vant economy and dense populations, WITHOUT water, it must stand more or less still. But Mother Nature gave us our water, just as she gave to the Southwest its dry and sultry winter climate. When we want to enjoy the Southwest's sunny winter climate, we GO DOWN THERE and enjoy it. It seems to me perfectly fair that when the people of the Southwest want to enjoy the benefits of our water they should COME UP HERE and enjoy it and use it here.

We can't afford, however, to laugh off the pressures that will be brought to bear to take our water and ship it away to the arid Southwest on the pretext that we have SURPLUS water. They will be great. This United Western Plan is temporarily on the shelf, but there will be plenty of efforts to take it off and make it tick.

Our best protection is to put all of our water to work as rapidly as possible. vonne Johnson Gergen, Nancy Joan Hamilton, Henry Hellman, Donald Sierra Kempke, James Edward Miller, Jay C. Motschenbacher, Harvey Darwin Myers.
