Whole Court

we are not sure, there will be lingering doubts to plague the conscience after the event." At the Sing Sing death house, the condemned couple heard the news of their fourth reprieve over the prison loudspeaker system.

There was no immediate word from them in their concrete-walled cells but guards and Warden Wilfred L. Denno described their reactions.

ROSENBERGS HAPPY — "They seemed very happy," Denno said. Rosenberg took a deep breath and the tenseness left his face. His wife, Ethel, closed her eyes and smiled. Once again—at least temporarily—death had passed them by.

The husband and wife are in separate cells in the death house. The point on which Douglas granted the stay was raised by two lawyers who have been described by the Rosenberg trial judge, Irving R. Kaufman, as "truders and interlopers." The lawyers are Fyke Farmer of Nashville, Tenn., and Daniel G. Marshall of Los Angeles, Calif.

Douglas's decision was issued moments after President Eisenhower's news conference. The Rosenberg case was not discussed there.

French President Appeals To Ike — NEW YORK — CBS radio correspondent David Schoenbrun reported from Paris last night that French President Vincent Auriol had recommended to President Eisenhower that the Julius and Ethel Rosenberg death sentences be commuted "in the best interests of the United States."

Schoenbrun said this is the first time in history that a president of the French Republic has intervened in American affairs.

Auriol, Schoenbrun said, called on Foreign Minister Georges Bidault to deliver his request to the American ambassador in Paris for transmission to Washington, and that the request has been transmitted.

Schoenbrun said the French President was undoubtedly moved to take this unprecedented action by the excitement and interest in France over the fate of the Rosenbergs.

This is not the reaction of Communists, Schoenbrun reported, but of anti-Communists who believe the best course lies in clemency since they feel that the execution of the Rosenbergs would make martyrs of them and serve the cause of the Communist propagandists.

Bloch had obtained the Rosenbergs' signatures on a visit to Sing Sing yesterday with the couple's sons, Michael 10, and Robert, 6. The couple's petition urged the President to "prevent a crime worse than murder" and said that "the guilt, if we die, will be America's."

"We are innocent," the petition said. "The truth does not change." This wording was similar to that in a recent statement in which the Rosenbergs declared they had rejected an offer, which they said came from Atty. Gen. Brownell, for clemency if they would tell what they know of Soviet espionage in this country.

Bloch, asked if there was any chance they would talk in an effort to save their lives, replied: "No, they still maintain in their innocence."

Official Moscow newspapers, in their editions for today, took up the Rosenberg case for the first time and declared that "progressive opinion" in the U. S. and the world generally regards them as "the victims of the war hysteria."

"At the trial of the Rosenbergs," the Moscow papers said, "there was not presented any convincing proof whatsoever of their guilt."

Communists in 17 countries at the world have been agitating on behalf of the Rosenbergs claiming they were convicted on perjured testimony. Red Poland yesterday offered to grant the couple "asylum" if the U. S. freed them—an offer which the State Department denounced as an "impertinence" to which it would not reply.

There have also been numerous appeals in behalf of the couple from church groups and individuals never accused of Communist sympathies.

The clergymen who called on Eisenhower to urge that he commute the sentence to life imprisonment were Dr. Bernard Loomer, head of the University of Chicago's School of Religion; the Rev. Daniel Ridout, Negro secretary of the Methodist Church in the Baltimore area; Rabbi Abraham Cronbach of Cincinnati; and Dr. Bruce Dahlberg of Brooklyn.

"My feeling was that the answer was no," said Dr. Loomer. The Rev. Mr. Ridout said the President indicated he would not commute the sentence.

One of the arguments made to Justice Douglas was that the trial judge, U. S. District Judge Irving R. Kaufman of New York, had no right to impose the death sentence.

Attorneys argued that the Atomic Energy Act supersedes the 1917 Espionage Act under which the couple was sentenced, and that under the Atomic Energy Act the death sentence may not be imposed without a recommendation from the jury.

Pilot Avoids Schoolground With Crashing Plane, Dies

FORESTVILLE, Md. (AP) — The pilot of an F86 jet plane was credited by eyewitnesses today with steering his disabled plane into a clump of woods rather than crashing it onto a schoolground where children were playing.

The plane exploded in midair just before hitting the trees and scattering wreckage over a 200-yard area near the schoolground. The pilot, tentatively identified as Capt. Francis T. Evans of Washington, D. C., was killed.

Witnesses said he either tried to bail out or was ejected from the crashing plane seconds after he headed it for the wooded area.

Fred Spinks, president of the Forestville Citizens Association, who saw the crash, said: "It was an act of heroism. The plane would have hit the school if he hadn't steered it away."

A spokesman at nearby Andrews Air Force Base said something went wrong with the plane's hydraulic system.

The pilot's body was found about 50 feet from the plane. His head was crushed and his partially opened parachute lay crumpled beside him.
