Death Claims Mrs. Cone

Word was received here today by Mrs. Frank Ferrerio of the death last night, in Reno, of Mrs. Marie Ross Cone, 81, long-time resident of Klamath Falls. She had made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Victor Jacobs, Reno, for the past two years. Her death followed a lengthy illness.

Mrs. Cone was the widow of the late Thompson Cone, employed here by the postal service for many years. They came to Klamath Falls in 1923 and Mrs. Cone became immediately interested in art, opening a studio on Main Street where she taught painting to many people throughout the Klamath Country.

Funeral services are being held Tuesday in Reno. Two grandchildren and four great-grandchildren survive in addition to her daughter. A son Paul died here about two years ago.

U.N. Worker To Talk Here

Ereast B. Kallibala, son of an African chief and now a noted scholar, is to make two addresses here tomorrow. His first appearance will be at Peace Memorial Church, 11 a.m., and his second at the First Presbyterian Church, 2 p.m. Kallibala's visit here is sponsored by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Baird Rustin, originally scheduled for the two talks, was unable to come because of illness.

Kallibala lived a tribal life in Uganda, East Africa, until he was six years of age. Kallibala was educated in African missionary schools and eventually became an instructor in one of the schools, Mengo High School.

Later, he came to the United States and won a master's degree. At present, Kallibala is in charge of the Africa Section of the United Nations Department of Technical Assistance.

HOWARD S. SWAN (above) is to direct the combined Occidental College glee clubs in concert at the First Presbyterian Church here Monday, 8 p.m.

Church Gets New Officers

New officers were recently installed in Zion Lutheran Church here. They are: Ed Smith, president; Lynn Fleman, secretary; Bob Rutter, treasurer; Frank Eberlein, Bill Ronfield and W. Roemhildt, elders; Harold Eberlein, Bill Kirchner, John Mathes, trustees; Murray Colvin, head usher; Glen Buchanan, member of the Finance Committee.

Officers of the Women's Guild who were also installed are: Mrs. Virginia Rutter, president; Mrs. Merritt Schilling, secretary. These officers were installed in impressive ceremonies during which Sunday School teachers, Altar Guild members, and the choir received special mention. The sermon was delivered by the Rev. Richard Graef, who reminded the congregation that the virtues of faith, love and hope by which Christ intended His church to function imply hard work, dogged endurance and solid achievement.

The pastor cited the material and spiritual progress of 1952 and urged cooperative enterprise and effort to continue that progress in the new year.

Watch Your Pocketbook!

"Gentlemen, watch your wallet!" A good warning anytime, but Feb. 9 those attending the Knife and Fork Club dinner in the Willard had better do just that. Featured speaker is to be one of the most fabulous pickpockets of all time, while an active humorist can "flick anything that isn't nailed down."

Fred Rorer was schooled in some of Europe's top underground pickpocket academies, practiced the trade for show and then turned to assisting law enforcement agencies.

Among his victims are such notables as Alben W. Barkley, Thomas E. Dewey, Herbert Hoover, Charles E. Wilson and Eddie Cantor. FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover once said of his act: "I want you to know how deeply we appreciated it."

Rorer prefers to work on celebrities—but anyone will do.

Service Men's Service Set

A special Servicemen's Fellowship service is to be observed at the Free Methodist Church here tomorrow, according to the Rev. Fred C. Neumann.

The nationwide movement sponsored by Free Methodists is designed especially for youth of the country who are actively serving in the armed forces.

There is to be a special prayer at the morning service here tomorrow for parents of servicemen.

Firemen Have Two Minor Calls

City firemen had two minor calls in the wee hours of this morning.

The first, at 12:49 a.m. to 845 Broad, was to stand by while workmen were repairing a broken gas line in the street, and the second was at 2:45 a.m. to the Chet Bernan residence, 347 Pacific Terrace, where a hot motor in the basement aroused the family.

Army Rejects Potato Bids

An Army quartermaster's order for better than 50 cars of crated potatoes was withdrawn here yesterday with all bids rejected, reportedly to be resubmitted Monday for a lower bid.

Crated potatoes have been holding fairly high in price, and though there isn't much movement in sack trade, buyers have indicated the price is still pretty fair. Trouble is no one wants them at the moment.

The bids offered the quartermaster for crated spuds ranged roughly from $5.12 to $5.26, according to reports received here. That means about $3.70 to $3.85 to the grower for crated spuds, one buyer said. Shippers furnish the expensive crates.

The bids Monday might go higher, but the thinking was the market would weaken a little. Warm weather may increase potato storage problems, which in turn may up shipping from this area. Though 65 cars were checked out yesterday through the Oregon Department of Agriculture's shipping point inspection service, about half were crated shipments from earlier contracts.

Feeling among buyers and other potato market observers here is that prices should hold steady for the rest of the season. Some reported today prices probably won't rise too much through the rest of the season unless something happens, but at the same time they said prices probably won't decline, either.

Old Lawsuit Set Monday

A lawsuit that has been hanging in the air for a half year is scheduled for trial before a jury in Circuit Court Monday.

It was brought by a Medford concern, the Tri-Mix Concrete Company, against L. H. Perkins and Blanche Perkins, now of Klamath Falls, former owners of a small farm near Central Point, in Jackson County.

The suit was filed July 1, 1948. The company claims it leveled 24 acres of land for Perkins in the late fall of 1946, and wants $600 for its pay and $5 for equipment hauling.

In reply, the defendants claim that the job the company was hired to do was to excavate a reservoir so that rainwater could be caught and stored for irrigation, and the land-leveling they claim the company leveled the land, but didn't dig out the reservoir, and want $1,000 damages for that failure.

The company is represented by attorney Hugh B. Collins of Medford, Mr. and Mrs. Perkins by A. C. Yaden of Klamath Falls.

Annual KPCA Meet Feb. 14

One of the largest annual gatherings of farmers and farm families in the Klamath Country has set its 1953 annual meeting—Klamath Production Credit Association is to hold forth Feb. 14 in the Klamath Armory.

This is the 19th annual meeting of the association, a farmer-owned financial institution with about 500 members scattered throughout the Klamath Basin.

Three directors are to be elected at the meet, according to KPCA Secy.-Treas. Lee S. McMullen. Terms of William Kittredge, Murel Long and Paul Breithaupt expire this year.

Fred E. M. (Gene) Hammond is to preside over the meeting for which the principal speaker has not yet been named.

One Wins, Six Lose In Gamble for Life

VANCOUVER, B. C. (AP) — Seven shivering men crouching on the wing of their sinking plane and took a vote to decide whether they should try to swim for shore.

The vote was yes. One man made it, six lost.

Jim Siddle, 38, pilot of a British Columbia Central Airways plane which plunged into the sea 400 miles north of here Tuesday, described the ordeal from his Vancouver hospital bed Friday. The body of one of his passengers was washed ashore. The five other passengers are missing and presumed drowned.

STORM

Siddle said that, approaching Keano, he saw a snowstorm ahead of him and landed in Fraser Reach to wait for the storm to blow over.

"But as we landed the plane hit some object in the water with a violent lurch. The aircraft went over on its nose and came to rest upside down."

None of the six passengers was injured and they scrambled out of the cabin onto the underside of the wing. Then the storm hit them and the men got colder and colder.

The plane was drifting about 100 yards from shore. The men hoped it would drift onto the beach. But then the wind changed and the aircraft started to settle.

Siddle crawled down into the flooded cabin for lifejackets, sleeping bags and emergency rations.

DECEASED

The decision had to be made: Should they try to swim to shore in the ice-cold water? A man could last no more than 30 minutes in those waters.

They solemnly took a vote. The decision was to swim.

Night had fallen. Siddle stayed on the wing until all his passengers had pushed off into the water and out of sight. Then he himself started for shore.

Siddle called now and then to the others, as he swam. But the wind carried his shouts away.

His strength exhausted, he finally reached the shore. He stayed on the beach until rescuers found him 24 hours later.

POTATO REPORT, JAN. 29

At Portland today the potato market was unchanged.

At San Francisco today there were no brokers track sales reported.

At Los Angeles today the potato market was steady. Trackload and carlot sales of long white potatoes from the San Joaquin valley, U.S. No. 1 A, brought $4.50 a 100 pound sack. Idaho russets, U.S. No. 1A, were quoted at $4.15 to $4.50 a 100 pound sack.

At Idaho Falls on Jan. 28, potato offerings were rather light. There was light inquiry and the market was very slow and dull. Prices were slightly weaker. A few sales of U.S. No. 1, medium to large size russets, ranged from $3.80 to $3.85 a 100 pound sack f.o.b. the shipping point. Most of the sales ranged from $3.75 to $3.80 U.S. No. 2 grade brought $2.15 to $2.25 a 100 pound sack.

Track holdings of potatoes at the major markets of the nation today amounted to 1171 cars. This compares with 1310 cars of potatoes on track one week ago. Arrivals at the 16 major cities were reported at 206 cars. This compared with 356 cars arriving one week earlier.

Total shipments of potatoes yesterday throughout the nation amounted to 622 cars. Of this number the Pacific Northwest shipped 211 cars. Idaho moved 184 cars, Oregon 15, and Washington 12 cars.

Dog License Business Off

The dog license business at the county clerk's office is lagging sadly.

As of this morning, less than 370 county canine licenses for 1953 had been sold. That's about a tenth of the number usually sold for a year.

The price is $1.50 for males and spayed females, and $2.50 for unspayed females, and the licenses can be obtained at the county clerk's office or by mail.

Feb. 28 is the last day on which licenses may be bought without a $1 penalty being added.

Missionary Coming Here

The Rev. A. W. Heugan, missionary of China, is to speak each evening at the Klamath Lutheran Church next Tuesday through Friday, 7:45 p.m.

The Rev. Haugan went to China for the first time in 1914. He last served at the Loshan Mission in Honan, Central China, during the Communist uprisings and was responsible for work in an area of 300,000 population.

Each year, it has been a practice to bring to the community and church outstanding speakers and Bible teachers. Last year's speaker was the noted Bible teacher Chester Helkinnen of the Seattle Lutheran Bible Institute.

Co-chairmen for this event are Mrs. C. C. Williams and Art Breitenstein.
