Captain of Log Held After Not Yielding to Ship

LONG BEACH, Calif. — The captain of a log doesn't have the rights accorded the captain of a freighter, Edward Gutman has discovered.
 The captain of the freighter told the Coast Guard he had to bring his big ship to a halt in mid-channel between San Pedro and Terminal Island last night.
 He said a log ridden by Gutman was blocking his way, and Gutman yelled, "I'm the captain of this log and I'm not going to get out of your way."
 The Coast Guard sent a cutter, Gutman, 32, a transient, was arrested on a drunk count. His log was beached.

Farley Granger Drops Work To Improve On His Acting

HOLLYWOOD — Bobby-sox idol Farley Granger has left his thriving Hollywood career behind to learn how to be a better actor.
 It may sound like sheer folly, but the handsome young actor has wiggled out of his contract with Sam Goldwyn, closed his home here and departed for more stimulating climes. That doesn't mean he won't be back. He explained his plan before he left.
 "A couple of years ago, I was making a picture," recalled Granger, the typical Hollywood hero in slacks and tennis sweater. "I stopped myself in the middle of it and realized I was sliding by on my previous reputation and the tricks I had learned in pictures. That wasn't good.
 "I decided I should do something about it. After all, I want to be an actor as long as I can. I know that I can't always get by because of a bobby-sox following. Some day a new guy like Tao Hunter will come along and they'll flock to him, if I haven't grown as an actor, I'll have nothing left to go on but personality. Personality is a good quality for an actor, but he has to have ability too."
 Granger decided he would have to return to the stage in order to gain more maturity as an actor. Except for a three-year hitch in the Navy, he had been in the movies 10 years and hadn't done any stage work since his middle teens.
 His boss, Mr. Goldwyn, couldn't see it his way. He would give the lead contractual concessions but never the time off to do a play. This and other matters touched off an intermittent feud in which the actor was suspended a number of times.

He finally got his freedom. Eighteen months of it, anyway. Granger is able to direct his own destiny for that period, then Goldwyn has the option of signing him up to another contract.
 His first try at the footlights will be a four-week summer theater tour in "John Loves Mary" in New England. Then he leaves for Italy where he'll make "Senso," a color epic with Alida Valli and George Sanders.
 "After that, I want to tackle Broadway," he remarked. "I've got a play in mind that I'd like to do. If they can wait until I get back from Italy—about December—I'll do it."
 If he gets into a hit play in

New York, that would mean he wouldn't be able to do a picture until summer of 1954 and perhaps later. How would that affect his youthful following, which is notably tickle?
 "That's one of the gambles I have to take," he replied. "I may flop on my face when I try the stage. But the important thing is that I tried. It's more important to have tried the thing and failed than never to try. I would always bear the regret for not having taken the chance."

Ike Asked Clarification

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Jackson (D-Wash.) said today President Eisenhower "in fairness" ought to clarify his declaration that the State Department has his permission to burn books containing down-right Communist propaganda.
 Eisenhower made the statement at a news conference yesterday and when asked, declined to say whether his gibe at "book burners," in a speech at Dartmouth College Sunday, was aimed at Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.). Eisenhower's reply was that he never deals in personalities.
 McCarthy, who said he was sure he was not the target of Eisenhower's remark, said after the news conference:
 "I think he has given a commendable clarification of the Dartmouth speech, which apparently has been misunderstood by many newsmen."
 McCarthy amended the comment later to "misunderstood by many persons."
 The President's denunciation of "book burners" had been interpreted widely as aimed at McCarthy's successful fight to remove from U. S. overseas libraries what the senator contends are "30,000 Communist books" by some 200 authors.
