A CROWD stands outside a Paris dress shop, attracted by the novelty of a live mannequin and the costume she is modeling. The shop is using girls instead of the usual store window dummies to display its line of bathing suits.

Bella Darvi Spent 3 Years In Concentration Camp

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Bella Darvi is a piquantly beautiful import from France with a warm, dimpled smile. You'd never suspect that she had spent three years in the hell of a Nazi concentration camp.

In her first acting role, Miss Darvi walked right into the lead with Richard Widmark in the Cine-ma scope epic called "Hell and High Water." Onlookers marveled at the ease with which she performed her first scene. She flawlessly delivered five minutes of dialogue, using four languages.

It was a challenge to Bella, but then life has been a series of challenges.

"I was born in Poland, but I moved to France when I was 3 or 4 years old," she related. "I was in France when the Germans took over. My brother was arrested and taken to Germany. He never came back."

"My mother thought we should leave Paris, since we were considered enemy aliens. But I was young (15) and didn't realize the danger. I wanted to stay in my school, so I got some false papers that said I was 21 and French. My mother left for the South."

Bella later decided to join her mother. But when she tried to leave the German-held sector, an official recognized her papers as false. She still maintained her age as 21 and was tossed in jail. She stayed there three months, cooped up "with murderers and other bad women."

Finally she told her age and was transferred to a workhouse run by a religious order. She found that worse than jail. Through her mother's help, she was allowed to hire a lawyer and got a hearing of her case. She was granted her freedom but couldn't travel alone to join her mother! She had to return to the workhouse.

Back in the dreary routine, high-spirited Bella revolted. She got into a big fight and was seized by the authorities. She was thrown into a concentration camp in France. Three years of privation and indignities followed.

Her escape from the horror is as dramatic as any movie.

"After three years, the camp director called me in and told me I was free!" she recalled. "My mother had finally been able to get me out. But the director said he wished I would stay for three more days. It was just before New Year's Eve and I was to appear in the camp play. He said I owed it to the other prisoners. It was a good part and my first play, so I said I would stay."

"That night I couldn't sleep. My mind was turning fiercely and I thought and thought about my situation. The next day I told the director that I couldn't stay. My head told me I had to get out of there. So he let me go."

"The next day every prisoner in the camp was sent to Germany!"

After the war, Bella did a little modeling. One night she met Mr. and Mrs. Darryl Zanuck at a Parisian party. They became good friends, and the producer's wife invited Bella to visit them in Hollywood.

She came here seven months ago. A screen test was arranged. It turned out fine. After arduous months of learning English, she was given a top role, the only female one, in "Hell and High Water." She plays a French scientist on a sub expedition to Russian atomic territory.

Robbers Knock Phone Of Hook; Efforts Heard

DAVENPORT, Okla. (AP)—A couple of men, described by police as professional burglars, did a very unprofessional thing here yesterday and had to beat a hasty retreat.

They knocked a phone off the hook after breaking into the Security State Bank in the wee hours of the morning.

An 18-year-old telephone operator, Martha Jackson, said she could hear a lot of "loud banging and hammering" at the bank. She notified police.

But apparently the burglars had heard Miss Jackson say "Number please," and escaped in their car with 18 safety deposit boxes, containing only $1,435. A nearby vault had $20,000.

Man Enters Army Wrong Way, Caught

BALTIMORE (AP)—The "Wright way" into the Army is the wrong way, a United States commissioner decided yesterday as he ordered a 19-year-old Pittsburgh Negro held in $1,000 bail on a charge of impersonating a soldier.

The Pittsburgh youth, Lumles J. Wright, memorized a soldier's name and serial number, and convinced military authorities he had missed an induction train. He was taken to Ft. Meade, issued uniforms and supplied with bedding until the Army learned of the deception.

From Medical Museum, Interested Student Can Draw A Kidney Just Like A Book

WASHINGTON (AP)—Say what you like about John Wilkes Booth, the man who shot Lincoln, he was a fellow with a lot of backbone.

Wisconsin Scout Dies in Fall

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—A Wisconsin Boy Scout died last night, a Memorial Hospital official said, of injuries received when he fell from one train and was run over by another while en route to the National Boy Scout Jamboree near Los Angeles.

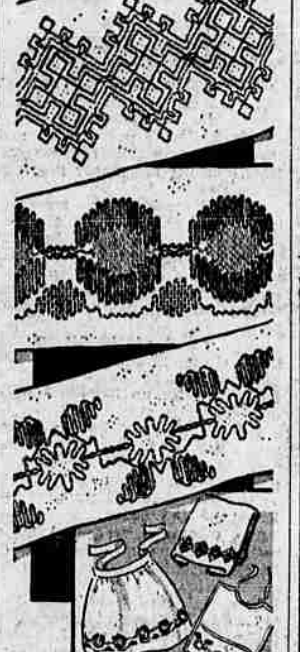

The victim, Roger Swenson, 15, of Hayward, Wis., was injured early Tuesday at Leith, Nev., 86 miles east of here. His left arm was severed at the shoulder. His right arm and both legs were broken.

Teenagers to Get Chair for Holdup

NEW YORK (AP)—Two teenagers have been sentenced to the electric chair for murdering a Brooklyn grocer with a meat cleaver and a knife in a $100 holdup.

Sentenced yesterday were Henry Allen, 19, and John Martin, 18. They killed Gaspare Ingargiola, 63, last Nov. 21. A jury convicted them two weeks ago.

So was that other, far more estimable character, James A. Garfield, who became president of the United States.

You can prove this to your own satisfaction by dropping in at a little-known Washington institution called the Armed Forces Medical Museum.

There you'll find portions of the backbones of Booth and Garfield, along with such other grisly exhibits as skulls bashed in with Indian tomahawks and still more skulls with holes bored in them.

This last group testifies to an interesting experiment. Some years ago a group of Peruvian surgeons tried to cure idiots of their affliction by drilling holes in their heads. The experiment was not a success.

The museum, part of the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology, was established in 1862 to study the wounds and diseases of Union soldiers in the Civil War. Since then it has built up a formidable collection of old bones, skin fragments and other portions of the human frame.

This may not sound enticing, but some 140,000 sightseers found their way to the collection last year. Many doctors and medical students avail themselves of the museum's specimens too.

John McKelway noted in yesterday's Washington Evening Star that from the museum's storage room an interested student "can draw out a kidney the way one takes a book from the library."

The Booth and Garfield backbones aren't exhibited for their curiosity value alone.

Booth's is of medical interest because of what doctors did to it after the assassin was shot through the spine when he was captured near Bowling Green, Va.

Garfield's shows the hole probed by doctors for the bullet which ended the President's life after Charles Guiteau shot him in 1861.

Not to show any favoritism, the museum has a piece of Guiteau on exhibition too—the malaria-infected spleen.
