

Movies, Television Both On The Jittery Side

by BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD — To anyone who covers the entertainment industry one thing is evident—every phase of it has the jitters.

Take the movie industry. You hear a lot of brave talk about new dimensions. But everyone knows that 3-D can be only a temporary shot of adrenalin. The only thing that will help the movie business is good pictures, and the studios can't make enough of them.

TV, too, has the jitters. Some big shows are finding ready buyers, but a great number of advertisers are shying away from the huge prices asked for programs.

As one network official told me: "We've got the shows, but we can't find the sponsors to pay a million dollars for them."

In the postwar era, the record business began to feel the twin pinches of less spending money and family interest in TV. But a technological advance—the development of long-playing records—brought renewed interest in home phonographs.

The film industry and — to a lesser degree — the TV concerns are also pinning their futures on the technicians. In the picture business, the advances have been well publicized. There are the big-screen, audience participation devices (Cinerama, Cinemascope) and the 3-D stereoscopic gimmicks (Natural Vision, Paravision, etc.). There are a number of other scientific innovations that could spell renewed fortune for the filmsters — improved color, closed-circuit theater TV, etc.

TV also awaits advances — the use of the color tube, the possibility of 3-D TV, larger screens, etc.

And then there are the gadgets which would effect a marriage between the movie and TV industries — Phonovision, Telemeter, etc. These would collect from the home viewers for the privilege of seeing Hollywood movies.

Many people in both industries hope something will happen—and soon.

Vishinsky Shift Puts Question Up

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. — U. N. delegates differed today whether the shift of Andrei Y. Vishinsky from Soviet minister to chief Russian U. N. delegate was a demotion or presaged a new and tougher Soviet line in the world organization.

The change was announced by the Kremlin yesterday as Vishinsky called for home. Associates said the tough-talking Moscow lawyer received no advance word of the shift that put Deputy Premier V. M. Molotov in the top Foreign Ministry spot.

Vishinsky declined comment on the Russian government changes—including the selection of Georgi M. Malenkov to succeed Premier Stalin — when reporters reached him aboard the French liner Liberte, a few minutes before the ship left for New York port.

Later, the Associated Press placed a ship-to-shore call to Vishinsky but was informed that the former foreign minister "is not taking any calls and his secretary does not wish to be disturbed."

Some European delegates familiar with the Russians said Molotov finally has his revenge on the old-time prosecutor. They said Vishinsky was being stationed here to remove him from the Moscow scene.

Molotov—once tagged by Lenin as a top-rate filing clerk—customarily spoke disparagingly of Vishinsky as "just a lawyer." These delegates said Vishinsky, known as a protégé of L. P. Beria, head of the Soviet political police, helped engineer the ousting of Molotov as foreign minister on March 5, 1949, and that Molotov never forgot or forgave Vishinsky.

Vishinsky was Stalin's prosecuting purge-master in the great liquidation trials of 1936-37 and has been spoken against delegates here as though they were defendants in a Moscow courtroom.

The turn of events completely surprised delegates. Another surprising turn was the sudden departure of Andrei Gromyko, Soviet ambassador to London, from Britain for the United States to take over the delegation until Vishinsky can return from Moscow.

It was reported here that Gromyko had had a visa to come to the United States for about two weeks. This raised conjecture in some minds that the Russians had planned to send Gromyko earlier or had planned to keep him in reserve for such a shakeup as took place today.

Delegates inclined to believe the Russians would take a tougher position in the U. N. pointed out Vishinsky knew how to carry out orders to the fullest and how to be ruthless.

THE NORTHWEST CHAMPION Baton Twirling Team: the Crane Sisters, Pat, Sharon, and Joan. They'll be featured March 21 at the KUHS Auditorium when the Young Oregonians traveling troupe comes to town, sponsored by the Elks lodge.

Talent Troupe Slated Here

Old time vaudeville is slated for Klamath Falls March 21, according to Elks Lodge members.

The Young Oregonians Traveling Talent Troupe, with 35 vaudeville entertainers and their 6-piece band is to put on a 2-hour free show sponsored by the Elks.

The program includes dancing, bicycle riding, impersonations, baton twirling, tumbling and a 13-girl pyramid act. In addition to these specialty acts, there is a host of musical and novelty numbers.

The talented performers have been recruited from throughout Oregon. This is the Young Oregonians 18th annual spring vacation tour.

It is the only non-profit touring group of its kind in the state and during the past 18 years has traveled more than 33,000 miles across the Northwest.

Lumber Head Says Prices To Stay Low

SAN FRANCISCO — The president of the Western Pine Association says that the lumber industry will keep prices down regardless of the government's price decontrol order.

"We have every reason to believe that more realistic prices will be established in a free market," Walter S. Johnson told a news conference Thursday.

Johnson, here for the association's annual convention, said that probably three-fourths of the lumber prices would be unaffected by decontrols, and added that most prices are still below the recent control levels.

He said the industry is "a little disappointed" over the cooperation received from the Forest Service and wants a government policy "laid down at the top."

If the government opened up its 80 million acres of virgin forests to lumbering, he said, they would be improved and add more timber to the nation's supply. These forests "contribute nothing to the national economy now," Johnson said.

In convention sessions, several industry leaders expressed concern over insects, which threaten to infect six billion acres of spruce in Montana and Northern Idaho.

The association's chief forester, Ernest L. Kolbe of Portland, said the total annual loss of lumber from insects is eight to ten times the loss by fire. Loss runs as high as five billion board feet some years in the 11 Western states, Kolbe said.

He estimated that 25 per cent of the timber killed by insects is salvaged through immediate lumbering.

Student Pilots Get Big Sendoff

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Student pilots at Nellis Air Force Base get a roaring graduation sendoff today with the largest mass flight of jet fighter planes ever held within the continental United States.

The Air Force announced 160 planes, taking off at 10 second intervals, will take part in this maneuver, which it termed the largest of its kind.

After the flight the 80 Saberjets and 80 Shooting Stars will land at five second intervals. Then come formal graduation exercises. Most of the graduates are expected to receive orders to the Korean area. Here the planes will be piloted by students completing their training and the other half by officer instructors.

W. M. Jeffers Dies At 77

PASADENA, Calif. — Death has ended the success story of William Martin Jeffers, 77, former president of the Union Pacific Railroad.

He died yesterday in a hotel of what an associate described as "complications of advanced age." He had been ill for two years.

The son of a railroad, Jeffers began his career as a call boy for the Union Pacific at 14. He became president of the road in 1937, when it had 65,000 employees. In taking the job Jeffers said his ambition had been realized and that it was "a greater thrill to become president of the Union Pacific than to have become president of the United States."

His administration was marked by many progressive advancements, including fast, low-fare trains, low-priced dining car meals and service by nurse-stewardesses.

Jeffers took great pride in maintaining close contact with the men in the ranks, and friends said he never was too busy to stop and talk over railroad problems with the workers. He continued to carry his card in the telegrapher's union after becoming an executive.

Among the Shikhs of India, a husband may have as many temporary wives as he chooses, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Ike Names New Man

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower yesterday appointed Arthur F. Burns, a professor of economics at Columbia University, as the chief member of his Council of Economic Advisers.

The council, a three-man group during the Truman administration, has an uncertain future.

Presidential Secretary James C. Hagerty said Burns will make a study to decide whether the group should be continued on a three-member basis.

The study is expected to determine also how much staff is needed. The Truman administration staff of 29 had received job termination notices pending a decision.

Life Expectancy Up In America

NEW YORK — An insurance statistician predicts an increase of four or five years in the average American's life expectancy during the next 20 or 25 years.

Dr. Louis L. Dublin, consultant to the Institute of Life Insurance, speaking yesterday at a meeting of insurance officials, said:

Within this generation an average length of life of 73 years is likely.

Women should live even longer; they can expect about three years more than this national level.
