Latin Actor Seems To Have Found H'wood Secret

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The happiest man in Hollywood? I nominate Gilbert Roland.

The Latin actor seems to have found the secret of lasting youth. He readily admits to being 47, yet he has the face and figure of a far younger man. He also has a youthful outlook on life, but with a calm, deep philosophy that can come only with years of good living.

Career-wise, he is the envy of his fellow actors. In the past five years, he has gone from picture to picture, denivering finely etched performances such as in "My Six Convicts" and "The Bad and the Beautiful." Yet he doesn't have the rigors and the insecurity of being a star.

"I don't want to be a star," he blandly declares. "I've had it before, and I know what it's like. Let the young kids have it now."

At present he is finishing up "The Diamond Queen" with Arlene Dahl and Fernando Lamas. This week he leaves for Florida to portray a sponge fisherman in "12-Mile Reef" with Robert Wagner and Terry Moore. Then he goes to Spain to appear with Claudette Colbert in "That Lady," which Katharine Cornell did on the stage.

Of course, the picture business was not always as rosy for Roland. He was a big hit in the 20s, when Latin lovers had their heyday on the screen. His star faded with the advent of the grapefruit-in-the-face style of movie lover. After he got out of the Army in World War II, he rode the range in the Cisco Kid series.

"No producer wanted to hire me," he recalled. "They said I was a Western actor."

John Huston changed all that. He interviewed the actor for a role in "We Were Strangers." "Can you sing?" Roland replied he couldn't. "Can you play a guitar?" The answer was again negative.

So Roland got the job as a Cuban revolutionary who played the guitar and sang. Huston made him get a haircut, and the director even wielded the scissors himself. Roland submitted to all this, and the results brought a revival of his film career. He has made 15 pictures in the past five years, and turned down more.

How does he stay so young?

"For one thing, I play tennis every day of the year," he answered. "I have the same waistline—29 inches—that I had when I started in pictures as an extra in 1925.

"And then I do not worry. I do not eat myself up inside by fretting about things. That's what makes people old."

The third secret of his youthfulness was stated very simply: "women."

McKay Favors Indian Probe

PORTLAND (AP)—Secretary of the Interior Douglas McKay was quoted by the Oregonian Wednesday as saying he would recommend that area offices of the Bureau of Indian Affairs be closed down.

The 11 offices throughout the U. S. are "bottlenecks" which result in "unnecessary expense and duplication," the paper quoted him as saying in a telephone interview.

McKay said he would make his recommendation to the new Indian commissioner as soon as he is appointed, the Oregonian reported. The post has been vacant since March 20 when Col. Dillon S. Myer resigned.

Rail Tieup End Sought

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A federal mediator sought Wednesday to bring an early end to a railroad strike which was forcet closing of four big U. S. Steel Corp. plants in the Pittsburgh area and idled some 53,000 steelworkers.

Warren Lane of the National Mediation Board, armed with instructions to do everything possible to settle the walkout, arrived here Tuesday from Washington and opened exploratory talks. There was no immediate indication of any progress.

About 1,500 members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen struck the Union Railroad Co. Monday night over the suspension for 10 days of two conductors accused of leading a slowdown. Pickets soon idled 3,000 other railroad employes.

Shutdown of the railroad, a subsidiary of U. S. Steel, immediately halted supplies of raw materials to steel plants in nearby Homestead, Braddock, Duquesne and Clairton.

The carrier also hauls finished products from the mills and various departments within
