Should We Use Atomic Weapons in Korea?

By ELTON C. FAY
WASHINGTON (AP)—Atomic weapons should be used in an effort to win the Korean War is certain to be among the questions asked of Gen. James A. Van Fleet next month when the former Eighth Army commander goes before congressional committees.

There was some speculation the same question was up for discussion at a top-level White House meeting today. If it was, presumably, several new factors would be taken into account:

1. The stockpile of A-bombs for tactical use on a battlefield is growing.
2. The Army has a new big-caliber gun it claims can shoot atomic explosive shells.
3. Intensified pressure at home for ending the war.

So far, the answers of most military leaders have been against using nuclear weapons. The reasons they give are both military and political.

Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the strategy-making Joint Chiefs of Staff, repeated in an interview recently that he sees nothing to be gained now by using the atomic bomb tactically. He didn't go into details or indicate whether he included atomic artillery along with atomic bombs dropped from planes.

The views of Bradley and others who recommended against employing such weapons in Korea generally seem predicated on these ideas:

There are, in the present battle situation, no really good targets, neither tactical (on the battlefield) nor strategic (the sources of enemy war goods production) in North Korea.

Atomic explosives can kill everyone above ground within the great radius of the blast, pulverize equipment and burn what is left. But when exploded at 2,000 or 3,000 feet, where the cone of the blast can encompass the greatest effective area, they cannot do major damage to below-ground positions.

The 150-mile line of the Chinese and Korean Red is dotted with bunkers ranging from 30 to 50 feet in depth, capped with earth and sometimes concrete. Except for a virtually direct hit, they would withstand atomic attack. Even ordinary slit trenches, such as link the bunkers on the Korean front, provide good protection against an air-burst explosion as close as 10,000 yards. However, bombs or shells set to burst upon impact with the ground could produce highly effective catering and earth-shock results.

Since the Army announced last fall that it has new, highly mobile 280-millimeter guns capable of shooting atomic shells, there has been growing talk about the possible use of it in Korea.

While a few such guns are in existence and have been demonstrated in firings of conventional ammunition there is nothing to indicate that the first experimental atomic shell has been fired. That may be tested this spring at the Nevada proving grounds.

Aside from the tactical factors, military men do not discount the possible bad effect throughout the whole Asiatic world—enemy, neutral or friendly—of using the mass destruction weapon on Asians.

Nor can the possibility be ignored that Soviet Russia, with its own A-bombs might take this as a signal for joining in and making it a world fought with nuclear weapons.

Logger Set Free

By Geo. N. Taylor

"I could quit drink any time but smokes had me. I got saved as the Christian loggers in the camp urged me, how could I quit the smokes?" At last the fellow received Christ into his heart, as his own Lord and Saviour and God cleaned him up. The urge for smokes and drink were then clean gone.

The man opened his heart to Christ who is both God and Saviour and he was set right. Having died for the man's sins, God cleaned him up. The urge for smokes and drink were then clean gone.

Geo. N. Taylor Christ proved that He was God by rising from death and the grave and ascending back to heaven. And on Resurrection Day, by that same power, of God, He is to raise you who are His. Having your sins blotted out and with a body of glory, you will be fit for heaven — "Christ in you the hope of glory." — Colossians 1:27. This Message sent by a Portland Lumberman & wife.

Socialized Medicine Seen

NOTON (AP)—During the administration, Mrs. Hobby said Sunday, "there will be no socialized medicine, as it is popularly known."

The new federal security administrator, appearing on a CBS television program, said the GOP platform and President Eisenhower's stated position clearly rule out such a possibility.

Many critics attacked the "socialized medicine" label to former President Truman's proposal for prepaid medical insurance financed by a payroll tax. Truman denied that it was any such thing.
