Cancer in Your Community
THIS YEAR—OUT OF 5000 PEOPLE IN THE AVERAGE AMERICAN COMMUNITY...

- ...250 will have one of Cancer's 7 danger signals
- ...7 will die of Cancer
- ...2 or 3 will be saved
- ...12 new cases of Cancer will appear

What is your community's cancer problem? If there are 50,000 persons in your town, multiply the figures above by ten and you'll get a picture of how cancer strikes in 12 months in a community about the size of yours. Over the years, cancer will strike one in every five Americans.

To save lives in your community, to strike back at cancer, give generously to the American Cancer Society and learn facts that may protect you and yours from death by cancer.

Sewing Clubs, Others, On Run To Ready For Fair

By MYRTLE WIMER

FORT KLAMATH—As the annual 4-H club county spring fair approaches nearer day by day, Mrs. Raymond S. Loosley and her "Sew So Simple" 4-H sewing group of girls are busy as the proverbial bees, to say nothing of the mothers of the girls.

The fair will be held at the Klamath Falls fairgrounds exhibit building on April 23, 24 and 25, and members of the local sewing project and their leader have been putting finishing touches on articles which will be exhibited in competition with other similar groups throughout Klamath county, and also preparing for sewing demonstrations to be given at the fair.

Following the business meeting of the Civic Improvement Club on Friday afternoon, April 17, Marie Nicholson and Enid Williams of the local club group gave a fine example of teamwork when they demonstrated to C.I. Club members the making of decorative dress pockets, and also exhibited dresses they had made themselves, attractiveness of the garments being enhanced by pockets which added much to their appearance.

Members of the "Sew So Simple" project include girls in three divisions, as follows: Sewing One A, Helen Hesco, Judy McCauley, Phyllis Woods; One C, Janet Wilson, and Anita Vaden; Sewing Two, Marie Nicholson, Enid Williams and Gladys Kendall.

Independent entrant in the 5A sewing division will be Audrey Varnum of Fort Klamath, who is a student at Klamath Union High School. She will model a semi tailored woolen street dress at the style review on Saturday evening, which is the closing event of the spring fair, and will be judged among other entrants in this class.

Fort Klamath people salute Mrs. Raymond S. Loosley, who has for the past nine years worked as leader of Fort Klamath girls in various useful 4-H club projects, and as a result of her painstaking efforts and unselfish spending of her time, has achieved outstanding success each year with her groups, training the girls in sewing, cooking, etc., knowledge of which will prove of untold value in coming years.

Jerry Brees To Head Stockmen

BEND (AP) — Jerry Brees, of Prineville, Saturday was elected president of the Central Oregon Stock Growers Association.

Other officers elected at the group's annual meeting here: Walter Schrock, Bend, vice president; Andrew Morrow, Madras, second vice president, and E. L. Woods, Prineville, secretary.

The organization recommended dissolution of the tri-county organization consisting of members from Deschutes, Crook and Jefferson Counties.

Final action on the recommendation will be taken by directors.

Pilots Win

PORTLAND (AP) — Portland University won a three-way invitational track meet here Saturday, gaining 77 points to 41 for Oregon College of Education and 39 for Portland State.

OCE's Don McKenzie was high scorer with 15 points.

Ex-Foreign Legionnaire Has "Movie Type" History

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Movie heroes—the kind who can clean out a barroom with a few blows of their fists—are a dime a dozen in Hollywood. But here's an actor who is the real McCoy.

He is Peter Ortiz, former Foreign Legionnaire and underground fighter whose life could make a movie in itself. In fact, part of it did.

Last year, Warners took part of his life story and made "Operation Secret." That concerned his activities as a Marine officer in helping to organize French resistance. He wasn't too happy with the result.

"They did a lot of things I didn't particularly approve of," he remarked. "On the other hand, they did some things I thought were good. I had no control over the script. They had stipulated that I was to help in the screen play, but never consulted me."

It's possible that the screen writers didn't want the facts to interfere. That's understandable, because Ortiz' life might appear unbelievable on the screen.

He told me some of his background on the set of "Arsons Outpost," his latest assignment. He is tall, young-looking and articulate, although somewhat reluctant to describe his exploits.

"I don't mind doing it to help publicize pictures," he said. "But I don't like to dwell on the 'hero' stuff. It's pretty old by now, especially with another war going on."

Ortiz lived in this country until he was 12, then moved to France, where his father was in business. Being restless, he ran away to sea at 15. His parents persuaded him to return after six months, but that didn't cure him. A few years later, he signed with the French Foreign Legion for a five-year hitch.

"I had been filled with all kinds of romantic notions about the Legion," he recalled. "My father tried to dissuade me, but he finally decided the discipline might be the thing I needed."

Ortiz stayed with the Legion eight years and recalls the experience with fondness.

"The public has a false impression about the Legion," he said. "It is supposed to be filled with criminals. There are some criminals, but there are many others with different reasons for escaping their past. Some had escaped from Hitler, others were White Russians and other political refugees."

"I found in the Legion a spirit you don't see in any other force, not even the U. S. Army. So many Legionnaires left their past behind them, care little for the future, expect to live and die in it, and they will do brave things."

War broke out while he was in the U. S. He shipped out to rejoin the Legion, and port was torpedoed on re made him even angrier. He fought valiantly against man bits near Luzon, was captured but escaped, joining the U. S. Marine Corps.

His linguistic ability was for underground work, a parachuted into Fort Benning and operated with the OSS. He was discharged as a lieutenant colonel with 27 decorations and 156 parachute jumps credit.

Ortiz was at his Lajo home when a call came technical adviser on "The Arsons," an OSS picture, on as an advisor on war movies. He turned down the offer because it was the work of a man he had known so intimately.
