Sacred Heart Notebook

By MARY EGAN
 Tonight students will dance at the Cupid's Ball. From eight to eleven in the Parish Hall. With Saint Valentine's Day as the theme. Programs and decorations will set the scene.

There'll be big hearts, little hearts, red trimmed in white. Everywhere you turn in the Parish Hall tonight. The Pep Club is sponsoring this gala affair. In honor of the Trojans, so be sure and be there!

By one little point the Panthers reached fame. Against our Trojans in a thrilling game. Congratulations to the students of Chiloquin. For the traveling trophy you're almost sure to win! The Trojans came back on Saturday night. With all their traditional pep and fight. To beat the K.U. Wildcats by a convincing score. Of sixty to fifty-one, on the Academy floor.

DIVORCE
 LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Maj. James H. Doolittle Jr., son of the famed Air Force general who raided Japan in 1942, has obtained a divorce from Elva Savage Doolittle. The decree was granted yesterday on the ground that the couple has lived apart for more than three years.

Third Dimensional Films On Way, But Flatties On List For Long Time Yet

By BOB THOMAS
 (Second of three articles on Hollywood's new - dimensional revolution.)

HOLLYWOOD — Looking at the movie world through third-dimensional glasses. The scientists have come up with new gimmicks to broaden the dimensions of the movie screen. Now the creators and artists take over.

Hollywood is converting to new-dimensional movies much faster than it switched to sound. That doesn't mean that flat-screen films are being dispensed with entirely. (Only one studio — 20th Century Fox — has said it will soon make no more "flat" pictures.) New films using the new methods are announced every day, and some are already before the cameras.

I visited Warner Brothers, where the first horror picture in three dimensions is being filmed. It is called "House of Wax" and is aimed at scaring the believers out of movie fans. The story, filmed in Natural Vision, presents Vincent Price as the mad operator of a wax museum.

I found Price in a corner of the commissary, where he is required to eat apart from the other studio workers. The reason is his horrific makeup, which harks back to the Lon Chaney days. "Just call me 'Old Repulsive,'" he mumbled through layers of plastic.

"We're doing everything possible to scare the audience," he said. "Wait till they see this face! And we've got a fire scene in which a blazing wall falls toward the audience. If that doesn't scare them, nothing will."

Over at Paramount, Pine and Thomas are making a costume adventure called "Sangaree." The picture had already been shooting for three weeks when the producers decided to film it in the three-dimensional Paravision. This meant reshooting the previous scenes and upping the budget to two million dollars, the biggest picture bill for P&T.

Edward Ludwig was directing a scene with Francis L. Sullivan, who could fill the screen in any dimension. The director told me focus each of the two cameras we shoot a scene with. Now they have invented a dial that will focus both cameras at once."

(Tomorrow: The future of new-dimensional films.)
