Highway Magnet Nets Big Haul

SALEM — The Oregon Highway Commission's traveling magnet picked up 22,630 pounds of material last year from the state's highways, the commission said Tuesday.

The magnet picked up included many nails, tacks and other sharp articles that could puncture tires.

The magnet, operated by one man, traveled 12,841 miles during the year at a cost of $8,267.

The quantity of material picked up is more than double the amount of metal picked up in 1950.

The commission has operated the magnet for nine years.

War bonds totaling $1,000, including one $1,000, two $100 and several $25 bonds. The bonds were made out to Rector and carried the name of his sister, Elizabeth Rector, as beneficiary. The bonds were scorched and water spotted in a hotel fire at Salinas, Rector said.

A mechanic's tool kit containing a large assortment of valuable tools.

A suitcase and footlocker containing a large amount of men's clothing.

Rector, a chef, told hotel employees he had stopped here to consider taking a job and that most of his clothing was lost in the robbery.

A. G. Wallenborn, 524 Owens, reported to police the theft of a brown gabardine jacket from his car parked in front of the First National Bank Sunday.

Blanche McDonald reported theft of two wool blankets, two cotton blankets and two pillows from a room at Avalon Rooms Monday night.
