Latest note from Korea: Thousands of South Koreans (most of them young and most of them students) are parading the streets of Seoul shouting: "Yankee, GO HOME!" I imagine every Yank in Korea would like nothing better than to be able to do just that.

Italy's parliamentary election (held on Sunday and Monday) isn't turning out too well for our side. With the bulk of the votes counted, de Gasperi's middle-of-the-road (whom we backed) appears to have slipped while the communists and extreme socialists on what is called the "left" and the extreme stand-patters on what is called the "right" gained. The dispatches this morning say the extreme rightists and the extreme leftists (who hate each other poisonously) are expected to unite against DE GASPERI'S PRO-WESTERN POLICIES.

It sounds a little like the case of the Good Neighbor who tried to settle a family fight next door and came out of it badly battered and without a friend in the block.

There is some consolation, though, in the Italian election. One of the numerous Italian parties (there are eight major ones and a couple of dozen minors of all shades of opinion) promised a four-hour workday and a steak on every plate and came out of the campaign with only 400 votes out of a total of approximately 27,000,000 ballots cast.

Italy is very, very old. It has lived through about everything in the way of politics. It has seen bread and circuses to take the people's minds off corruption in government. Over the centuries, it has heard about as many promises of redistribution of the land as there have been demagogic politicians. Over and over, it has seen the have-nots lined up against the haves by these same demagogic politicians.

People who have SEEN EVERYTHING are apt to get cynical in their old age. Hence, possibly, the resounding flop of the steak-on-every-plate party.

Before becoming too cynical, Ed like to add that President Eisenhower asks congress today to make available a million tons of wheat for the relief of the famine-stricken people of Pakistan. The wheat would come from the stocks of the commodity credit corporation, which have been accumulated by the government in the process of buying up wheat to keep the price up. Our government-owned stocks of wheat are so large that we wouldn't miss a few million bushels—and we have a new crop coming on and know where we're going to find storage for it.

If we're going to give out of our abundance, I'm pretty sure we can find no better way than giving food to starving people.

Let's close this regrettably scur discussion of international affairs on a fairly humorous note.

In Kingswinford, England, a burglar broke into a home night before last and stole the British money equivalent of $1200. He was a trifle clumsy in his house-breaking and awakened the householder who (advised only in his undies) chased the intruder down the street and overhauled him.

The burglar, when arraigned in court this morning, explained to the magistrate that he surrendered because of an "acute sense of morality." It didn't appear to him, he said, for an English householder to be chasing a burglar through the public streets attired only in his under-clothing.

It was a noble effort on the burglar's part to put the incident on a high plane, but most clear-eyed cynics will agree that the real reason the guy gave up was that he was being OUTRUN.

Chiloquin Police Chief Says He Solved Wine Theft

Chiloquin Police Chief Louis Jones says the challenging robbery of the town's police station was cleaned up about 16 hours after it happened.

Friday night, a thief broke in the police station and made off with approximately 7½ gallons of wine which had been confiscated and stored in the station.

Chief Jones traced the wine, arrested and jailed B.M. Weeks, 27. Despite the large amount of spirits involved and the relatively short time between the theft and arrest, Chief Jones said only a small amount of the wine was recovered.

G. P. Davis Quits Lorenz As President

By LYLE DOWNING

George P. Davis announced his resignation Wednesday as president of the Lorenz Co., one of the Northwest's leading wholesale hardware and implement firms.

New president of the company, named Tuesday night at a meeting of the board of directors, is Wesley C. Lorenz, son of the founder.

Roy W. Benedict, who joined the Lorenz Co. in May 1951, was named vice president and general sales manager. Other officers named by the directorate were Roy T. Premo, treasurer and Martha McCollum, secretary.

Davis, president of the Klamath Falls Chamber of Commerce and leader in many other civic enterprises, in announcing his resignation said he was realizing a life long ambition in retiring from active direction of one concern in order to devote his time to business consultation work over a wider field. He retains a substantial interest in the company and remains on its board of directors.

The new president of the company is described as "having grown up with the business" which was founded by his father, G. C. Lorenz. He entered the employ of Lorenz Co. immediately after graduation from The University of Oregon. At the time he was named to his present post, Lorenz was vice president of the firm.

The new vice president of the company came to Klamath Falls from San Francisco where he was prominently identified with the wholesale hardware and implement business for many years. He began his business career in Minneapolis and moved to the Pacific Coast in 1936.

Bonneville Funds Upped

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $7,893,000 increase in funds for the Bonneville Power Administration over the amount recommended by the House was recommended Wednesday by a Senate appropriations subcommittee.

Chairman Gordon (R-Ore) said the group voted $54,193,000 for use of the agency in the year beginning July 1, including $44,193,000 in new construction money and seven million for operation and maintenance.

In addition, Gordon said, the agency has available three million dollars in unobligated construction funds from previous appropriations.

Major changes made by the Senate subcommittee for BPA in its draft of the Interior Department appropriation bill included addition of $2,805,000 denied by the House for construction of the Snohomish-Kittitas underwater cable to serve Olympic Peninsula points, and addition of these items, all of which had been denied by the House:

Iiwaco-Long Beach area service, $109,000; Idaho Panhandle $114,000; Columbia Falls, Mont., service $103,000 (deleted); $30,000 for Kalspell, Mont., substitution).

The Senate subcommittee recommended $2,184,000 for the Dalles area service and McNary substitution. The House had held this to $480,000. The Senate group specifically earmarked one million dollars of this increase for getting power to the Harvey Aluminum Plant at The Dalles.

Ike Asks Wheat For Pakistan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower asked Congress Wednesday to make available up to one million tons of wheat for relief in Pakistan.

In a special message he said the people of Pakistan are faced with famine and have asked "our help in meeting disaster."

The President asked for an immediate grant of up to 700,000 tons of United States wheat.

In addition, he said, Pakistan may also need up to 300,000 tons as a necessary working reserve of wheat. The exact amount needed for this purpose will be determined later.

The wheat would come out of stocks held by the Commodity Credit Corporation. It was bought under the government's price support program.

Golf and Country Club for cards and golf from 2 to 5 p.m. Tea will be served from 3:30 to 5 o'clock by the Tokatee Lions Auxiliary. The Governor's banquet and ball, formal for ladies will be held in the Armory, starting at 6:30 p.m.

State officers will be elected during the Tuesday morning session and a joint luncheon for both men and women at 1 p.m. in the Armory is on the program.

Local officers who are assisting with plans for the convention are: Mrs. Joe Thomas, president; Mrs. Irving Burke, vice president; Mrs. Van Mollison, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Winston Purvine, liaison officer; Mrs. Walter Wiesendanger, Mrs. Lyle Keilstrom, Mrs. Robert Veatch and Mrs. Truman Runyan, directors.

Tornado Hits Massachusetts

At Least 85 Dead; Hunt Continues

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — National guardsmen patrolled the rubble-filled streets of 11 Worcester County communities Wednesday as searchers dug through ruins left by a death-dealing tornado that took at least 85 lives, made 2,500 homeless and caused up to 50 million dollars damage.

Authorities feared the death toll might rise. Police said ruins of 300 houses still remained to be searched. Approximately 800 persons were injured.

Frantic families visited morgues and hospitals in search of missing relatives and friends. In one Worcester hospital there were eight unidentified bodies.

30 MINUTES LONG

The worst tornado ever to visit New England whirled in a twisting, destructive path through Central Massachusetts during the supper hour Tuesday. It spent its fury within 30 minutes.

City Councillor Irving Katz, a real estate man, estimated the damage at 50 million dollars. Gov. Herter has declared the stricken sections a disaster area.

In Washington, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation declared stricken sections are qualified for special loan treatment.

A spokesman for insurance companies said probably most homes and automobiles were covered by insurance, as most fire insurance policies and bank mortgage coverage include such damage clauses.

SIGHTSEERS WARNED

About 400 of the injured were either hospitalized or treated at first aid stations. All sightseers were warned to keep away from the devastated districts.

More than 10,000 volunteers from Massachusetts and other New England states worked to aid the injured and homeless.

The Worcester housing authority will give city officials identification of all persons who own or occupy 2,500 housing units in the blasted area.

State highways, blocked overnight by debris, were opened Wednesday night. Repair crews of the Worcester public works department discovered several leaking gas mains and gas workers were summoned to fix them.

Flint Toll Reaches 111

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — As the second dawn rose on the wreckage left by a string of Michigan and Ohio tornadoes, news resumed cleanup work and the long search for more dead.

Worst hit in the roaring winds that whirled down out of Monday evening's dark skies were the northern outskirts of this industrial city. The dead here were counted at 111.

But twisters took at least eight other gigantic swipes to kill a 1,000 and do possibly 15 million dollars in property damage.

Eight died in the Cleveland area, eight in Wood County, Ohio, and one each in Elyria, O., and Ceylon, O.

In Michigan, four were killed in Erie, just across the Ohio line, four in Tawas, a northern resort town, and one each in the Ann Arbor area and the tiny Lapeer County village of Brown City.

State Police Capt. Lawrence Meehan, in charge of hundreds of police still on the scene north of Flint, reported that workers were convinced they had found all bodies.

TORNADO HITS TWO STATES — Hardest hit by the twister that buzz-sawed across Eastern Michigan and Northwestern Ohio was this district (left) on the North side of Flint, Mich. In background is a drive-in theater where numerous injuries were reported. At right is area where twister hit hardest in Cleveland, O. The first death count stood at 143 persons with more than 1,000 others injured.

TORNADO'S TOLL — The Armory at Flint, Mich., is turned into a morgue as rescue workers bring in bodies of victims killed by the tornado that swept across Michigan and Ohio. Of the 143 persons killed in the two states, Michigan counted 124 dead.

Roundup Dressup Day With Kangaroo Court Saturday

BULLETIN

Martha McAuliffe, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. McAuliffe, Malin, filed as a Roundup Queen candidate late today. She was the eighth girl to sign. Deadline for entries is 5 p.m., today.

This year's Klamath Basin Roundup festivities go into high gear this week with three big events scheduled, Tomorrow, it is the annual ranch outing and picnic for the queen candidates; Saturday Dressup Day and Kangaroo Court will hold its first session; Saturday night is the annual Roundup Street Ball, with dancing on N. 7th between Main and Pine.

The queen candidates' outing tomorrow is only for the girls. Roundup directors and a Saddle Club escort for the girls. The event will be at the Linky Ranch.

All loyal Basin folk are expected to break out Saturday in as much Western garb as they can muster and continue sporting the gay duds until the Roundup concludes with the Fourth of July rodeo.

Kangaroo Court is to be set up in a truck bed and roam the downtown area to mete out penalties to those not wearing sufficient Western garb. It will be all in fun, of course, and any who seriously object to the spirit of the occasion will be allowed to go their conventional way.

Members of the Klamath Sheriff's posse and the queen candidates will police the town on horseback to haul offenders before Kangaroo Court.

"The biggest show on earth for 25 cents" is scheduled for the Fairgrounds, Sunday afternoon. This is the annual Queen Trials show wherein queen candidates are rated on their horsemanship. But that is only one of 12 events projected; there will be races, drills, stunts and novelty events to make an entire afternoon's show. Children 12 and under will be admitted free.

Free Nations Must Stand Together

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — President Eisenhower said Wednesday all the free nations of the world must stand together in the "total defense" against Communism.

He declared the United States even though the strongest nation on earth, "cannot make our own decisions, fight and stand as only we ourselves may choose."

"There is no such thing as partial unity. That is a contradiction in terms," Eisenhower said in a speech prepared for the National Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The President also took occasion to defend his controversial cut in the Truman administration's Air Force budget, declaring his program will mean "fewer planes in theory, more planes in fact—more swiftly and less expensively."

'MAGIC NUMBERS'

In pointed words, Eisenhower declared that the insistence of his critics on "magic numbers" an apparent reference to those insisting on a 143-wing Air Force—is "not reasonable."

The President named no names in Wednesday's speech, his first on a five-state tour that will keep him away from Washington until Sunday night, but he elaborated some of the views he expressed after Sen. Taft's (R-Ohio) recent speech proposing that this country "forget the United Nations" if current armistice talks in Korea fail to stop the fighting.

Taft later said he didn't mean this country should "go it alone" but rather that the United States should form an alliance with Britain and those other countries willing to fight Communism in Asia actively.

Outlining what he called "our whole concept" of the conduct of world affairs, Eisenhower hammered on the theme that unity with allies of the free world is necessary the globe over.

'ALL WE HAVE LEARNED'

He said: "A total struggle—let us never forget it—calls for a total defense. As there is no weapon too small, no arena too remote—to be ignored, so there is no free nation too humble to be forgotten. All of us have learned—first from the onslaught of Nazi aggression, then from Communist aggression—that all free nations must stand together, or they shall fall separately."

And this "essential, indispensable unity," he declared, "means compromise." The essence of the Democratic process is compromise "within a clearly defined, clearly understood framework of principle," the President said.

Eisenhower set out this concept of indispensable unity as he called "the fortress theory" of defense.

This, he said, is the theory that asks why the strongest nation in the world cannot stand by itself why particularly in Asia, "where so many of our sons have died in freedom's name, cannot we make our own decisions, fight and stand as we ourselves may choose?"

NO 'PARITAL UNITY'

Declaring there can be no "parital unity," Eisenhower declared: "How—where—can there be retreat from this unity? Surrender Asia? That would mean giving a vast portion of the population of the entire world to be mobilized by the forces of aggression. Surrender Europe? That would mean more than doubling the industrial power of those same (Communist) forces."

"Who is there who thinks that the strength of America is so great—its burdens so easy, its future so secure—that it could make so generous a gift to those challenging our very lives?"

Eisenhower said there had been "a good deal of unhappy murmuring about the United Nations" and understandably so since "none of us is above irritation and frustration over the seemingly vain and tedious processes of political discourse in times of great crisis."

They met for an hour and 36 minutes, then adjourned until Thursday.

In apparently, thousands of Korean youths snaked through Seoul streets in apparently well-organized demonstrations.

Second Probation Violator Who Claimed Morgan's Okay is Freed

By LYLE DOWNING

For second time in 48 hours a defendant took the stand in Circuit Judge David Vandenberg's court late Tuesday and testified that he had been given permission by State Probation Officer Paul Morgan to violate the rules of the court.

The latest defendant to face court for a probation revocation hearing was Robert Miller, convicted on Sept. 29, 1952, of issuing a worthless $5 check. Judge Vandenberg refused to revoke Miller's probation.

Before ordering Miller released, Judge Vandenberg castigated Morgan for his action in allowing the defendant to move to Alturas without first getting permission from the court.

Judge Vandenberg also said he believed Miller was falsely arrested in Alturas before he was returned to Klamath Falls as a probation violator. In dismissing the action against Miller, Judge Vandenberg stated:

"Now here we have another motion to revoke probation, the grounds being, of course, that he was convicted of the crime of drunkenness—that he left the State of Oregon, his leaving the State of Oregon took place in the statement that "a court isn't supposed to be fooled with by a probation officer or any other officer."

"I'll admit this one has been tampered with to a great extent as you can see from the testimony. I am not going to punish the defendant. The motion for revocation of probation is denied."

Miller told the court he was picked up by sheriff's deputies in Alturas on a car theft charge.

"After they got me in jail," he testified, "they told me they were going to change the charge to drunkenness. They told me to plead guilty and they get a suspended sentence. Although I had not had anything to drink, I did what they said and I got a 30-day suspended sentence."

After disposing of the cause, Judge Vandenberg reiterated a statement made Monday that Probation Officer Morgan had given many probationers permission to violate all the rules for probation issued by the court.

"Such practice," he declared, "threatens the entire probation system. There will no more of it in this county."

Monday the court refused to revoke the probation of Larry Witt, a musician, on similar grounds.
