

MR. AND MRS. ROGER (Pod) MONTGOMERY... now living in Nazareth, Texas, are not strangers to the Northwest. "Pod" and his family came to Klamath Falls before he entered grade school, and he and his wife lived for seven years in this territory, most of them on a houseboat on the Willamette River, where Mrs. Montgomery, under her maiden name, Charlotte Baker, pursued her literary and artistic talents, while her husband practiced law in the offices of Meindl-McCarty and Montgomery, and taught two nights a week at law school.

In the picture, Charlotte Baker is autographing one of her eight published books for children, "Kinnery Camp," with the inscription, "With all good wishes to Tommy Ankeny from the author." (Tommy had owned the book for some time before the author and illustrator's recent stay in Klamath Falls). Primarily, the Montgomerys were in town to see his mother, Mrs. L. P. (Minnie) Montgomery — incidentally, they saw many of Pod's old friends. (Story on inside page).

BARRELLS HAVE BEEN BORN... and Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas E. Ingle and Madeline Long and son Roger have moved to Portland after many years in Klamath Falls. Recently they closed their window wear shop on Main Street and moved to their collective Leveaux home. The decision to return to Portland came as a surprise to many of their friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Blomquist and Mr. and Mrs. Al Hattis invited some 150 guests to a dinner party Sept. 26, at the Yacht Club in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Long. Last Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Moore had one final "family" dinner for the Longs. They will live in the Irvington District, and Roger will be a senior at Grant. Daughter Joanne (Mrs. Jim Benham), lives in Seattle and other son, Nicholas, is in the U. S. Navy.
