

Home Extension News

Project leaders for the Conser-Fairview Home Extension Unit were chosen at the Aug. 7 meeting, a potluck in Moore Park.

The project "Outdoor Meals" will be demonstrated at the October meeting by Mrs. Myron Hull and Mrs. Vaughn Whitmore. "Family Recreation" will be presented by Mrs. Harvey Ovgard and Mrs. R. W. Malcomb in December. In January, Mrs. Robert Reddard and Mrs. George Buckner will instruct the unit in "What To Do Until the Doctor Comes."

Cold cream will be made by Mrs. John Mathews and Mrs. Charles Klem when they demonstrate "Home Care of the Skin" at the March meeting. Safety in the home and on the farm will be studied by Mrs. Gerald Gwyn, Mrs. I. R. Jones and Mrs. Philip Detroit. They will alternate at giving eye-openers of "Safety Shorts" at four of the meetings.

Mrs. Gene Woods, recreation chairman, will be hostesses at her home for the Sept. 4th meeting, when the making of flowers from wood fiber will be taught.

With the exception of the October meeting all others will be held at Joan's Kitchen at the Fairgrounds.

Members present for the picnic-potluck this month were Mrs. Lynn Hayes, chairman; Mrs. Kenneth Albert, vice chairman; Mrs. Harold Thompson, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Gwyn, Mrs. Ovgard, Mrs. Klem, Mrs. Hull, Mrs. Woods, Mrs. Mathews, Mrs. William Moore, Mrs. Reddard, Mrs. Buckner, Mrs. F. O. Reynolds, Mrs. Malcomb, Mrs. Lloyd Moyers, Mrs. Whitmore, and Mrs. Philip Detroit who won the special prize.

The fall Home Extension program got under full steam August 3 with an officers training session at the fairgrounds. Mrs. William Drew, Klamath County chairman, presided.

Dolores Bracken, county extension agent presented the year's program and state council reports were made during the morning by Mrs. Claude Williams, Mrs. H. V. Borton, Mrs. Edwin Lee, Mrs. E. E. Kilpatrick and Mrs. Lee Holliday.

The refugee problem in Germany was presented in an interesting and informative talk during the afternoon by Ben Kerns, returned to this country after government service among displaced persons in Germany.

Mrs. Guard Knauss, Mrs. Ray Billings, Mrs. William Rajpus, Mrs. C. M. Larson, conducted a panel discussion on "What Makes a Good Unit Meeting." Mrs. William Drew was moderator.

Group sessions were conducted by Mrs. E. E. Kilpatrick for chairman and vice chairman; Dolores Bracken for secretaries; World Citizenship Chairmen, Mrs. William Drew and Mrs. Lee Holliday; 4-H Club chairmen, Mrs. Clara Scott, Hope Holbrook, 4-H Club agent; legislation, Mrs. Clive McPherson, League of Women Voters representative; publicity, Mrs. H. EASY BARBECUE SAUCE
The use of Mixed Pickling Spice in barbecue sauces is a quick trick to remember. Two cups sauce needs about a teaspoon of the spice. It is best to tie them up in a little bag unless you strain the sauce.

IT TAKES A PRETTY GIRL to bring home the bacon in a contest and Mary Jane McBride, Paisley did just that in a recent carrier contest sponsored by the circulation department of the Herald and News. Mary Jane, who wasn't even on the carrier list topped a field of 16 contestants in 13 towns to win a bicycle. She was handling the route for a brother and signed up 25 new subscribers in her small community. She is 13-years-old, a junior in high school and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George McBride. Brother is George Jr. Mary, only girl in the contest, won't need to ride this boy's bike she is modeling, she'll get a new Columbia girl's model, pronto.

Today's Women

By DOROTHY ROE

There's a little bit of floozy in every nice girl, movie star Donna Reed has concluded since playing the part of Alma, a girl of questionable repute, in the film version of James Jones' war novel, "From Here to Eternity."

Up to now Donna has played only ladylike parts. Her well-bred little-girl manner has led naturally to roles of sweet innocence.

But Alma is something else again, even in the expurgated film version of the book. And Donna has decided she likes this part better than any she ever played.

Being a well-brought-up girl from an Iowa farm, wife of producer Tony Owen and mother of three small children, she had to seek expert advice on how she was to portray the shady girl friend of Pvt. Prewitt in the movie. She says:

"I asked advice from a psychoanalyst, who happens to be my brother-in-law, and also from my husband. I asked them what kind of a girl this was, what she felt, what she was really like."

"The answer I got surprised me. My brother-in-law told me a girl like this would be completely blocked off emotionally. She would never have any emotional reaction to any of the men she met in her job as dance hall hostess.

She would never look directly at anybody, but would seem to be looking past them or through them. Her conversation would be mechanical. She definitely couldn't be very smart, or she never would reach the pathetic state she was in."

Donna's first job was to make herself look like a floozy—and after you have seen this aristocratic-looking young woman over a luncheon table, you'll realize this was no small job. Here's how she did it:

"I was puzzled about makeup, and so I got some more advice—also surprising. I was told that to make the part seem real, I should use practically no makeup. It seems most of these girls don't bother with it. So I just used a little lipstick and then wiped it off. My hair was sort of fuzzy and unkempt, and I wore some dangling earrings. That did it.

Then I had to change my speaking voice—I had to forget all those "pear-shaped tones" I had practiced so hard to perfect. I spoke in sort of a flat monotone. Once I got started at it, I found it almost automatic."

Donna's conclusion, after studying her part so earnestly, is that floozies don't have much fun. Says she: "They're simply miserable!"
