Civil Rights Bill Facing Uncertain Fate in House; Hitchcock Asks Passage

By PAUL W. HARVEY JR.
SALEM (AP)— The Civil Rights Bill faced an uncertain fate in the Oregon House of Representatives Tuesday after the Senate gave it a thumping 21 to 8 endorsement. The Senate voted on it late Monday after 2 1/2 hours of debate, during which it rejected a move to make it more strict, and turned down 19 to 11 a motion to refer it to the people. Bearing the names of 19 senators and 27 representatives as co-sponsors, the bill would make it illegal for any motor court, restaurant, hotel, tavern or amusement place to refuse service to anybody because of his race or religion. Persons who are discriminated against could sue for up to $500 damages. The move to make it more strict was started by Sen. Eugene Allen, Portland. He wanted to make it apply also to barber and beauty shops, apartment houses and real-estate homes. Sen. Gene L. Brown, Grants Pass, moved to refer the bill to the people, arguing that the people ought to decide such far-reaching legislation. The main brunt of the battle was carried by Sen. Philip S. Hitchcock, Klamath Falls, former moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Oregon. He is the father of the bill, and he also is the man who piloted the Fair Employment Practices Law to passage four years ago. Sen. Hitchcock argued that 20 states have similar legislation, that President Eisenhower urged the states to pass it so the federal government wouldn't have to, and that the bill is only carrying out the basic principles of American democracy and the Christian religion. The opposition was led by Sen. Warren Gill, Lebanon, who argued the bill is unnecessary because racial prejudice is on the wane. Sen. Paul Geddes, Roseburg, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, said race prejudice would disappear in a few years "because of the splendid job of education being done in the schools. But this bill is needed now to guarantee rights to persons in those minority groups who won't live until that day." Geddes cited testimony of Negroes who said they have been denied lodging and food in many communities, and asserted the bill would "be a definite educational and psychological advantage in ending discrimination." Gill denied the bill would give freedom to anybody, but declared "it is taking away the freedom to be prejudiced. It is saying that everybody has to think the same way as the 19 senators who introduced this bill." Those voting against the bill were: Charles W. Bingner, La Grande; Rex Ellis, Pendleton; Angus Gibson, Junction City; Gill; Roger Looming, Haines; Elmo Smith, John Day; George W. Ulett, Coquille; Dean Walker, Independent; E. Marsh, McMinville.

Driver Nabbed in Stolen Car

A young Klamath Falls ex-convict, Robert John Dalley, 23, is in custody at Hood River and is to be returned here for prosecution on a car theft charge. Deputy Sheriff Dal Reed went to Hood River yesterday to bring Dalley here. The youth was caught in possession of a 1949 Ford coach reported stolen last Wednesday morning from a used car lot on East Main. He currently is on parole from the Oregon State Prison, after having been given a two-year sentence from here March 24, 1951, for burglary.

Crater Lake Draws Many Visitors

Crater Lake National Park drew 152 visitors over the past weekend and there were 25 skiers. Yesterday, the snow depth was 124 inches as compared to 199 inches the same day last year. South and West roads are open with chains advised. Chains are necessary from Annie Creek Springs to the rim.

Portlander To Take Command

ROME (AP)— A former resident of Portland, Ore., Maj. Gen. James George Christensen, will take over about April 1 as chief of the U. S. Military Assistance Advisory Mission to Italy. He was appointed to the post Monday, succeeding Maj. Gen. Daniel D. Strickler who is leaving because of ill health.

existing conditions. This means, in fact, that major difficulties are being faced by those who are attempting to promote a rapid expansion of the movement now, because it means, literally, that they are confronted with changing conditions and practices inherited from the past. These past conditions and practices must be uprooted in order to lay the foundation for a broader development.

Council Eyes Dogs In City With War But Hits Cement

Dogs and concrete were the principal matters of discussion at last night's meeting of the City Council.

The subject of dogs came up when Councilman Frank Fair reported he had been getting complaints about footloose dogs running through new lawns and flower beds, and asked if the city shouldn't impose some sort of restraint.

Twice in past years the city has had an ordinance requiring that dogs be tied up during May and June, the months when young lawns and gardens are growing, and twice the ordinance has been repealed.

In fact, Mayor Paul Landry said, the largest, most vociferous crowd ever to attend a council meeting was composed of animal lovers protesting the dog tie-up.

FOUNDMASTER

Chances are small that the city will get into a repeat of that business. The upshot of last night's discussion was that people who dog complaints should call Foundmaster Larry Mueller and see if he can handle the situation and see if he can handle the situation and see if he can handle the situation.

The concrete matter is something else. It was the general opinion of councilmen that some very poor concrete work has been done in recent years here in Klamath Falls, and some investigation is going to be undertaken to determine why—whether the sand used is no good, the type of cement, the mixing formula or what.

City Engineer Taxi Thomas pointed out that just a couple of years ago the city ordered a new sidewalk put in on a downtown street, the work was done by a local contracting firm, and now the sidewalk is deteriorating to the point it should be replaced.

The engineer was instructed to send chunks of the sidewalk to two testing laboratories for analysis, and also to contact Reno and Bend.
