

A SMALL DROP OF INK MAKES THOUSANDS THINK

"BUT DON'T GO NEAR THE WATER"—These eight pretty Aquamaids couldn't obey instructions in the old jingle, and hang their clothes on a hickory limb. They hung them on a cypress limb, at Cypress Gardens, Fla., and went a-rowing on the beach. Why? To give you one more glimpse of summertime loveliness before the onslaught of winter.

EARLY CHRISTIAN ART REDISCOVERED—A young tenant of an old Milan, Italy, building looks at an old fresco which was recently discovered in the building's unused attic. Plaster crumbling off the walls led to the discovery of the well-preserved piece of art, showing Christ on the cross. Experts feel that the figure of Christ may be only part of a large fresco underneath the entire wall of the attic.

HIGH-FLYING BUS—No, your eyes aren't deceiving you, it is a high-flying bus. But it's a rubber inflated one used by the Isura Motor Company as an advertisement in Tokyo, Japan, where balloon advertising is enjoying a boom.

GARDEN OF EDAM—A Danish miss sits in a Copenhagen garden loaded with rich cheeses in all shapes and colors. The edible garden is one of the features of the National Dairy Show, held every five years under the auspices of the Federation of Danish Dairy Associations. Over 1200 samples of butter and 1000 cheeses are on display at the show.

JUST WAIT 'TIL I CLEAN MY GUN—The noise of military maneuvers and the threat of Dutch soldiers cleaning their guns doesn't seem to faze the chickens grubbing around in a Delmenhorst, Germany, back yard, but the riflemen have that "Oh, boy, chicken!" look. The soldiers are part of the 432nd Battalion Limbuge, taking part in "Exercise Grand Repulse."

IT'S BEEN SO LONG THEY FORGOT—H. J. Spellman, a Bureau of Public Roads engineer in Washington, D. C., sits at the wheel of a 1904 Cadillac, which the government forgot it owned. After gathering dust in a government barn for nearly a generation, the sports roadster, in perfect condition, will be sold to the highest bidder.

RETURN KOREAN UNIVERSITY—Gen. Maxwell Taylor, left, 8th Army commander, and Dr. Choi Kyu Nam, wearing cap and gown, salute a color guard during ceremonies returning Seoul National University to the Korean Republic. The university had been used as 8th Army headquarters.

LEARNING FOREST CONSERVATION EARLY—With forest fire season approaching, the first volunteer junior forest rangers to aid in the Department of Agriculture's nationwide forest fire prevention program are sworn in. Taking the oath from Ranger Ira Runk, in Washington, D. C., are Timmy Mosher, 5, of Falls Church, Va., and Marina Dellachiesa, 10, of Silver Springs, Md. Both are holding "Smokey Bear" dolls.

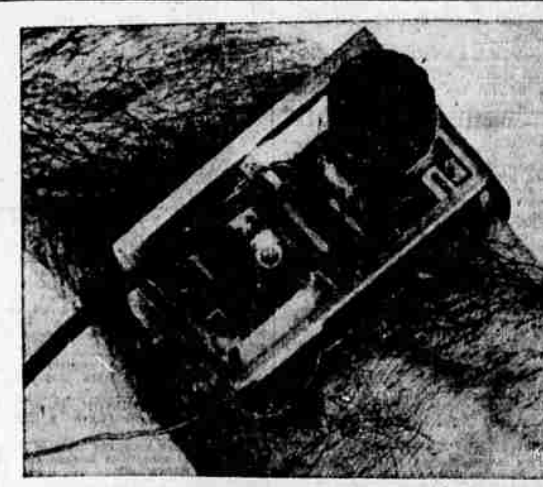

HOPE BURNS BRIGHT—Michael Dana, left, 11-year-old poster boy for the 1952 drive of the Muscular Dystrophy Association, hands his successor, seven-year-old Richard Fowler, a flaming torch, symbol of hope for some 200,000 victims of the disease. Richard made the trip to New York from his Apollo, Pa., home to accept his nomination as this year's poster boy.

HEADS CAMPAIGN—Congressman Richard M. Simpson, of Huntington, Pa., is the GOP's choice to head its off-year congressional campaign committee. His job will be to see that the GOP retains control of Congress in 1954. He is serving his ninth term in the House of Representatives.

TINY TUNER—Wrist space is usually reserved for a watch, but the Army Signal Corps thinks it's a good place to wear a radio. This is a close-up of the Lilliputian receiver which has transistor-type units replacing the standard vacuum tubes. The knob on the outside of the case is used for tuning in signals. While the unit is unable to transmit, it can pick up signals in a 40-mile radius.

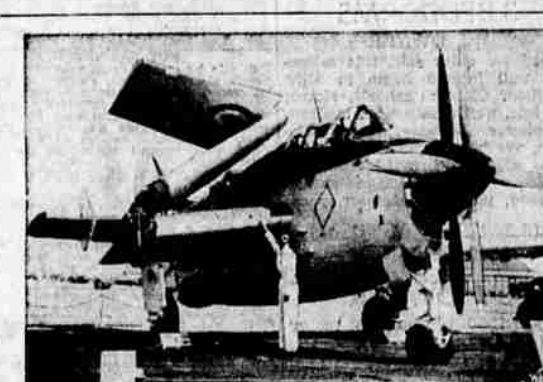

HOBBY PAYS OFF—Donald Eslin, of Schenectady, N. Y., puts the finishing touches on one of the miniature locomotives which he makes for the American Locomotive Company. He worked in the company accounting department and during his lunch hour roamed the railroad yard making sketches of engine parts. The result is that when company officials saw his authentic-looking engines, they gave him a full-time job making the locomotives.

VIEW STATUE OF GANDHI—Jeffrey Levoff, 6, and Dee-Ann Roth, 8, of Williston, Long Island, observe a bronze statue of the late Indian leader, Mohandas K. Gandhi, at the American Museum of Natural History. They are two of the many New Yorkers now visiting the first comprehensive exhibition of India's contemporary arts and crafts at the museum.

PAST BECOMES PRESENT—A horse and wagon, very much in the present, and not of the past, pulls up to a quaint country store in the village of Sturbridge, Mass., which is being preserved as a life-size museum, typical of New England in the early 19th century. A craft center, its production duplicates the painstaking handwork turned out in the area before the Industrial Revolution.

ENEMY SUBS BETTER BEWARE—Most unusual feature of the latest British aerial submarine hunter is its three-way-fold wings. The plane, which was recently demonstrated at Farnborough, England, is now in super priority production.
