I've dreamed about them. And I've called to the Lord about them," Jesse declared.

"Every morning at daylight they leave those trees and I take hope. Then, every evening they return and bring back a lot of friends from West Texas.

"I have come to think that starlings were just created to cooperate with county commissioners in driving custodians crazy.

"We tried shooting them with a shotgun, but you shoot 18 and up in the air go 999,982 live ones, laughing fit to kill. Long after the last shotgun shell in Lea County is fired, we still will have plenty of starlings in those mulberry trees.

"Last year we tried Roman candles. They got used to them, and now I think trey bring their friends up from old Mexico to see the fireworks."

"How about putting aluminum owls in the trees," Denson asked.

"These birds of ours wouldn't be afraid of stainless steel owls," opined Jesse. "I think they got crossed with eagle. They just plain ain't afraid of anything.

"You and I'll just have to wait until they leave in March."

"Where do they go?" asked Denson. "Back to Capistrano?"

Jesse turned indignantly to leave.

"I know where I wish they'd go!" he tossed over his shoulder.

Men Escape State Hospital

KINGS PARK, N. Y. (AP)—Seventeen male patients early today smashed their way out of Kings Park State Hospital, a mental institution, and 11 were reported recaptured within a few hours.

A police alarm described the 17 as "violent." A staff physician at the hospital, Dr. Murray Rossman, classed them as "mentally disturbed" but he declined to state in what degree.

The bolting patients wrecked all the furnishings of their second-floor ward. One chased a doctor with a broken piece of a bed. He and the five attendants on duty in the ward escaped harm.

The patients, quartered in a room with barred windows, broke down a door leading to a corridor and ran out into a snow and sleet storm.

Two were caught on the hospital grounds, and nine others within a few miles from here — some at Long Island Rail Road stations. All submitted without a struggle.

WIDOW SUES

NEW YORK (AP)—The widow of former War Secretary Robert P. Patterson, killed a year ago today in a plane crash at South Elizabeth, N. J., has filed a $2,685,000 suit against American Airlines, charging the crash was "caused by the negligence, carelessness and recklessnes of the defendant."

Lewis Has Serious Side; Wants to be Lovable 'Lad'

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Behind the Screen: It may set off more battles with bossman Hal Wallis, but Jerry Lewis is determined to stick to the Chaplinesque character that he tried for the first time in "The Stooge," the best of all the Martin and Lewis comedies.

It will be a lovable, wistful Jerry, with a minimum of pratfalls, mugging and seltzer water from now on out, and he's saying:

"I can't argue with the public or Mr. Wallis that with a pie in the face you get laughs. But I say that you get as much laughter with pathos and heart. A dramatic actor can be so-so for 30 years. A comedian can't be so-so for 30 days.

"I'm thinking about the future. The public may take the pie in the face for two years. But they'll take a beloved schnook character for 30 years. True humor comes out of real situations. You can't force comedy."

Any Jerry admits, "Maybe it's a loosing battle—I'm fighting. But I'm going to fight. It's just as funny to be the little schnook that everybody loves as a guy with water squirting out of his arms."

Marilyn Monroe started it and now Suzan Ball's caught the fever.

I mean the yen of Hollywood's super-sexy dolls to wax intellectual, but Reinhardt notebooks at auctions, carry high-toned poetry under their arms and behave as though they had never heard of a girl named Lana Turner.

Suzan, who's being given the works by U-I as the brunette answer to Marilyn, confessed:

"I don't want to be sold as Miss Sex Appeal of 1953. I want to delast, I want to be a good actress. That requires at least 10 years of hard work and study.

"They can cut my gowns as low as they like, but I refuse to just be another movie star. It's easy to be a movie star. You just sit around with your chest out and smile."

Look who's hankering for fame in the saddle—gritty-voiced Aldo Ray, the former constable of Crockett, Calif., who hit pay dirt with Judy Holliday in "The Marrying Kind."

Aldo has his eye on Columbia's "Jubal Troop" and adds:

"I'm not what you call a rider's rider. But I used to ride the hoofs off the farmers' horses up at Crockett. I've been in sophisticated pictures up to now. There's a whole audience I haven't tapped."

Aldo's a gold prospector with lots of nuggets in "Let's Do It Again" with Jane Wyman and Ray Milland, and he's knocking on wood about his luck in not being pushed into romantic roles.

"This way you last a lot longer," he says. "The studio could so easily have schmoed things up by making me a lover."

Colette Marchand, the French ooh-la-look who leaped from the Ballet de Paris into a dramatic role in "Moulin Rouge," will not be going on with her career as a dramatic dazzler.

She's been turning down studio offers with the explanation:

"I don' theenk I'll be able to geeve up dahncing, even eff I wan' to. I'm all tied up now becuz I'm not dahncing. I can't stop eet—dahncing, I mean. My work ees ballet. People say now you be great ahctress. But, no. Maybe one more peecture with John 'Uston, who onderstan' me, maybe one peecture in wheech I can ahct and dahnce. My beeg love ees ballet."

Gorgeous Colette earned the nickname "Legs" when she toured the U.S. with the Ballet de Paris but she protests:

"Eet moch embarrass me — I 'ave two legs like every ozzer woman."

Dewey Martin, who hit stardom in "The Big Sky," has persuaded his boss, Howard Hawks, to let shed the mystery cloak.

The 29-year-old newcomer played it the Marlon Brando-Montgomery Clift way for a time on the advice of Hawks, then decided that being a male Garbo wasn't getting him anywhere.

"I got letters after 'The Big Sky,' asking why all the mystery about me," Dewey explained. "Now I'm being permitted to have interviews and cooperate with the fan magazines. All I ask is that they don't photograph me in the kitchen with an apron tied around me. I'm not a domesticated person."

Dewey's next film: The Hemingway story, "The Sun Also Rises," to be shot in Spain.

Niteries who play the team of Petrillo and Mitchell, the comics who have patterned themselves after Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis, are being informed by D and J that they will never play the clubs again. A big Las Vegas hotel is first on the blacklist.

Bull Rated At $70 Thousand

DENVER (AP) — The record-setting 47th annual National Western Stock Show recorded sale of a half interest in a Hereford bull for $35,000, Wednesday.

Another record was set with the sale of the show's grand champion steer for $3.40 per pound.

The half-interest in MW Prince Larry 99th was purchased by the Double M. Hereford Ranch of Phoenix, Ariz. The sale was made privately.

The $35,000 half-interest was considered to place the value of the bull at $70,000, which tops the National Western's previous high of $50,000. The two ranches will share the bull.

The 1,000-pound grand champion steer was sold by Father Flanagan's Boys Home at Boys Town, Neb., to the Hotel Bassett and Range Cafe of Bassett, Neb.

Boys Town also disposed of its grand champion and reserve champion carloads of fat steers, 15 herefords to each load. The champion load, averaging 1,029 pounds per head, went to King Soopers, Inc., Denver grocery chain, for 48 cents per pound.

The reserve championship bunch, averaging 1,051 pounds, was bought by the Wolhurst Saddle Club of Littleton, Colo., for 35 cents per pound.

Angus bulls were auctioned Wednesday at an average of $1,086 each.

Sale of 209 Hereford bulls and cows averaged $2,911 per animal.

Morse Fears Food Shortage

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soil conservation and increased food production will be necessary to feed an expected population of more than 200 million persons by 1975, Sen. Morse (Ind-Ore) said here Wednesday night.

Morse said at a banquet of the National Agriculture Limestone Institute, Inc., that present farm production is not enough to meet the demand to be created by the additional population.

He urged congressional action "to strengthen our national defense through further protection of our topsoil."

One of the nation's greatest assets is its surplus food potential, he said.
