

Hollywood Dogs Live Better Than People... At EE Ranch

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD IS—"A dog's life" can have a different meaning in Hollywood. Some local dogs live better than people.

They are the lucky canines whose owners can make the grade at the Double-E Ranch, exclusive hostelry for dogs. Listed among the guests are pets of some of the best-known names in Hollywood. The place is jammed most of the time, so reservations must be made months in advance.

"We're crowded to our 52-dog capacity right now," said Mrs. Edith Kienast, who operates the ranch with her husband, Ernest.

"The reason is that so many of our patrons have gone to the coronation."

You reach the Double-E Ranch after traveling miles over unpaved roads into a rugged section of the Santa Monica Mountains. The place consists of some low, neat buildings nestled in a wooded canyon. When I arrived, I was greeted by Mrs. Kienast, a small, energetic woman who talks electrically about her favorite subject.

"This isn't work for me," she said. "It's fun. I've loved dogs since I was a little girl in New York. In many ways, I prefer them to humans."

That attitude is shown in many ways. Human visitors must have the soles of their shoes sprayed before entering the kennels. There's even a sizable swimming pool with a sign saying it is for animals only—"not to be contaminated by humans."

Mrs. Kienast explained that she and her husband, a Swiss-born builder, have been running the ranch since 1947. They had just built their own house in the San Fernando Valley, but gave it up when they heard about the mountain property. It sounded like the ideal place for their seven German shepherds, nine cats and a miniature pinscher. So many friends were boarding their dogs with them that they decided to make a business of it.

"We've had 2,000 dogs here," Mrs. Kienast announced, "and I'm proud that not one has ever missed a meal."

The dogs do seem amazingly contented. They live in large, airy kennels with their own beds and playthings from home.

Mrs. Kienast personally gives each dog a romp in the canyon every day. In the summertime, a dog can have a daily swim, if his master agrees.

She added that every serving dish is sterilized before dinner is served.

The Kienasts provide the same as home care, but they never counted on one pampered pooch. His master was a local chef who opined that dogs liked as varied a menu as humans. He left detailed instructions for his pet's daily meals.

Mrs. Kienast swears this happened: One day the chef's dog wouldn't eat his meal. She was worried that the ranch would break its record. Her husband told her to consult the menu. Sure enough, she had given the dog beef stew on his fried liver day. He ate heartily when the meal was corrected.

'Chute Search Renewed

GRAND CANYON, Ariz. (AP)—A dramatic attempt to reach two collapsed parachutes on a broad ledge 3,600 feet down in mile-deep Grand Canyon was renewed Saturday.

Two veteran rangers, working their way along a virtually unexplored sector of what is known as Tonto Platform, moved out as soon as there was enough light to permit reasonably safe hiking.

The pair, Frank Sylvester and Lester Womack, are attempting to solve the mystery of the chutes that dropped into the gorge Thursday evening.

It was not known if someone jumped from a falling plane or there was some other solution.

No pilots or planes had been reported missing and no signs of life had been seen where they came down.

'Knife Play' Ends In No Wounds Just Jail for 3

There was some fancy "knife play" at 605 Broad Friday night. No one was cut but three men went to jail.

Held in the city jail are: James Dancer, 23, 406 Roosevelt, drunk and disorderly; Danie, Leroy Hill, 29 428 Market, drunk and disorderly; and Harry Williams, 51, 447 1/2 Broad, drunk.

According to Police Chief Orville Hamilton, the trouble started when Williams claimed he had been "rolled" for $9 while asleep. Hill, when accused of taking the money, is alleged to have pulled a knife and threatened to "cut everybody's throat in the house."

When police reached the scene, Hill and Dancer had been evicted and were trying to break down the front door of the house.

Merrill Wreck Injures Three

A 36-year-old Merrill husband was in the county jail on a drunkenness charge and his wife and two children were in Klamath Valley Hospital after their car overturned on Highway 37 three miles south of Merrill.

In jail is William Ayron Oyer who is charged with being drunk on a public highway and operating an automobile without a driver's license.

Under treatment at the hospital for shock are Oyer's wife, Irene, 35, and his son and daughter, Jackie, 6, and Linda, 2.

It was reported the automobile was traveling at a high rate of speed when it overturned.

Main Death Termed Suicide

The body of a 46-year-old Malin ranchhand was found in front of his cabin about 9 o'clock Friday night and Coroner George Adler put his death down as suicide.

A .410 gauge shotgun was found by the side of Guss Davis. He left no note but persons who knew the man said he had been drinking heavily yesterday.

A large hole had been blasted over his right ear.

Davis was a native of Beccaria, Pa. His survivors include his daughter, Dolores Vanover, Williamsport, Pa.

Creswell Brothers Meet After 29-year Separation

Municipal Airport yesterday was the scene of the reunion of two brothers who had not seen one another since they parted in Belfast, Ireland, 29 years ago.

The airport meeting brought together William A. Creswell, Klamath Falls, and James Creswell, Toronto, Canada. The former has a ranch on the Merrill Highway and is connected with McCulloch Motors. James Creswell is purchasing agent for the Canadian Pulp and Paper Company in Toronto.

It was May 2, 1924 when William bade James and other members of the family farewell and sailed for the United States. About two years later, James came to Canada. Twice since then, the brothers have narrowly missed being reunited; once it was in Northern Canada, again in Chicago.

Recently, James came to the West Coast to a convention in Los Angeles and yesterday he came here from Southern California on a United Air Lines flight. William and his wife were awaiting James at the airport.

The Creswell ancestral home is in Londonderry, Ulster County, Northern Ireland. Two other Creswell brothers, Dave and Talbert, are still in Ireland.

James Creswell plans to visit
