Salary Curb Off Klamath Tribe Affairs

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower has signed a bill, introduced by Congressman Sam Coon, releasing the Klamath Indians from legal limitation on the amount of money that they can spend in conducting their tribal affairs. Wade Crawford, official delegate from the Klamath Tribe, announced the passage of the bill from Washington today.
The bill, the first law initiated by Congressman Coon to be signed by the President, removes the limit on salaries and expenses of Indian officials conducting tribal business. Expenditures were formerly limited by law to $15,000 per year. The new law provides that the amount of money to be spent is subject only to the approval of the Secretary of the Interior.
This law is the first of a group of Indian laws introduced in the Congress this year by Rep. Coon at the request of Crawford and Boyd J. Jackson, delegates of the Klamath Tribe. The delegates went to Washington early this year to work for the new legislation.
"I feel that this administration is really doing something for the Indians," said Crawford, who is in Washington to attend hearings on the other bills. "They are not just making political promises, they're really doing something. It's the first light I've seen in 20 years."
"I feel very grateful to Congressman Coon. His cooperation has been a thousand per cent. Other Indian Tribes are watching his bill."
The other bills provide for a tribal loan fund to be administered by the Indians, subject to Oregon banking laws; confer on the state of Oregon civil and criminal jurisdiction over Indians; authorize the

LIVESTOCK
CHICAGO LIVESTOCK
CHICAGO (AP) — Hog prices this week rose to their highest point in four and one-half years, then tumbled 75 cents to $1.25 as receipts increased.
A top price of $26.90 Monday was the highest point since Oct. 1, 1948. Prices began falling as hog receipts grew to the largest for any week since early May. A lower wholesale market also contributed to declines of 75 cents to $1.00 in barrows and gilts and 75 cents to $1.25 in sows.
Cattle receipts were the largest for any week since early December. Fed steers and yearlings predominated with prices steady to 90 cents low or on slaughter steers and yearlings. Heifers sold steady to weak. Cows closed $1.00 to $1.50 higher and vealers were steady to $1.00 higher. Slaughter calves closed weak to $1.00 lower. The top price was $25.00 paid for prime steers and yearlings; scaling about 1.275 pounds.
Sheep and lamb receipts showed little change during the week, except at Chicago where receipts practically doubled. Prices on slaughter lambs were sharply lower. Native spring lambs were off $2.00 to $4.00. Declines in other $3.00.
Klamath Tribe to adopt an enforceable code for hunting, fishing and trapping on the Klamath reservation, and provide for final settlement of shares in the assets of the Klamath Tribe.
The Indian Bills are in line with the Department of Interior's new policy of ending federal responsibility for Indian affairs as rapidly as circumstances will permit, according to Congressman Coon. Both houses of the Oregon Legislature have sent a memorial to Congress urging that the bill be passed, he said.
