High Taxes To Continue

By WALTER BREEDER JR.
 NEW YORK (AP) — Businessmen were told last week to expect at least another year of federal budget deficits and high taxes.

The warning came as business indicators pointed to a moderate slow-down in some key lines of commerce and production. Scheduled steel operations were down 1 1/2 percentage points from the previous week's actual operating rate, truck output dipped 20 per cent, retail trade declined slightly, crude oil production was at its lowest point since May.

The normal seasonal expansion in bank loans to business continued to lag behind the 1952 rate; check clearings were up a little from the previous week but below year-ago levels. Stock and commodity markets were mostly steady.

The tax and budget outlook was set forth in a statement by Treasury Secretary Humphrey.

"There's no hope of getting a balanced budget, he said, unless a 'very substantial' cut is made in military funds — a cut which might jeopardize the nation's safety.

"What's more, said Humphrey, the administration can't make no promises of any tax reductions at all" after Dec. 31 when individual income taxes go down 10 per cent and the corporate excess profits tax expires.

Humphrey aired his views at the Pebble Beach, Calif., meeting of the Commerce Department's Business Advisory Council — a group including the heads of some of the nation's biggest business corporations. Robert E. Wood, chairman of Sears, Roebuck & Co., told newsmen at the meeting he expected retail trade to decline 2 to 10 per cent in the next three months because of tighter credit, lower farm income and recent factory layoffs.

'Caine Mutiny' Winds Itself Up Coast, Then To East

By BOB THOMAS
 HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "The Caine Mutiny Court Martial" is winding its way up the Pacific coast on the first leg of a lengthy tour that will reach New York Jan. 13. It should meet with success all along the way.

I caught the play at Pomona College in Claremont, Calif., and can report that it is stirring theater. The magic touch of Paul Gregory, who brought forth "Don Juan in Hell" and "John Brown's Body," is as golden as ever.

Unlike the two previous attractions, "Court Martial" is offered with scenery and costumes. The scene is the bare courtroom on Mars Island, and the all-male cast wear naval uniforms. The playgoers arrive at the theater to find the curtain up, thus making them feel like observers at a trial. When the play is ready to begin, two sailors come onstage to straighten up the place. Then the other players begin to arrive.

The play starts slowly, with an exposition of facts that seem to tighten the ring of guilt around the defendant, Lt. Maryk (John Hodiak), Capt. Queeg (Lloyd Nolan), who was forcibly relieved at sea by Maryk, testifies his scorn for the action with apparent rationality.

The defense attorney (Henry Fonda) appears unwilling or unable to stem the flow of incriminating evidence. He is even admonished by the presiding officer of the court.

But then Fonda goes to work. He prowls tiger-like around the witness chair as he ensnares naval psychiatrists in their own words. He brings Nolan back to the stand for the kill.

In one of the most beautifully sustained scenes of the play Nolan rants on, exposing Queeg as the irrational tyrant that he is. Despite the static nature of the play—it remains in the court except for a brief hotel celebration afterwards—there is never a let-down. Even though the majority of the pep Pomona College crowd had read "The Caine Mutiny," there was still an air of suspense. The laughs rocked the huge auditorium, and the dramatic moments brought pin-dropping silence.

Fonda, in a role that will be compared to "Mr. Roberts," does a beautifully modulated job. There's nothing flashy in it until the final scene, when he blasts the real instigator of the mutiny, Nolan as the role of a lifetime and plays it to the hilt. Hodiak in a less showy part, is the perfect Maryk.

Much praise is due Herman Wouk, for a spare adaptation of his lengthy novel. Direction is credited to Dick Powell, although Charles Laughton finished up the job when Powell reportedly tiffed with Pondichion over American security troops for off-duty crimes.

During the year ending July 1, 1953, California land values fell off two per cent, which was less than the decrease in most western states. Texas, for example, saw a drop of 10 per cent. Washington and Oregon were five per cent below July 1, 1952.

OFF-DUTY CRIMES
 TOKYO (AP) — Representatives of Japan, Commonwealth countries and the U.N. command Monday signed an agreement giving Japan jurisdiction over UNC soldiers who commit crimes while off duty. The agreement was similar to one signed earlier giving Japan jurisdiction over American security troops for off-duty crimes.

The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics reported that total factory employment dropped by 60,000 last month. This was in marked contrast with previous years, when it was the usual thing for September to show a gain of about 200,000.

There was no lull this week in the flood of third quarter earnings reports, and most of them continued to make pleasant reading. Record sales for the first nine months and substantially higher earnings were reported by Ralph E. Ordner, president of General Electric Co., who said "we see nothing in this picture to justify fears of a recession."

Briefly over the business scene: The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission picked Westinghouse Electric Corp. to build the nation's first full-scale atomic power plant. The Supreme Court declined to review a lower court's decision upholding the "non-signer" clause in fair trade price agreements. Ford Motor Co. Ltd. of Britain started production of the "world's lowest priced car," a pint-sized four passenger sedan that will sell for $770 plus taxes. Philip Morris & Co. announced plans for buying Benson & Hedges, leading maker of filter-tip cigarettes, buying business at U.S. resort hotels this year was the best ever.

The Medford District Office of the Bureau of Land Management announced the sale of 2,043,000 board feet of ponderosa pine timber located in the Dead Indian area in a sealed bid sale held Oct. 21. The L. E. Edmonds Lumber Company of Medford was the successful bidder with an offer of $40.50 per thousand. One offer was submitted by the Pine Mountain Lumber Company of Ashland. The timber was appraised at $38.05 per thousand. A second tract of 1,033,000 board feet of Douglas fir and sugar pine was sold at a special oral auction sale on Oct. 13 to Cecil Conley of Astoria, Ore. Conley submitted a bid of $18.75 per thousand for Douglas fir compared with an appraised price of $14.20.

This tract, which is located in the Upper Cow Creek area, was advertised previously in August but received no bids at that time.

Godfrey Says He Booted La Rosa For His Own Good

By ED GREAGH
 WASHINGTON (AP) — It sure does look as if all's sweetness and light again between Arthur Godfrey and Julius La Rosa, the Brooklyn boy hoisted to stardom and then booted out of the Godfrey TV-radio empire in full view of a nationwide audience.

While crooner La Rosa listened, glued to a television set in Washington, Godfrey said last night on a CBS coast-to-coast show that he's really very proud of the lad — "a charming rascal," he called him.

In his solemn aw-shucks fashion, Godfrey said he bounced the singing ex-sailor for La Rosa's own good — to give him a chance to make more money on his own.

As for those reports that La Rosa's dating Dorothy McGuire, a singer on Godfrey's show, had something to do with the ouster: "Ridiculous nonsense," snorted Godfrey.

Furthermore, he said, he wouldn't have announced La Rosa's departure to the public — and to La Rosa — so abruptly on a radio-TV show last Monday if the program had only run a little longer.

This was the version Godfrey offered to CBS commentator in Murrow Friday night.

Not all of this glibbed with Godfrey's earlier explanation that La Rosa had to go because he had lost his "humility."

But it seemed to satisfy La Rosa. Promptly, the 23-year-old, bartitone domed his old blue sailor suit, went out and launched his Godfrey-less career with a non-fire variety performance for the swank Navy Relief benefit ball.

Clowning and ad-libbing gaily, he also cut out of the show several mild cracks at Godfrey which had turned up in the dress rehearsal — attended by Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower — only a few hours before.

In the finale, singing his own words to "No Business Like Show Business," La Rosa assured his 1,000 listeners — including admirals on down — that it was Godfrey and only Godfrey who "gave me my chance... even tried to teach me how to dance."

Then La Rosa, a curly-haired youngster with an infectious grin, injected a bittersweet note.

He said he'd sing an encore but "as for the title — at the present day I'm a little dubious."

The title: "Sitting On Top of the World."

It was a little hard to see what La Rosa was dubious about since he stands to make almost three times the $1,000 a week or so Godfrey was paying him when he switches to the Ed Sullivan "Toast of the Town" TV show starting tomorrow night.

The Navy audience liked it, though, and applauded warmly.

So, at the dress rehearsal, did Mrs. Eisenhower.

"Wonderful show!" she told him, clasping his hand. She said she was sure the President would be sorry he couldn't see it.

Before La Rosa's widely publicized hurt feelings and Godfrey's stern insistence on humility had mellowed, the story of an earlier singer's break with Godfrey cropped up.

Bill Lawrence, last seen with the "Old Redhead" in 1951, told it in St. Louis. Lawrence said he left the Godfrey show for the Army and never did get back on it, though he would have liked to.

Godfrey, down on his Virginia farm when the story broke, said that was right, he didn't take Bill back on. He meant to let him go for a long time, he said because: "The bobby soxers had driven him a little haywire."

Then the girl question came up
