

All Except Leopards Make Switch From Horse To Whale

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The horse-meat eaters at the Philadelphia Zoo have had a switch of diet—they're eating whale meat now—and only two of the beasts, a couple of finicky leopards, seem to know the difference.

The leopards—Klitzan and Prince Igor—refuse to touch the substitute.

But for the other carnivorous citizens at the zoo—lions, foxes, wolves and dingy dogs—whale meat seems to be as good a dish as any.

The change-over is just another result of the mechanical age, says Fred Uimer, curator of mammals. Farmers have given up horses for machines and this has cut the horses available for slaughter from 15 million to little more than two million.

The zoo needs 275 pounds of good red meat every day and when its supplier couldn't get hold of that much day in and day out, Sales Manager Ed Solomon said he had some whale meat obtained from Norway and Japan.

Nutritionally, Solomon said, the whale meat showed a higher protein content than horse meat.

Thus it was that the zoo started buying whale meat at 15 cents a pound, the same price that horse meat brings.

Why the two leopards haven't fancied the new delicacy isn't known, but Uimer says it may be because both were born in captivity and are finicky.

Even the birds, the meat-eating vultures and eagles, have adopted the diet without a squawk.

Solomon says whale meat resembles beef in appearance and is not to be confused with blubber, which is the fatty tissue around the meat.

Ind. Governor 'Union Buster'

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Officials of the CIO Communications Workers, facing suits in federal and county courts, accused Gov. George N. Craig today of helping Indiana Bell Telephone Co. in a "union-busting and strike-busting" campaign.

Mrs. Mae Mann, Indiana CWA director, said in a statement that the governor was fostering a "police state." She said he should have "given more consideration" to a solution achieved at South Bend in which the union agreed to limit pickets and the company agreed to get rid of out-of-town workers.

The union repeatedly has accused Indiana Bell of bringing in the "strike breakers" in the nearly month long strike against Indiana Bell's 82 exchanges.

Indiana Bell filed suit in federal court in Indianapolis yesterday accusing 24 CWA locals and 58 individual union officers of violating the National Labor Relations Act. The suit accused the union of "threats, intimidation and coercion . . . against nonstriking employees and against the company through destruction of cable, windows and other telephone property."

It referred specifically to reported outbreaks of violence at South Bend, Fort Wayne, Kokomo, Martinsville and Clinton. Gov. Craig sent state troopers to Clinton Monday after weekend disorders had accused a suspension of telephone service. He said yesterday he had ordered state police to stand by in five more cities where violence was feared. The governor declined to name the cities.

CIRCE'S GONE ELECTRONIC—L. S. McKown, of Stillwater, Minn., is the power behind his 20th Century Circo, who, by means of radio control, "lures" sailors on the St. Croix River with a wave of her handkerchief. The mannequin is prettier, and much less dangerous than her legendary counterpart who enticed Ulysses' sailors, plied them with drugged potions and turned them into swine.

CIO Launches Shots For Seats

WASHINGTON (AP)—The CIO Political Action Committee fires its first shot today in a campaign to elect a Congress favorable to organized labor in 1954.

Some of the biggest guns in the CIO were scheduled to wheel into position as the committee, political arm of the labor organization which claims six million members, assembled for the first time since the presidential election last fall.

An estimated 150 CIO officials were expected to review the past seven months to see how organized labor has made out under the first Republican administration since their organization came into being 17 years ago.

Top Man of Class Totally Blind

BOSTON (AP)—Top man in his class at Boston University's summer commencement is 33-year-old William Carney, totally blind from an eye disease contracted in service during World War II. Carney, assistant editor of the Disabled American Veterans' national magazine, completed his four-year public relations course in three years with the help of three friends who read to him.

Truck Runs Wild; Bathroom Goner; No One In It

EUGENE (AP)—The bathroom of a house was sheared off here Tuesday by a driverless truck. Van Smith of Springfield told police he had parked the truck, which was carrying a power shovel, and had gone to inspect a job. The truck rolled a block and then crashed into the home of Bill Boyer. Mrs. Boyer and their two children were in another part of the house. Smith was cited for leaving the vehicle unattended with the motor running.

Business Enjoys Best Summer

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. business is enjoying its best summer ever, the Department of Commerce says. A department report yesterday included these figures: Retail and automobile production were at near record rates in July. A record for any three-month period of manufacturers' sales was set when such sales in June remained above the $6 billion dollar mark.

Interest Hike No Help To GI

WASHINGTON (AP)—The higher interest allowed since last May on GI loans hasn't helped veterans buy more homes, figures released today by the Veterans Administration show.

As the time, the raise from 4 to 4 1/2 per cent interest was hailed by many money lenders and government officials as one which would give veterans a better chance to get the government-insured loans. They said lenders weren't anxious to put up money for veterans' homes loans because the return was so small.

Since then, the number of GI home loan applications approved by the VA hasn't increased. These loan application approvals are used by the VA as one barometer indicating the availability of money for GI loans.

Figures for July show that the number of applications approved actually dropped slightly from April, the month immediately before the interest increase.

In April, 26,000 applications were approved. In July, only 23,453. May saw about 24,000 approved and June about 25,000.

T. B. King, director of the VA's Loan Guaranty Service, said the primary cause has been the demand for money for other types of investments which bring in higher interest rates. He added in an interview:

"I expect to see the supply of money for GI loans pick up within the next 60 to 90 days. The great majority of our offices around the country think there will be an increase. So far, the judgment of these offices has been good."

96 Years Late, Hollywood Brings Out Camel Freight

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—What do you know about camels?

Did you know that the United States government once sponsored a camel freight service across the Great American Desert? That was in 1857, and Hollywood has gotten around to making a movie about it, think of it—a Western with camels!

I hope the picture does better than the camel line. It was a flop. Some 75 camels were imported from Syria and a route was established but soon abandoned. The War Department, which sponsored the project, dropped it because of more pressing problems in connection with the Civil War.

Some of the camels ended up in Texas and were seized by Confederate forces during the war. A few, from both Texas and California, ultimately were turned loose on the Arizona desert. Inhabitants reported seeing them as late as 1910. No effort was made to revive the project after the Civil War because the rapid development of transcontinental railroads made it unnecessary. However, a few of the camels were taken to Nevada, where for a time they carried mail into the Comstock Lode country.

I learned about camels from Billy Richards, one of the owners of the World Jungle Compound, which supplied eight of the animals for the picture. The spy little circus veteran said the American camel caravan might have been more efficient carriers than mules, he remarked. "They could carry a thousand-pound pack, their feet hold up in even the hottest sand and they're faster than horses. They can go without food or water as long as 10 days in the desert. Furthermore, there is no feed problem. Camels will forage for themselves, if need be."

"I imagine the plan failed because of the lack of handlers. Camels require a special kind of handler. An ordinary mule driver can't do the job."

"Camels are smart in their own way. They're the only animal that will sit down when they're starting a long truck ride, such as when we drove them to Kanab, Utah, for the picture. Horses and elephants would stand up all the way."

"Camels are smart fighters, but dirty. They use the strength of their weight. They weigh from 1,700 to 2,000 pounds and can break a horse's neck by placing their own neck on it. They'll beat down an opponent with their neck, then start kicking and biting. They can even lick water buffalos. "The trouble with camels" is they're stubborn. You can't teach 'em tricks the way you can with horses. They're inclined to be short-tempered and headstrong and will give in grudgingly. They show their resentment by spitting a foul-smelling saliva. "A mean one will grab a man by the arm and toss him. There's more than one one-armed man in this country because of a camel."

AMBITION OF MANY
ASHEVILLE, N. C. (AP)—Things are in a dog-gone mess for the Asheville dogcatcher. Two unidentified men knocked the lock off the dog pound gate and about 100 dogs romped free. Only a few have been rounded up.
