Three Die In Accidents

By The Associated Press
Accidents claimed the lives of three in Oregon over the week end. Ted W. Harkleroad, 47, Portland, drowned, so did Bill Brokaw, about 60, of Robinette near the Idaho border, in another accident. Mark Timothy Souler, 5, was fatally injured when struck by a car at Hood River.

Before he was two years old, his mother died and the boy grew up with a fast set. In college he took a law degree and at 35 he was planning a case for a large railway system, before the U.S. Supreme Court in Washington, D.C., said he later — "Even at 35 I had one foot in a drunkard's grave and the other slipping."
