

Humphrey Bogart Returns, Blasts 3-D Pictures

by BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD—Humphrey Bogart, Hollywood's great dissenter, is back in town and delivering a blast at 3-D pictures.

Bogart has an opinion on everything. He even knocked the Academy Awards after he had received one for "The African Queen." Just back from Europe for one picture and getting ready to leave for Hawaii on another, he said of 3-D films:

"I think they stink. They're going to ruin the movie business."

Take a look at the movie ads and see all the junk they're putting out in the guise of entertainment. Men from Mars and all that baloney!

"It was the same way when talking came in. Any picture that talked could go out and make a mint, no matter how crummy it was. So they just ground out lousy pictures, knowing the gullible public would snap them up. The same guys who cashed in on the talkie craze are doing it now."

"As a result, the real creators of the business—the men with taste and ability—are left out in the cold. They aren't going toinker with these gimmicks. So the quality of picture is going to hit a low low."

Bogart said that he and John Huston were ready to start their European venture, "Beat the Devil," when the 3-D revolution broke out.

"We were in Italy when we read a copy of Variety telling all about it," he recalled. "Big panic! Everything is a crisis to John and he was running around trying to get one of the new lenses. Finally, cooler heads prevailed, and we shot the picture 'flat and black.'"

"But we got a good picture. I think the public will still buy 'flat and black' pictures—if they're good."

While he is in an argumentative mood, Bogart added another blast at Hollywood glamor girls. I trust this does not include his wife, Lauren Bacall.

"They should take a lesson from the European actresses," he said scornfully. "Like Gina Lollobrigida, who was in our picture. What a doll! That girl can do anything. She can make her own wigs. I don't mean just put them on; I mean make them! She can make her own eyelashes too, and she wouldn't think of asking anyone to do her makeup or costumes. She does it all herself."

"Can you imagine these Hollywood hot-house flowers being asked to do something for themselves? They'd probably faint dead away."

Bogart returned to his Hollywood haunts looking fairly healthy—for him. He is ready to hop off again for Hawaii, to film locations of "The Game Mutiny," in which he'll play the infamous Captain Queeg.

During the filming of "Beat the Devil," there were numerous reports of feuds involving himself, Huston, Jennifer Jones, David Selznick and even Truman Capote the fashionable writer who was helping with the script.

"Nothing to all that talk," Bogart replied. "Jennifer was okay, once we figured how to handle her. She doesn't take a kidding, the way Katie Hepburn would. I'd say, 'This thing is bigger than both of us.' But she wouldn't talk like that. I'll leave, she'd reply."

"She's a strange girl—aby to the extreme. But a helluva actress."

"As for Selznick, he'd send us three-page cablegrams which we would ignore. But he was helpful with some suggestions when he was at the location."

"That character Capote was okay too. The only time I got mad at him was when he tried to demonstrate some judo and nearly broke my arm."

Malin
Mrs. JOE HALOUSEK

The Ladies Aid of the Malin Presbyterian Church held a most enjoyable meeting Thursday afternoon when Mrs. Ab Herringshaw, Henley, reviewed the book "The Beloved Country." The story, while it is fictitious, tells about life in South Africa and how fear rules this great land. This fact, of course, is very true on life in Africa today. It is also the class distinction between the black and white.

A great deal of thought and preparation was evident in Mrs. Herringshaw's review.

Also adding to the enjoyment of those present was a duet sung by Mrs. Berill Shogren and her daughter, Bertha, of Klamath Falls. After the meeting the hostesses, Mrs. Milo Smith and Mrs. Marion Monfore, served refreshments to Mrs. Jerry Micka, Mrs. Dick Derry, Mrs. Fred Pope, Mrs. Robert Hill, Mrs. Howard Henderson, Mrs. Dick Terry, Mrs. George Fabianek, Mrs. Bud Hagerly, Mrs. Werner Bunge, Mrs. George Smalley, Mrs. Dick Hensel, Mrs. Merle Loosley, Mrs. Harriet Fotheringham and sister, who is visiting from the East, Mrs. Charles Johnson, Mrs. Teresa McComb, Mrs. Berill Shogren and Bertha of Klamath Falls.

Nelson; treasurer, Mrs. Cecil Zelder; Volving Delegate, Ray Drake; livestock, FFA and 4-H, Earl Wilson; potatoes, W. E. Schmidt; poultry, Laddie Toftell; field crops, Phillip G. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Edwin Stastny and Mrs. Charles Street at the close of the meeting.

Prosperity Social Club met at the Malin Masonic Hall on Thursday evening, June 25, with 12 members present. The business meeting was conducted by Pres. Doris Smith. Committee chairmen, appointed to serve for the Boy Scout meal July 11, were asked for their reports. Much discussion was held on the menu items which will be served to around 700 decided so that orders may be made in advance.

Chairmen appointed for the dinner are: meat, Marlan Stastny and Frances Kalina; potatoes, Ethel Hamilton; vegetables, Florence Wilson; gravy, Florence DeMerritt; dessert, Ann Pruts; bread and butter, Thelma Clugston; beverage, Betty Halousek; trays and silver, Marian Wilson; and Hazel Bowman, the committee of Rainbow Girls who will help serve. The Masonic Lodge have to help. Members who had returned from attending Grand Chapter Sessions in Portland, made brief reports.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Jess Smith.

The Malin Garden Club met Wednesday afternoon, June 24, at the W. C. Dalton home with Mrs. Dalton and Mrs. Ben Johnson hostesses. The meeting was in charge of the newly installed officers, President Mrs. Loyall Lovness, Vice Pres. Mrs. Robert Hill, Secretary Mrs. Phil Blohm and Treasurer Mrs. Merle Loosley.

Members voted to hold a local flower show in August. The newly printed year books, in the shape of a pausy, were distributed to members. Several reported on the tour of Klamath Falls gardens which they had taken the day before.

Program Chairman Mrs. Frank Paygr introduced Mrs. Dale West of Merrill, who gave a flower arranging lesson, demonstrating with various containers and many different blooms. After demonstrations, she passed around the containers and flowers to the group and each one made an arrangement. Members voted on the one they liked best by placing stars at each arrangement. Mrs. Connie Lovness's arrangement received the most stars.

Present were: Mrs. Phil Blohm, Mrs. Walter Stastny, Mrs. Edwin Stastny, Mrs. Charles Hamilton, Mrs. Merle Loosley, Mrs. Carlo Cornetti, Mrs. Teresa McComb, Mrs. Frank Paygr, Mrs. A. H.
