Freed Turks, South Koreans Display Hate; Our Boys: 'Be Light, Be Bright'

By MILO FARNETI

PANMUNJOM (AP)—Some laughter and joy came to Panmunjom today as 90 Americans returned to freedom in obviously better health and spirits than those liberated in the first three days of the great Korean prisoner exchange.

There were few maimed and haggard men in today's group.

The Reds sent back 250 South Koreans, 90 Americans, 35 Turks and 25 British—a total of 400.

They said Sunday's group of 400 will include 250 ROKs, 112 Americans, 21 British, 13 Turks, 2 Australians, 1 Canadian and 1 Filipino.

The 112 Americans will be the biggest shipment of U. S. troops so far in four days of "Operation Big Switch" and will bring the total of Americans returned to 401. The Reds have promised to send back 3,313 Americans among 12,763 Allied POWs.

So far, the four-day exchange has brought back a grand total of 1,205 ROKs, 311 Americans, 143 Turks, 126 British, 34 Filipinos, 21 Colombians, 7 French, 6 Australians, and 1 each Belgian, Canadian, Greek and South African.

The prisoners released Saturday rolled out of the north in Red trucks under a broiling sun.

One carried a skin drum and another wore a red and white cap, standing out brightly against the dull blue POW clothing.

Eighty were Negroes, many from the old 24th Regiment, disbanded two years ago when the Army abolished racial segregation.

The returnees were exuberant.

"Well, well, old chap, Pall Malls, no less!" one quipped to Lt. Louis Balent of Summerville, N. J., when the military policeman dumped a carton of cigarettes into a helmet and passed them around.

"Be light, be bright! It sure is good to be back to this little piece of the old U. S.!"

"Man do you realize we are in the USA?" cried Pfc. Frank J. Quarles of Hopkinsville, Ky., as his truck pulled into the exchange point.

"I just can't keep my mouth shut," he said.

"It was a long trip and a sick one."

Seeing a convoy of singing Red North Koreans driving up the road, the Americans yelled and hooted.

"We might as well sing, too—shall we give him a little blues, boys?"

A deeper note was struck by the Turks and South Koreans.

Their hatred of their captors was so intense that scores tore off their Chinese prison uniforms in spontaneous acts of defiance.

Communist prisoners, too, followed the urge to shed their garments, and the U. N. road from Munsan to Panmunjom was littered with American Army gear—wool and cotton fatigue clothing, mess kits, toilet articles and almost everything else issued to the sullen Reds.

Poverty-stricken Korean civilians scavenged the gear.

Allied officers estimated returning Reds have discarded thousands of dollars worth of prison gear which under the Geneva Convention must be the same quality of clothing as American soldiers wear at the front.

When the Reds discard their GI outfits in the Red reception center, the thrifty Communists save the clothing.

Although the return of American, British and other U. N. prisoners went off much as scheduled by the Reds, the Communists showed no such precision with the ROKs.

Allied officers complained that the lists of ROK prisoners sent back were grossly out of order and were, frankly, "a mess."

Meanwhile, at Inchon, a port on South Korea's west coast, some American disabled were loaded by helicopter onto the hospital ship Haven for the voyage back to the United States.

They were given the Navy's best — soft bunks, clean white sheets, meals brought to them, ice cream and the run of the ship's recreational facilities.

Other, able-bodied Americans returned in the first three days continued their processing, waiting for the first ship to leave for home.

Air Raid Sirens Blow By Mistake

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—It was a nice, sunny and peaceful afternoon yesterday until—

Just after 2 p.m., the capital's 16 air raid warning sirens went off by mistake. A civil defense official said an operator at the central fire alarm station failed to lock the mechanism which sets off the sirens.

'All Movie Stars Have A Story to Sell Producers'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "The trouble with movie stars," sighed producer Ted Richmond, "is that they all have a story to sell you."

Richmond is one of the fair-haired boys at Universal-International, ever since "Mississippi Gambler." That little epic is headed for a five million dollar gross and is enriching its star, Tyrone Power, who owns 50 per cent of the profits.

"Ty is just like all of them," said Richmond, a wry fellow with horn-rimmed glasses. "He's got a script that he's always wanted to do. He's even got $40,000 worth of writing in it.

"Every star has a script they've 'always wanted to do.' You talk to Joan Crawford for 15 minutes and she whips out her story about a schoolteacher. They're all that way."

Ain't it the truth? Just about every actor I've met has some pet project he has always been trying to promote. Cornel Wilde is one. For years, he has been after producers to film the life of Lord Byron, with Wilde as star, of course. Wilde has worked over the story many times, but still no takers.

Gary Cooper has long nursed the desire to portray Andrew Jackson on film. When he was toying with his own film company, he swore he was going through his his plans to play Old Hickory. Now Charlton Heston has beat him to the punch. Jackson's domestic life was shown in "The President's Lady." I'll bet Cooper still hankers to film the military and political life of the seventh President.

Hedy Lamarr, fired by the success of "Samson and Delilah," has been eager to play the role of Esther on the screen. She has had the story developed for her and says it is the only thing for which she would return to the screen. So far, she hasn't been able to find a moneybags to back her project.

Now that John Derek is free from Columbia, he is campaigning in earnest for the screen biography of Joaquin Murietta, the early-day California bandit. He objects to how the outlaw has been portrayed in movies, comic strips and elsewhere. "Joaquin died at 23, but others have shown him as an older man," says John, who has the youth and appearance for the role.

I know of at least two players who realized their long-time ambitions. Charles Laughton always wanted to portray Galileo on the stage, and Rosalind Russell had the urge to play Sister Kenny. Both productions were flops.

Write your own moral.

Navy to Shuck 2,200 Officers

WASHINGTON (AP)—The pinch of budget limitations will squeeze 2,200 reserve officers out of the Navy's active rolls in January.

The Navy said yesterday this cut, out of the 37,000 reserve officers on active duty, was necessary to keep within budget limits. Some specialists will be exempted.

Special boards have already selected 1,200 reserve lieutenant commanders and captains for release and will also choose 1,000 lieutenants.

Surplus Butter To Europeans

WASHINGTON (AP)—Needy Europeans will receive 10,800,000 pounds of surplus U. S. butter.

The Agriculture Department said yesterday it was giving the butter, acquired under the dairy price support program, to the war relief services of the National Catholic Welfare Conference for distribution in Austria, Trieste, Italy and Germany.

Stray Bass Pulled In

GLEN COVE, N. Y. (AP)—Mrs. John Petroski, walking along the beach yesterday, saw a fishing line snagged on a rock. She pulled in 20 feet of line. At the end was a 30-pound striped bass.

The fish had swallowed a 1½-pound bunker spoon.

Mrs. Petroski knows about such spoons. Her husband sells fishing tackle at a local store.

Ike Signs Key Bills Friday

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower, vacation-bound today, could leave at least one care behind him—the principal measures governing U. S. foreign policy for the next year are all on the lawbooks.

He signed these key bills yesterday:

1. The hard-fought 6½ billion dollar appropriation for military and economic aid to friendly nations. It carried 645 millions less than his "honest minimum figure" and marked a shift in military aid emphasis to the Far East. For this area, $1,000,000 was earmarked, compared with $521,700,000 for 1953. Europe was allotted $1,860,000,000 in new money, compared with $3,047,200,000 last year.

2. The bill extending the reciprocal trade program to next June 12. The President said it reaffirms this country's intention to cooperate "on a mutually profitable basis" with friends overseas.

3. The measure authorizing him to send up to 100 million dollars worth of surplus farm products to bution to those under Red rule, like the East Germans, who already have defied communists masters to get U. S. food

4. $615,989,964 appropriation measure, carrying, among other items, 75 millions for foreign information activities, 200 million authorization for Korean reconstruction $46,525,000 for civil defense, and 70 millions for school aid in districts crowded by defense activities.

C. Tyler Wood, deputy to foreign Aid Director Harold Stassen, was put in charge of the Korean reconstruction program as chief economic staff officer to Gen. Mark Clark, Far Eastern commander.

Also signed yesterday were bills to:

Create a commission to study raising salaries of members of Congress and federal judges.

Provide for federal leasing of offshore lands outside states' "historic boundaries."

Authorize Food and Drug Administration inspectors to enter processing plants without owners' approval.

Richard Carlson Kidded As Being Part Man From Mars

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A joke making the Hollywood rounds:

"How come that Richard Carlson appears in so many science fiction movies?"

"Oh, he's part Martian!"

The person who is most amused by the gag is Richard Carlson. He can afford to laugh—he's the busiest actor in Hollywood.

Carlson has been working like a beaver in such pseudo-science epics as "The Magnetic Monster," "It Came From Outer Space," "Riders to the Stars" and "The Maze," although he classifies the latter as more of a horror story.

Why is he so much in demand for some films?

"I guess its because in every science fiction story there has to be a scientist," he theorized. "I'm the academic type. People believe one of the few actors who look the academic type. People believe that I might have just stepped out of a laboratory."

The actor's professorial look comes naturally. He was a Phi Beta Kappa at the University of Minnesota, where he graduated Summa Cum Laude in English and European history. He also studied at Harvard for a semester before he decided to follow the less bookish life of being an actor.

I asked him if he thought his educational background helped or hindered his career.

"Of course, it has helped," he replied. "The more an actor knows, the better he is in his job.

"But I'll admit that some people have looked at me askance, I remember my first big stage job, a long run in the road company of 'Three Men On a Horse,' Hume Cronyn and I were the only ones in the cast who had even been to high school. The other actors viewed us as something of an oddity."

Carlson's career has not been limited to plotting space travel and combatting invaders from other planets. He also keeps busy in other, not so breathless films. He does a number of TV dramatic shows when he has the time. He is now starring in a 39-part TV film series called "I Led Three Lives," based on the true adventures of a Communist spy for the FBI.

"A lot of actors won't touch TV," he observed. "I think they are making a bad decision. When I do a show like Robert Montgomery's, I am seen by a huge audience. I figured it would take me 36 years of playing 'Mister Roberts' in Chicago to reach as big an audience. It would take a movie 13 years of playing four shows a day at the Radio City Music Hall."

Busy enough as an actor, Carlson has now branched out as a director. He directed "Riders to the Stars" for the company which he, producer Ivan Tors and writer Curt Siodmak have together.

Man Lives Through Cement Mixer Ride

GLASTONBURY, Conn. (AP) — Frederick Hale, 24, of Hartford, spent 15 minutes inside of a revolving cement mixer here today and emerged with only minor injuries.

Hale entered the mixer to clean it. The heavy iron barrel began to turn and he was pinned between the drum and a guard rail. His cries for help brought firemen who played a hose on the trapped man while the metal was cut away with an acetylene torch.
