Bill Gives Reclamation $116 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — The $433,561,550 Interior Department money bill approved by a Senate-House conference committee allows for a $116,269,660 reclamation program during the coming year.

With Congressional blessing, it was on its way to the White House Tuesday.

The reclamation program agreed upon by the conference committee and made public Monday compares with $108,369,675 approved originally by the House and $123,589,450 voted by the Senate.

For the overall interior bill itself, which carries funds for the current fiscal year which began July 1, the conference version was approximately 27 million dollars above the House bill and 20 million below the Senate figure.

Reclamation expenditures include $335,000 for Klamath, Calif.-Ore.

In adjusting proposed reclamation expenditures one of the biggest items on the Interior Department's budget, the conference committee made these changes:

For the Klutina Hydroelectric project near Anchorage, Alaska, it agreed upon $7,750,000. The Senate had approved $8,500,000, the House had allowed nothing.

The original authorization for the Klutina project was about 20 million dollars, and already this amount has been almost fully appropriated.

The conference committee approved $38,869,000 for construction work by the Bonneville Power Administration in the Pacific Northwest.

This was a compromise of the $44,193,000 proposed by the Senate and the $33,300,000 by the House.

Its report said the program outlined by the Senate was approved, with these modifications:

The Snohomish-Kittling line was reduced from $2,608,000 to $450,000; The Dalles area service facility was reduced from $2,148,000 to $1,148,000; and new funds allowed were cut in an additional amount of $2,172,000 by taking into account recent savings resulting from lower bids and rescheduling of material requirements.

The report said that funds for the Chief Joseph - Snohomish Nos. 3 and 4 lines are to be used for construction between Chief Joseph and Goldbar and that construction is not to be started on the Snohomish-Kittling facility until an independent study is made of the feasibility of an alternate method of supplying the Olympic Peninsula.

No money was allowed under "The Dalles service area" item for facilities to serve the Harvey Machine Co., pending further study before the next session of Congress.

Two Famed Profiles Return After Seven Years Absence

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Two famed profiles are back in Hollywood after seven-year absence—Basil Rathbone and John Carradine.

The two legit actors have been hired back to their Hollywood haunts after long excursions to the theater. And what are they doing? They're playing straight men for Bob Hope in "Casanova's Big Night."

I watched Rathbone play a hilarious duel scene with Hope, who was holding the wrong end of the sword. Carradine, who was being fitted with a flowing wig, announced that one of his big scenes in the film would be to dance with Hope while the latter is disguised as a woman.

Both Carradine and Rathbone seemed to think it was jolly good fun and appeared to be enjoying their return to the film stages. The two are somewhat alike in appearance but diverse in personality. Gaunt, long-shinned Carradine is wry and ironic; he views life with amused eye.

Sharp-nosed Rathbone describes himself as "two profiles pasted together." ("The only one thinner than I is Carradine.") He is effusive and enthusiastic; thoughts pour forth in his precise English.

Oddly enough, both left Hollywood at the same time. Carradine's departure coincided with the issuance of a bench warrant accusing him of contempt of court for failing to keep up alimony payments to his first wife.

But both said they left for the same reason—their careers were in a rut.

Rathbone: "I wasn't happy with what I had gotten myself into in Hollywood. After I had played Sherlock Holmes in 14 pictures and on 200 broadcasts, I decided it was time to call a halt. I was on a treadmill and I had to get off."

"Then, I quit pictures and returned to the theater. After all it was my life; I had devoted my life to it. I probably would have returned much sooner if it hadn't been for the war. I was tied down to my duties in the British War Relief, the Motion Picture Relief Fund, the War Chest and also in entertaining in camps and hospitals."

Carradine: "I left because I didn't like the kind of roles I was getting in pictures. As I recall, one of my last roles was playing Dracula in a picture that also included the Frankenstein monster and the Wolf Man."

"I decided to return to the stage, where the work is more stimulating and satisfying. I have done about six plays on Broadway and some 32 stock engagements, plus reading appearances. There isn't much difference in the pay, between stage and pictures, once the government gets its share. I don't understand why some actors demand $200,000 for a picture; they can't keep it anyway."

For a man who left Hollywood to escape Sherlock Holmes, Rathbone is doing something odd for his next project—he's going to play Sherlock Holmes on the stage. His wife has made an adaptation of some of the Holmes stories, and the play will open on Broadway this fall.

"Ah, but there's a difference between playing Holmes 14 times radio and playing him on the stage," Rathbone added quickly. "I'm doing a play, I can stop whenever I want to."

"I think the time is ripe for a Holmes play. After all, he hasn't been done on the stage since William Gillette had his last farewell tour in 1930. A whole new generation has grown up that has never seen Holmes."

He intends to return to Hollywood more frequently, "know that Hollywood is shaking off the doldrums and entering an exciting new era."

As for Carradine, he intends to stick around for awhile. He is next scheduled for a picture at 20th Century-Fox, where he was under contract for six years.

Park Square Dances Set

The Klamath Basin Callers and Instructors Council, in cooperation with the Recreation Department, is sponsoring a series of outdoor square dancing at Kiwanis Park on alternate Thursdays starting July 30.

All callers and committee members are donating their services, with Tom Orr, president of the council, guest caller of the first of the series.

The program theme is "fun for all" and dances are free with invitations extended to beginners, experienced dancers and spectators.

Mrs. Marianna Kerr is council chairman for the summer program. Other officers are Mrs. Bee Orr, secretary; Charles Kerr, vice president.

The "slab," as it is known, is the improved surface area used at the present. A large cement area in Kiwanis Park, it is much more satisfactory for dancing than the turf.

104th Begins 2nd Drill Day

FORT LEWIS, Wash. (AP) — The 104th Infantry Division, composed of some 1,000 Army reservists from Washington and Oregon, Tuesday embarked on its second day of a 15-day field training period. The outfit is commanded by Brig. Gen. Lamar H. Toole of Portland.

8,300 Visit Lava Beds

Persons numbering 8,300 from 37 states and three foreign countries visited the Lava Beds National Monument in July, according to Don Fisher, superintendent.

This number—in 2,900 cars—is 3,000 less than last year, Fisher said.

One hundred persons attended Dr. Ruth Hopson's unique illustrated lectures Sunday in Mushpot Cave. The ranger naturalist's illustrated lectures on her flower exhibit will be a regular Sunday feature, 2 and 4 p.m.

The museum attendance has averaged 65 persons a day, Fisher added.

Strikes Start In 2-A-Plants

OAK RIDGE Tenn. (AP) — For the first time in Oak Ridge labor history, production workers in two atomic energy plants struck Monday to back up wage increase demands.

Approximately 3,500 APL workers struck after wage negotiations collapsed.

The strikers — members of the Atomic Energy and Labor Council — sought a 10 1/2 cent hourly pay boost. Carbide and Carbon Chemicals Co., operator of the plants for the government, offered 8 cents.

The strike is the first in the 10-year history of the atomic project here to come off inside the plants. All other walkouts have been on construction jobs.

Both Marion D. Thomas, head of the Oregon State College Department of Agricultural Economics, and O. Hoobler, Washington State College Extension Service price specialist, agreed there would be little change at once.

Hoobler said, however, that the strike eventually might affect industrial production, consumer incomes, and so bring about somewhat lower farm prices through lower demand.
