Guy Madison Doing Fine For Guy Recently Futureless

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — For a guy who couldn't get an acting job three years ago, Guy Madison is doing all right.
 In fact, he's up to his pistol holsters in work, and he doesn't seem to mind a bit. He remembers the lean days when no one would hire him.
 The last time I talked to Guy was when he was working on "The Charge at Feather River." The future was still in doubt for him. He had made a solid hit with his Wild Bill Hickok series on TV, but he was still an unknown quantity at the nation's box offices.
 The issue has now been resolved. "Feather River" shot to the top of the theater polls when it was released. Now Madison's option has been picked up and he is slated to head "em off at the crossroads in five more films. He is now making a big-budget epic called "Rear Guard."
 I asked if he minded being typed in horse operas, a fate which seems apparent.
 "I don't think I'll necessarily be typed in Westerns," he replied. "I believe I could make all kinds of action pictures. Later on I might even try something different. But I don't mind action. I like working outdoors better than making pictures on stages."
 Besides, action pictures are good discipline. You have to stay in shape for them. If you let yourself get fat, you're in trouble.

 "This stuff about getting typed is overrated. When I started the TV series, lots of people warned me that I wouldn't be able to play anything else but Wild Bill Hickok. But that hasn't held true."
 Madison is a conscientious fellow. When I saw him on the "Rear Guard" set, he was reciting his lines to himself. It was a hefty haul of dialogue, and he wanted to have it well memorized. That's part of the discipline that TV has taught him.
 He admits that he moved "too far too fast" during the early phase of his film career. A bobby sox favorite, he was pushed into leading roles that were beyond his capabilities. After a few flops, he found himself out in the cold. To head "em off at the crossroads in five more films. He is now making a big-budget epic called "Rear Guard."
 He now has as much work as he can handle. Warners is grooming him as the likely successor to John Wayne and Randolph Scott and is lining up a number of action vehicles for him. He also plans to shape up his own picture-making company.
 He has a respite from his TV chores until next March. He'll resume the Westerns then, filming them in color so they'll be ready for United TV. His fall schedule includes recording 40 radio shows for the Wild Bill series.
 Everything seems to have turned out fine for Guy, except his own personal life. While his success should have brought him happiness he is actually a quiet and unhappy fellow. The failure of his marriage to Gail Russell is one of Hollywood's tragedies.

NEW ALTITUDE RECORD SET
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy said Monday Lt. Col. Marion E. Carl, a Marine Corps pilot, set a new altitude record of 83,235 feet in the Douglas Skyrocket research plane on Aug. 21.
 The Navy said the unofficial world mark was established during a test of a newly developed high-altitude flying suit.
 The previous altitude record was 78,494 feet, set in the same airplane by Douglas test pilot Bill Bridgeman on Aug. 7, 1951.

HELP OFFERED
DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Syria has offered Jordan military help in the case of any Jewish aggression against Jordan, a usually reliable source said Monday. This offer was said to have been made by the Syrian foreign minister to his Jordanian colleague.

TAX HATERS
LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Crowds rioting against tax increases shot and wounded three British officials and several Nigerian policemen Monday in an attack on the police force at Eruwa, a small town in western Nigeria.
 A demonstrator was killed by police fire.
 The situation later was reported quiet.

Postoffice Not Studying 'Insult Of the Century'
WASHINGTON (AP) — As of now, the Post Office Department has no plans for assigning any of its employees to read Dr. Alfred C. Kinsey's "Sexual Behavior in the Human Female."
 That was the reaction of the department Monday to a suggestion by Rep. Heller (D-NY) that the book be barred from the mails pending a congressional investigation of its content.
 In a letter to Postmaster General Summerfield last Saturday, Heller described the Kinsey report as "the insult of the century" against womanhood.

Highway Laws Study Rejected

SALEM (AP) — A recommendation for survey and analysis of Oregon highway laws was rejected Monday by the 1953 Legislative Highway Interim Committee meeting here.
 Cost of the survey, asked by the Automotive Safety Foundation, was estimated at $5,000 based on a similar survey conducted in North Dakota.
 Clifford Enslie, engineer for the state highway department, said he had studied the report of the foundation on the North Dakota highway laws and was satisfied that such a survey was not needed at this time. A similar opinion was expressed by State Highway Engineer R. H. Baldock.
 A similar survey was conducted in Oregon in 1948.
 Rep. Edward Geary, Klamath Falls, committee chairman, recalled the recent recodification of Oregon laws and suggested also that needed changes could be presented to the 1955 Legislature.
 A committee of three was authorized to confer with the Stanford Research Institute on a study of the impact of taxes on commercial vehicles. It will report back at the next meeting, set for Eugene, Oct. 12.

Old Hand To Lead Fight Against Deadly Halogeton

WASHINGTON (AP) — The continuing fight against the weed, halogeton, which is deadly to livestock on Western ranges, will be led by an old hand.
 Before his appointment last April 13 as administrator of the Federal Bureau of Land Management, which is coordinating the attack, Edward Woosley had experienced with poisonous weed as Idaho's state land commissioner.
 Idaho struck the first telling blow against halogeton when it put up money for research after the death of 1,300 sheep in one Southern Idaho band was attributed to the weed.
 The University of Idaho took the lead in doing research which served as valuable pioneer material for the present large-scale fight which involves cooperation between federal, state and county agencies, ranchers and railroads.
 Woosley told a reporter his bureau, operating under a slightly reduced appropriation, will make every effort to continue its "fairly satisfactory" halogeton control program covering a vast area in seven states.
 The Bureau's halogeton appropriation for the year which began last July 1 is $1,345,000 — $45,000 less than was available in the preceding year.
 Woosley said this year's program will be the "same size" as last year's when 202,000 acres of rangeland were reseeded with grass and chemicals were sprayed over 18,000 acres and along 8,200 miles of highway right-of-way.
 The Bureau is getting good cooperation in the fight to stop the rapid invasion of the weed, Woosley said. He added that the weed resembles the Russian thistle and is believed to have been imported from Russia.
 Sheep herders, range riders, sportsmen and others who use in the range are becoming halogeton-conscious and their reports are making it possible to spot and attack new infestations, he added.
 The Bureau of Land Management estimates halogeton has spread over nearly 2 million acres of federal land and 60,000 acres of state and private land in Idaho.

Reds Use Volley Of Shots In Psychological Wringer

FREEDOM VILLAGE (AP) — An F80 jet pilot who returned Monday from Red captivity said the Chinese ran him through a psychological wringer trying to get a confession of germ warfare.
 The pilot, Lt. Ward G. Tuttle, Bremerton, Wash., said:
 "They didn't use physical violence but they were masters at the psychological business."
 The United Nations command has repeatedly denied the Red charges of germ warfare.
 Tuttle was shot down over a small North Korean village April 8, 1952, while on a bombing run. He related:
 "The Chinese made me stand for a week to 10 days at attention for 6 to 8 hours a day. Then they pulled a little shenanigan—what they call a court martial."
 "They jerked me and another pilot, 1st Lt. John Smith—out of bed at 2 in the morning."
 "The Chinese read out a charge against me accusing me of being a war criminal with the blood of innocent women and children on my head."
 "Then the first thing the Chinese officer in charge was to tell me that I had three minutes in which to confess and he held a revolver to my head."
 "I got to be a joke. The 3 minutes extended into 5 and the 5 into 15 minutes."
 The blond pilot continued with a smile:
 "I didn't say a word. I just kept repeating the Lord's Prayer and asked for a cigarette."
 "But the trick of the whole thing was still to come. They shoved me out and told me to go to sleep for a few hours to think it over. Just as I was going into the bunkers where I slept I heard a volley of shots. I thought that John had been shot while John thought that I had been shot."
 "The next morning they took me down to the hut and they asked me whether I had changed my mind."
 "I said no."
 "The Reds realized they couldn't get anything out of him, they released him."
 Tuttle felt that he had been saved but believed all along that John Smith had been killed.
 "When we saw each other some weeks later we were certainly surprised," he added.
 He added:
 "It was the tension that they tried to build up in you. I could feel myself knotting up hard inside."

Famous waters make famous beers

FOR MANY CENTURIES, certain localities in Europe have been famous for their exceptional beers. Each of those places has enjoyed the advantage of a faultless type of rare brewing water. Here in the United States, a similar crystal pure brewing water was discovered near Olympia, Washington in 1895 and, on the site of these artesian wells, the Olympia Brewing Company was established. Here America's original light table beer was brewed and soon became famous for its distinctive character. Try Olympia today and discover its rare flavor and light refreshing quality, so like the renowned beers of the European continent.
