3-D films Cause Major Upset In Hollywood Circle

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD — The movie industry today resembles the legendary horseman who leaped on his steed and rode off in all directions.

Much of the confusion is caused by understandable disorder in an industry transition — a transition is taking place. But a great deal of it is the result of selfish thinking by the studios.

Even close observers of the Hollywood scene are baffled by the flood of announcements, claims and counterclaims on new-dimensional projects. The general public must be in a state of complete mystification.

Cinema ... Cinemascope ... Natural vision ... Metrovision ... Paravision ...

These words have entered film language in recent months, and more are added each week.

Studios are not agreed on which system to use. 20th-Century-Fox has thrown its entire future into its own wide-screen process, Cinemascope. MGM using it also. Warner and RKO base their hopes on 3D gimmicks that require glasses. Columbia is only toying with 3D. Paramount and Universal-International are experimenting with both 3D and wide-screen. In addition, MGM and Paramount are working on trick lenses which can project present films on wide screens.

All of which is natural, in a sense, except that it ignores the theater operators. This is a grave situation, because the theater men are the ones who must spend thousands of dollars to convert their houses to use new systems. They can't act until they find out where the producers are going. They look to Hollywood for leadership and see only confusion.

This was apparent among the many exhibitors who in recent weeks have come here to look over developments. Texas showman R. J. O'Donnell put it in a nutshell when he said the great need is for an all-purpose screen. Chaos can continue for months unless Hollywood reaches some agreement. But which system? Each has some advantages.

Meanwhile, production can slow to a standstill (it's getting there), thousands of studio workers will be out of work and theater business will be spotty because of the inability of exhibitors to screen all types of the new medium.

The alternative is industry-wide unity. Producers could get together and decide which system best combines economy with practical operation.

O'Malley Gets Late Support

PORTLAND — The Oregon Prison Association said in a statement Saturday that it deplored the manner in which Warden Virgil J. O'Malley was fired.

O'Malley was dismissed as head of the state penitentiary at Salem last Tuesday after three out-of-state wardens had filed a critical report with the State Board of Control.

The "firing without a hearing was too pre-emptory and may set an unwholesome precedent. Even an accused criminal is entitled to a trial. The warden himself should have been given as fair treatment as is accorded his charges," the statement said.

The association said, "conditions at the prison have been improving slowly and steadily," during O'Malley's administration.

The investigating wardens were "not familiar with the Oregon penitentiary and therefore could not measure the progress which had been made in recent months," the statement said.

Pope Holds Easter Rite

VATICAN CITY — Pope Pius XII received 10,000 Easter season pilgrims Monday, most of them from Germany and Scandinavia and some from America.

Cheers greeted the pontiff as he was borne on his portable throne through several chambers of the Apostolic Palace. Again and again the pope blessed various groups or bent down to touch one or another of the many packages of religious items and relics brought for his blessing.

The benedictional ducal and royal chambers of the palace were packed. From his throne in the benediction hall the pope spoke briefly in six languages—English, French, Spanish, German, Portuguese and Italian. Later, he added a few words in Dutch and Danish.

Most Italians left Rome Monday for countryside and seashore, celebrating "Pasquetta"—or Little Easter, a holiday dedicated primarily to eating and drinking in the country taverns.

But the Vatican museums and St. Peter's Basilica itself were packed with slow-moving lines of pilgrims and tourists from abroad.

In his annual Easter message Sunday, the pope warned the Christian world against discouragement from the cold war's continuance and urged it to draw fresh inspiration from the resurrection.

Speaking for only six minutes to a vast audience of some half a million people packed into St. Peter's square, the pontiff declared: "May the risen redeemer be an example to you. He who overcame death forever."

Morse Urges US Peace Move

WASHINGTON — Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon Sunday proposed that the U. N. offer to settle the Korean war prisoner issue by referring it to a five-member committee.

The committee would be made up of two members picked by the U. N., two by Russia and the fifth by Sweden.

"Russia trusts Sweden," he said on the NBC "Youth Wants to Know" television program.

Referring to the recent peace moves made by Russia, Morse said, "We must proceed as if we can trust her (Russia), but keep on protecting ourselves every inch of the way."

"Let's meet her on the basis of the assumption that she has seen the error of her ways and the new administration is trying to correct the errors of the Stalin administration."

He said the United States should exert more initiative in proposals for peace.

"In many parts of the world Russia has stolen the peace issue away from us so far as propaganda is concerned," he said.

He added that one of the great dangers facing the U. S. was "certain people who will try to weaken our defense."

"I'm going to vote for every dollar of expense needed to keep our defenses strong," he stated.

Machinists Back On Jet Motor Job

CINCINNATI — Hundreds of UAW-CIO and International Association of Machinists (IAM), who went on strike at General Electric's jet engine plant at nearby Evandale three weeks ago, are back at work Monday, a company official says.

E. G. Foster, manager of employee service at the gigantic plant, told a reporter the men are "producing parts and working on jet engines."

The company makes J-47 jet engines for F-86 Sabrejets and B-47 intercontinental bombers for the armed services.

One Held After Death In Fight

ROSEBURG — Donald S. Partin was held in jail here Monday pending an investigation of the death Saturday night of William C. Kelly, 39.

Coroner Al Powers said Kelly's wife told him her husband died hit a street curb when he fell.

She said the two men were arguing over a traffic incident, Powers said.

Kelly, a night foreman at the Roseburg Lumber Company, had suffered a head injury while working earlier in the evening, Powers reported.

Long Delay Seen For Portland TV

PORTLAND — It may be two years before another television station is operating in Portland, Attorney Ben Fisher said Saturday.

Fisher, counsel for KGW, an applicant for a TV channel here, said it would be mid-June before hearings end in Washington, D. C. for the five Portland channels. Awards will not be announced until later in the year.

Court appeals by losing applicants could take up another three to six months with construction of the new station adding another six months, he said.

Early Treatment Of Cancer Recommended; Mouth Common Disease Ground

(Editor's note: This is one of a series of articles prepared by medical experts for The Associated Press in co-operation with the American Cancer Society as an educational service during April, cancer control month. Today's writer is an attending surgeon at the Chief Head and Neck Service, Memorial Center, New York.)

By HAYES MARTIN, M. D.

If a mouth cancer is no larger than a man's thumb the chances for permanent cure are twice as good, in the average of all cases, as they are when the growth has exceeded these dimensions.

That's the sum of new statistics based on experience at the Memorial Cancer Center in New York City.

Although it has long been known both by the profession and the public that early cures for treatment have the best chance against the ravages of cancer, this has been a vague general statement of limited value because it did not answer the question: "What is early?"

Based on the "thumb" test, the following striking comparisons can be made between the chances of permanent cure of those who have gone to the doctor, who, in turn, has determined the nature of the growth and begun treatment:

For the lip: 80 per cent of early cures are cured as against 70 per cent of the mixed group; for the tongue: 35 per cent as against 28 per cent; floor of mouth: 50 per cent contrasted with 28 per cent; mucosa of cheek: 60 per cent as against 29 per cent; hard and soft palate: 37 per cent; hard and soft palate: 38 per cent; tonsil: 40 per cent as against 18 per cent.

The responsibility, then, rests first with the patient to visit the physician as soon as possible after the first symptom is noticed.

Any sore in the mouth that does not heal in approximately 10 days, and any lump or area of thickening which develops within the mouth, are signs which call for prompt examination by a doctor.

Actually, in many instances such findings indicate only some simple condition which can be easily treated and the fear that cancer may be present is often entirely relieved by competent medical examination.

It is the responsibility of the doctor to make the diagnosis and begin treatment as soon as possible.

In the case of a good patient combined with an alert doctor, the chances for permanent cure are excellent. On the other hand, if the doctor fails to institute treatment in the early stage, the chances for cure diminish.

If the patient is slow in presenting himself for medical care, the doctor, no matter how skillful he may be, of necessity is greatly handicapped.

STAFF SGT. LEONARD HODA, 23, son of Mrs. E. J. Lahoda, is now stationed at the Texas air base after some time here leave. Leonard will be five years in the service.
