ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor
The do-it-yourself movement, ordinary household chores and home workbench hobbies are going high brow.
It seems that the home craftsman doesn't have a complete workbench without a library.
Bookstores and news stands are stocked with literature telling the handyman how to do everything, including how to buy another house when he runs out of room for improvement.

This supply of brains for our brains is so extensive that Business Week magazine recently called the attention to industry in general to the number of publications which are enticing us amateurs to make trips to the local hardware store, paint store, building supply house and what not.
One of the most sensible of the new books, which has come to our attention, is "The Home Owner's Complete Guide to Remodeling" by Hubbard Cobb (Houghton Mifflin Co.) You'd think that individual houses vary so widely that a practical book on remodeling would be next to impossible. But Cobb has done so much work around his own house in Connecticut that he has a sixth sense for information of use to others. His book is easy to read, because he writes exactly as he talks.

"Power Tools for the Home Craftsman" by Edwin G. Hamilton (McGraw Hill Book Co.) is especially timely with basements and garages now humming with machinery. What power tool to buy first, and why, how to use it and what you can do with it are subjects that make Hamilton's book a valuable contribution to the amateur.

"Household Mechanics" by Earl L. Bedell and Ernest G. Gardner (Grosset & Dunlap) has been out for some time now, but certainly deserves notice. For fundamental care and repair of the home, it would be hard to beat this volume as a handbook and guide.
Henry Lionel Williams of Sherman, Conn., who earns his living rebuilding old houses and old furniture, has written "The Calendar Guide to Home Repair" (Simmons-Boardman Books). He outlines a year-round weekly program for home maintenance, which he says can save you at least 50 per cent on costs, while you spend an hour or two a week on upkeep chores. Williams contends that preventive maintenance is as important to your home as preventive medicine is to you.

"How to Build Your Own Garage" (A. A. Wyn, Inc.) is a book that ought to find a wide audience. So many small homes have been built without garages that garage building is booming. Philip H. Scheller, the author, is technical editor of the Family Handyman magazine.
After you get all the work done, which is outlined in these books, and you're looking for new fields to conquer, take a look at "How to Buy a House" by Frazier Forman Peters (Garden City Books). This is a popular reprint of the author's "Buying a House Worth the Money" (Little, Brown). It's a sound companion to Walter Rostenberg's "House for Sale" (Stravon Publishers), which tells how to sell a house.

And if you would like to get away from all of this, see "One Million Islands for Sale" by Robert Froman (Duell, Sloan and Pearce). It covers all the islands you can buy along the coasts and in the lakes and rivers of both the United States and Canada.

Two Die In Plane Blast

PIGACHO, Ariz. (AP)—A huge B-50 bomber was ripped apart by a tremendous explosion over the Arizona desert Thursday and crashed in flames. Ten of its 11 man crew parachuted to safety. Two were killed.

Davis-Monthan Air Force Base at Tucson, where the four-engine plane had taken off only eight minutes before, identified the dead as Capt. Charles D. Bostick, Marion, S.C., and S. Sgt. Herbert G. Everson, Fort Scott, Kan.

Bostick, a radar operator, was unable to get out of the plane. Everson's chute ripped to shreds and he fell to his death.

Only one other man was listed as seriously hurt. He is Airman 3 C. Charles R. Stewart, a gunner from Steubenville, Ohio.
The other airmen were taken to the Davis-Monthan hospital for examination and treatment.

The spectacular crash came suddenly in the early morning darkness. Residents for 25 miles around heard the explosion and saw the shattered plane cut a fiery trail across the sky.

HOW CAN YOU MISS?—Bill Wiehr, of Sheboygan, Wis., demonstrates a highly versatile gun which is sure to bag game in one way or another. The muzzle-loader can shoot around a tree to get an elusive bird, and if one barrel misses, the other barrel is ready to fire. It has a built-in watch, thermometer, weather vane, mirror, spectacles for better sighting, and a knife for skinning the catch. A compass keeps the hunter on the trail, and if he's still unsuccessful in bagging any game, there's a can opener so he won't starve.

Paper-Makers Reach Terms

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Bargaining representatives for West Coast pulp and paper manufacturers and unions reached agreement late Wednesday night on pay increases and other contract changes to be submitted to referendum vote.

A wage boost of 2 1/2 per cent is the same as that made in a previous proposal, voted down by members of the two AFL unions involved. However, a joint statement Thursday said the new proposal also contains a wholly revised procedure for "selections," pay schedules and promotions, which removes earlier objections.

The pay boost proposal would establish the men's base rate at $17.76 1/2 cents an hour and women's at $14.47 1/2. The statement said this continues "the highest pulp and paper industry wage rates in the world."

If approved by the 48 union locals, the wage increases will be retroactive to June 1. Affected are 18,000 workers in 38 Washington, Oregon and California plants.

She has black hair, gray eyes, is five feet 2 inches tall, weighs 130 pounds, is 40 years old and is dead and dumb.

Charles Edward McClur is in the County Jail pending investigation of an auto theft charged filed by Chester Plybon and League Gleeson, hay haulers, for whom McClur was formerly employed. He is accused of attempting to steal a 1948 Chevrolet truck belonging to Plybon and Gleeson and a load of hay belong to John Nash of Adin.

His famous string of saddle broncs, bareback broncs, and wild brahma bulls have thrilled rodeo fans throughout the west and have been received enthusiastically in Susanville in the past years. The Lassen County rodeos will feature bull-fighting, clowns, track events plus six horse races daily, in addition to the regular rodeo events.

Larry Rose of Niagara Falls, N. Y., bowled games of 155, 158, 147 for a 400 total. Exactly one week later he bowled the identical scores in the same order.
