Joan Crawford, Marilyn Monroe Continue Feuding

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The Joan Crawford-Marilyn Monroe controversy still rages.

Going on eight years, I have been working the Hollywood vineyards. No story I have ever written has evoked as much fuss as the one in which Crawford lambasted Monroe for allegedly believing her sexy publicity. So perhaps we'd better review how it all happened and what has happened since.

The story was no press agent's plant. Crawford's press agent would probably have shushed her up if he had gotten the opportunity. I was lunching with Crawford, and we were discussing her new TV venture, Academy Awards and other topics. Nothing exciting had evolved, so I tossed Monroe at her. That did it.

The Monroe thing had been brewing for a couple of weeks. Her picture had failed to do the business expected of it, and women's clubs were beginning to protest about her sexy advertising and publicity. The climax came at the Photoplay dinner.

Monroe showed up in one of her traffic-stopping movie gowns. When she went up to get her award, she put on a hip-waving exhibition that brought the house down. Many of the onlookers were amused, Crawford wasn't. Hence the blast.

Since the AP always gives the opportunity for both sides of a controversy to be heard, Monroe had a chance to answer Crawford's statements before they appeared in print. She declined.

When the story appeared, things started popping. Some columnists came to Monroe's defense. Most of the commentators pointed out that Crawford had a pretty racy buildup when she was a starlet in the flapper days. (But isn't that all the more reason why she should be qualified to comment?)

At least two columnists recorded a breathless moment—when Crawford and Monroe almost met at a party.

This week Mike Connolly of Hollywood Reporter said "somebody important" at 20th - Fox wrote Crawford: "Don't apologize to Marilyn. Your advice was good for her."

That seems to be the consensus. Her bosses at 20th-Fox were concerned about overdoing the sexy buildup and tried to persuade Monroe to tone it down. She couldn't see it that way, since the routine had made a star out of her. But now she has become much more conservative.

Monroe got a lot of sympathy from the story and a new outlook on her publicity. Crawford got plenty of news space with no damage to her reputation. The only one who may have suffered was me; I'm not sure how I stand with the two girls.

I met Crawford at the Academy Awards. Or rather she hailed me out of the crowd. "Lord, the trouble you got me into," she exclaimed.

She said she had received tremendous mail, not all of it complimentary. But she admitted the story could have been worse. Then she dashed off.

Monroe was equally vague. When I saw her on a movie set, I asked how she felt about the whole ...

UAW Cracks Whip -- Again

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP) — The auto industry five-year contracts that made labor history when they were signed in 1950 may turn out to be the last as well as the first.

That possibility appeared stronger in the wake of action at the CIO United Auto Workers convention, which ends its week-long stand Friday.

In their last major action, the nearly 3,000 delegates aimed this at the industry: Either you agree to our requested changes in the current contracts even though you are not legally bound to do so—or we'll have no more long-term agreements when these run out in 1955.

The demand was in the form of a resolution passed overwhelmingly Thursday. It would forbid the international and local unions to sign contracts of longer than two years' duration after 1955 unless the companies promptly improve the current agreements along lines suggested by the UAW.

Biggest Fish Is Kamloops

SANDPOINT, Idaho (AP) — A 30½-pound Kamloops trout from Lake Pend Oreille was the biggest rainbow trout caught on the continent last year, Field and Stream Magazine said Thursday.

The big fish was landed by Ken I. Evjen of Coeur d'Alene, Idaho.

Field and Stream, which says its statistics on such things are the "official records", reported that seven of the ten largest rainbows in 1952 came from Pend Oreille, the big North Idaho lake.

Four of the seven were caught by women with Mrs. Betty Zent, Wallace, Idaho, second with a 27-pounder. Mrs. Laura E. Crouse, Garfield Bay, Idaho, was third with a 26½-pound catch.

The other Pend Oreille anglers in the top ten:

William B. Peterson, Spokane, 25½ pounds; Mrs. Fern Weaver, Sandpoint, 25¼; Carl Gill, Spokane 25; and Mrs. E. R. Fox, Spokane, 24.

Air Freight Lines May Merge

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A plan to merge the world's two largest air freight lines—Flying Tigers and Slick Airways — was announced Thursday by presidents of the two firms.

The merger, subject to approval of stockholders and the Civil Aeronautics Board, would create a 13-million-dollar corporation, fifth largest domestic airline.

Robert W. Prescott, president of the Tigers, and Thomas L. Grace, head of Slick, made the announcement jointly at a press conference. Directors of the two companies have approved the plan.

Milk Prices Show Changes

By The Associated Press

Milk price increases have gone into effect in Grants Pass and Klamath Falls since controls expired March 1. Dairies in some other cities also are reported planning increases.

At Eugene some dairymen cut the butterfat content of milk from 4 to 3.5 per cent without changing the price of 24 cents a quart.

At Grants Pass butterfat increased from 3.5 to a 3.8 to 4 per cent content along with a price increase of a half-cent to 24 cents a quart.

At Klamath Falls the butterfat content was reduced from 4 to 3.5 per cent and the price increased from 24 to 25 cents.

Slot Machines To Be Destroyed

TOLEDO, Ore. (AP) — Sheriff W. H. Kuhlenbeck on Saturday will destroy 73 slot machines.

They were seized last month in a state police raid on the Oceanlake warehouse of the Delake Amusement Company and have been in storage at Salem.

V. J. Boroughs, company operator, was fined $1,068 in Delake justice court in connection with the machines—in addition to losing them.

Indian Bureau May Be Investigated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interior Affairs Committee would be authorized to investigate the U. S. Indian Bureau under a resolution approved Tuesday by the House Rules Committee.

The measure now goes to the House.

Matters to be investigated include the regulations governing guardianship and sale of Indian property.

The committee also would determine whether Indian tribes are capable of handling their own affairs and which of the bureau's functions, if any, should be discontinued.
