Beaver Leads Trappings

Oregon's fur trappers have the state beaver to thank for $107,889.00 of their earnings during last winter's trapping season according to statistics compiled by the Oregon State Game Commission. Figures based on beaver tag card returns indicate that 10,374 of the large-sized rodents were trapped between Nov. 15, 1932 and Jan. 15, 1933.

Though the national price average declined approximately $2 since last year, Oregon trappers received an average of $1 more per pelt. This is attributed to better handling and preparation of the furs for market. The average price while serving at the Naval Medical School Command, Bethesda, Md.

Food Sale—Ladies home league of the Salvation Army will hold a food sale at Sears and Roebuck Saturday a.m. beginning at 9:30.

Wm. T. Ward Jr.—truck driver for the Dav. A. Richardson Co. is in very critical condition in the Albany hospital following a crash in which his truck was hit by a car.

of $13.24. Muskrat averaged $1.00 per pelt.

Prices on marten, fox, skunk, and other furbearers remained low, but coupled with the three leaders comprised a valuable Oregon crop which through proper management can be harvested on a sustained basis annually.
