

STRANGE SIGHT—After nearly four decades of blindness, William Connolly, British war veteran reads a newspaper—thanks to "enemy" eyes. He was blinded in a World War I gas attack. Two Germans donated an eye each and after two operations at the Wolverhampton, England, eye clinic, he regained his sight.

UPS AND DOWNS OF PIGTAILS—Seems to have been a hair-raising experience for nine-year-old Iris Baratta, left, of New York City, when she won the Children's Aid Society's contest for the longest pigtail. She's getting a congratulatory kiss from her brother, Louis. A contrast in the pigtail news is offered by 20-year-old Alice Penfield, of Bury, Sussex, Eng. While other muscular marvels lift barbells to show off their strength, she demonstrates hers by attaching a 56-pound weight to each of her pigtails and raising her head.

Klamath Woman Amid Alaskan Eruption

By RUTH KING
Right in the thick of it were Mrs. William Wales, Klamath Falls and her mother, Mrs. Kenneth Foust, (ola, Kas.), a guest here, who were touring Alaska at the time that 11,096 foot Mt. Spurr, 75 miles west of Anchorage, erupted July 9 and 10.

They were en route north by train from Seward when the dark cloud of ashes was observed and the train was stopped for instructions. The train proceeded into a mid-night blackness of falling ash, fine as snow. A sulphurous odor stung nostrils and lungs, and nylons vanished into thin air. Mrs. Wales and her mother, who spent four hours in the darkened city, protected clothing with plastic raincoats.

Senators Greet Herbert Hoover

WASHINGTON (AP)—"I would like to call attention to a distinguished visitor," said Vice President Nixon last night. "This is the first occasion on which he has visited this chamber."

Fishermen Haul In 1-arm Bandits

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (AP)—Fishermen in the Little Scioto River hit the jackpot yesterday.
They pulled in some one-armed bandits—slot machines apparently tossed in the river when Ohio's anti-slots law went into effect in 1951.

On the same boat were Mrs. Alice Stocker, Klamath Falls, assistant librarian at the city library, en route to Fairbanks for a vacation.
When the volcano blew its top, deadline for Alaskan newspapers was just half an hour away. Among those first on the job were Bob Kederjick, according to the July 18 issue of Editor and Publisher, of the Anchorage Daily News; Walt Welch of Station KENI and Ty Clerk and Gordie Henning of the Anchorage Daily Times.

Numerous graphic photos were snapped of the ash bombardment and a tape recording was made of on-the-spot interviews of pilots who flew over the danger areas.
An hour-by-hour coverage was given by top reporters who covered their beats in total darkness.
Many residents thought it was the end of the world.

WINS FUNDS TO FIGHT RARE DISEASE—Lee Henry, 11, of New York, victim of the rare blood disease, hemophilia, made a heart-touching appeal to his fellow victims when he appeared on Dennis James' "Turn to a Friend" radio show. So as a reward, Dennis and film star Lenore Ulric planned this surprise dinner for him at New York's Belmont Plaza Hotel. The Hemophilia Foundation supervises distribution of funds for the fight against the rare condition, in which failure of the blood to clot causes excessive, sometimes fatal, bleeding.

I'M NOT AFRAID—The big, bad wolf doesn't scare Inger Kallou, 10, of Stockholm, Sweden, one bit. At least not when the wolf is just a cuddly bundle of fur like this one. Her father found it on a hunting trip.

Dorthella Rose Has Hospital Birthday Party

Thirty patients and nurses cooperated to make a young polio victim's 15th birthday her happiest. Dorthella Rose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orval Rose, 2316 California, has been in Sacred Heart Hospital, Eugene, since last September. Last Saturday was her birthday anniversary, but so her mother could be present for the occasion, a party was held Friday.
The Sisters who run the Catholic hospital had a huge cake, two feet long and a foot and a half wide, baked in the cafeteria. Ice cream and punch added to the bedside celebration.
"The nicest part of the party was one of the guests," said her mother, "George Gates, a furniture dealer in Grants Pass, has not been able to be out of his hospital room since last October. But for this occasion, nurses put him on a cart with his Monahan hooked to a portable battery and took him down to Dorthella's room. It was the first time he had left his room."
Young Dorthella has been home to visit three times. She is expected again the latter part of July.

MISSING—Wilhelm Zaisser, East German security chief, has mysteriously disappeared, according to a West Berlin newspaper. Along with his disappearance, 485 members of his security police have been arrested in a purge of his ministry. Zaisser, as minister of state security, was responsible to Lavrenti Berin, arrested chief of Soviet secret police.

CHRIS WELKIN HAS SOME PALS—Getting ready for a space suit fashion parade in Kansas City, Kans., David Huddleston adjusts the helmet worn by little Mike McGinnis while Nancy McGinnis waits for the repair of a drooping antenna on her plate-and-crepe-paper-ruffle space bonnet. Showing enthusiasm for the current city-wide recreation program theme—"Space Suits," the children design and make their own suits for exhibits, parades and contests.

Former Resident Dies in Crash

An automobile crash on the Greensprings Highway, July 17 near the Summit Ranch took the life of a former Klamath County resident—Mrs. Walter Monroe, and seriously injured her husband, according to word reaching here from Ashland today.
Mrs. Monroe, 63, was pinned beneath the overturned car, suffered crushed pelvic bones and skull fracture. She never regained consciousness, dying late Saturday in an Ashland hospital.
A young grandson, son of daughter Shirley Mayfield, Ashland, was only slightly hurt.
Mr. Monroe was hospitalized with chest and other undetermined injuries.
Cause of the accident was not immediately determined by state highway patrolmen investigating from Ashland, but it is believed that Mr. Monroe lost control of the car. They were en route to Ashland.
Mr. and Mrs. Monroe lived for many years at Fort Klamath where they operated one of the first tourist camps in the region.
Funeral services were held Monday from the Latter Day Saints Church, Ashland, with final rites and interment in Mountain View Cemetery.
Surviving are her widower Walter Monroe, Ashland; son Frankie Monroe, Seattle; daughters, Mrs. Harriet Glover, Tacoma, and Mrs. Shirley Mayfield, Ashland; five grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.
Attending the funeral service from here were Mrs. A. E. Wood, Harlan Drive and Mrs. Joe Meeker, Henley.

Witnesses Told Use of Rights

NEW YORK (AP)—The general counsel of the Jehovah's Witnesses says servants of Jehovah "should know the law and know their rights . . . and also how to use them, when to insist on them and when to tread lightly."
Hayden C. Covington prefaced this statement yesterday with the comment, "Jehovah is our God, a lawyer and a law giver."
Covington spoke at the eight-day world assembly of the Witnesses' movement, the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, whose fundamentalist doctrine has involved members in court cases throughout the world.

First-Fiddler Reminded to Bow

NEW YORK (AP)—Arthur Schuller, assistant principal violin in the Lewisohn Stadium Concert Orchestra, conducted the organization last night on a few hours' notice.
It was his first appearance anywhere as a conductor and he had to be reminded to bow to acknowledge a warm audience reception.
Schuller was called in to conduct the orchestral numbers on the program after Guatemalan conductor-pianist-composer Miguel Sandoval, 50, suffered a heart attack during a rehearsal earlier in the day and was hospitalized.
