

THE STEAMER WINEMA made quite a splash when she hit the waters of the Upper Lake in the fall of 1904. The boat was christened by Mollie Reames Jennings, shown here breaking the traditional bottle of wine over the bow, with the words

"On the mighty Klamath, under the bright blue sky, I christen thee — Winema." The boat was side-launched on the west side of the river near the site of the present day Fremont bridge. — Photo from J. T. Totten

Trusty Reports Escape, Follows

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—When a fellow state reformatory inmate jumped from a truck driven by trusty Calvin Halligan and disappeared yesterday, Halligan promptly reported it to reformatory authorities.

Today officers sought both men. After reporting the first escape, Halligan himself disappeared.

SNOW SLEDS

MIAMI, Okla. (AP)—A truck driver went about unloading his cargo in 100-degree-plus heat, sweating and grinning sheepishly at the jibes of passers-by. He was unloading snow sleds for a department store.

Two College Students Charged with Robbery

FAIRMONT, W. Va. (AP)—Two West Virginia University students from Morgantown, W. Va., were charged with armed robbery yesterday in the holdup of a Fairmont hotel owner.

Robert Gregory Colasanti, 19, a second-year law student, and Anthony Scotchell Jr., 18, a freshman in commerce, were held for grand jury action in default of $5,000 bond each.

Water Low; College Declares Vacation

ATHENS, W. Va. (AP)—Concord College's 745 students are today enjoying an expected and indefinite vacation.

Dr. Virgil H. Stewart, president of the college, said all classes have been postponed "until further notice" because of a "critical municipal water shortage."

Life In Convent Like Life In Army, June Haver Says

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—June Haver, the movie star who gave up $3,500 a week for life in a convent, is home today for the rest that she prays will give her health to continue her religious vocation.

The 27-year-old petite beauty, her once platinum hair now returned to its natural brownish shade, flew here last night from Kansas City on orders from her doctor and religious superiors.

Severe migraine headaches and a general run-down condition caused what June hopes will only be a temporary break in her studies to become a Roman Catholic Sister of Charity.

"I found the religious life everything I hoped it would be," she said. "I lacked only the physical strength to continue. I want to return as soon as I am able."

She arrived dressed simply but smartly in a brown tailored suit. She wore nylons and brown alligator pumps and carried an alligator handbag. Lipstick was her only makeup.

Always known as one of the most cooperative of actresses, she willingly posed for pictures and chatted with reporters at the home of her sister, Mrs. Dorothy Flynn.

"I'm so surprised to see such a homecoming," she said. "I don't consider myself a celebrity anymore."

At the airport to greet her were her mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Ottstad; her two sisters, her grandmother and John (Judge) Garberry, an old-time friend of the family.

She disclosed that today was not the first time that she had appeared in street clothes since she entered the convent at Xavier, Kan., 7½ months ago. She said that, as a postulant, she had to dress in street clothes to make an unpublicized visit to a hospital three months ago.

It was then, she said, that she realized that her illness was serious enough to become a barrier toward completion of the two-year novitiate training required before she could take permanent vows. Her ailment, she disclosed, is tied up with a very low metabolism rate.

She said she is "supremely happy" in religious life and added that she does not intend to resume film work.

"I want only to rest," she said, "so that I may regain my strength and resume my religious training. If God is willing."

Later at a family reunion at her sister's home, Miss Haver said she cluded labor in the kitchen and laundry.

Her hair was cut short in an unglamorous trim to better fit the convent veil she has been wearing. She laughed when one of her sisters told her that she was right in style with her new "Haban look."
