

Engineer Says Whole Power Set-Up Was Considered

By JOHN KAMPS

WASHINGTON (AP)—Idaho reclamation engineer Mark R. Kulp said Thursday he and Idaho Gov. Len Jordan compared opposing plans from all angles before they urged the Power Commission to approve applications for three private power dams in the Snake River.

Kulp said this in testimony at a hearing on Idaho Power Co. applications, which are opposed by groups favoring construction of the proposed federal Hells Canyon Dam in the same stretch of the river between Idaho and Oregon.

An attorney for the group Wednesday brought up a letter which Kulp and Jordan sent to the commission last June in reply to an invitation for comment. L. A. Nikolov questioned whether Kulp and Jordan had given consideration to comprehensive development of the Snake River.

R. P. Perry, Idaho Power lawyer, asked Kulp Thursday whether he and the governor had written a "snap judgment" letter.

The state engineer said careful consideration had been given to power production, flood control and many other factors in comparing the private and federal proposals. He said the letter had been "drafted and re-drafted" following numerous conferences and a long study of the opposing plans.

Kulp said both he and Jordan are familiar with the Columbia and Snake rivers. Kulp, a member of the Columbia Basin Interagency Committee and the Basic Compact Commission, said Jordan attends CBAC sessions and has been "very active" in studying basin problems and potential development.

John Mason, commission attorney, questioned Kulp on Idaho laws governing priority in water usage and about the state permits which Idaho Power obtained for its proposed dams.

Kulp said irrigators in Idaho have top priority. Under the state constitution, he said, farmers may divert water above power projects through condemnation and the courts rule on whether the farmers must pay the power company.

The engineer said the rights of upstream irrigators are further protected by restrictions in Idaho power's permits.

Asked for the basis for his estimate that two million acres of land in southern Idaho is suitable for irrigation, Kulp said a survey he made in 1935 indicated one million acres would be suitable and he doubled the total after reading all available reports and making some land inspections.

Kulp said his estimates were based partly on an investigation made by Harry Dewey, Twin Falls, Idaho, consulting engineer and Idaho Power witness at the hearing.

Kulp said Dewey had free access to information in the state engineer's office. "I let him take the lead in assembling the figures and I checked them," Kulp added.

Kulp and Jordan wrote that Idaho Power's three proposed dams would provide "logical and proper development of hydroelectric resources" of the middle reach of the Snake River and "its ready use in basin development for early as well as future power production."

Nikolov asked if Kulp had considered factors other than power production in deciding the three dams would provide comprehensive development. He referred to flood control, navigation, recreation and fish rehabilitation.

Kulp replied that he had been thinking primarily of power, but that other factors had been considered.

Asked what construction cost estimates Kulp had used in comparing the company and federal proposals, Kulp replied both government and Idaho Power figures had been accepted.

Turning to Kulp's estimate that 1,540,000 acres of Idaho land would be placed under irrigation in the next 50 years, Nikolov asked how much Idaho land upstream from Hells Canyon now requires supplementary irrigation water.

Kulp said about 1 1/2 million acres of irrigated land could use more water. He added that the Pallasades project, now under construction, would provide supplementary water for about one million acres.

T-V Does Reading Habits No Good

NEWPORT, R. I. (AP)—The Rhode Island Library Assn. got a disconcerting report on how young people's reading habits are affected by television.

Mrs. M. Isabelle Hall, Providence high school teacher, surveyed sophomore reading habits and got these student comments: "A masterpiece is something you don't understand."

"Book give you an idea of how to get into trouble but never tell you how to get out of it."

"I'm going to read a book sometime. Last night I saw a quiz show and the contestant didn't get a jackpot because he hadn't read a book."

Civilian in Army Uniform Freed

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (AP)—Federal Judge Carl Hatch has dismissed a charge of wearing an Army uniform illegally.

Charles Edward Collins, 18, told the judge he donned the clothes believing they would help him hitchhike from Battle Creek, Mich., to see a sick relative in California.

Hatch said he himself might be guilty. He said he gardens in an old khaki shirt his son, a former Air Force pilot, discarded.

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Comedian Lou Costello is confined to his bed at home after collapsing at the airport yesterday. Doctors say he is suffering from nervous exhaustion and overwork.

THESE THREE DANCERS, Sandra Pemberton, Faye Adams and Lynette Lawrence, will be on top tonight for the annual 20-30 Club talent show at the armory at 8 o'clock. Proceeds from the show will go toward the 20-30 youth fund.

Russian Runs Wife Out; Nothing Done: Neighbors in Same Trouble

MOSCOW (AP)—The ladies of the Soviet Union are not getting an even break from their menfolk and Kremlin overlords are not happy about it.

With beating, polygamy and child brides are under fire. Such practices, says Pravda, Communist party organ, are in violation of one of the keystones of Communist policy: equal rights for women.

Actually, equal rights for women in Russia is more theory than practice. Female workers do most of the heavy work on Soviet farms and a good part of it in Soviet industry. Moscow street-cleaning gangs are heavily staffed with women. Not many Soviet women reach positions high in the government.

But Pravda says such "feudal practices" as plural marriages, wife beating and the like must go. Things are especially bad in the Soviet republic of Uzbekistan, where Moslems make up a large part of the population. Authorities there, Pravda warns, are behind the times with "a wrong attitude toward women."

Pravda bears down on one reported case involving one Kemal Rakhimov, a "certified teacher of philology, a good chap in the opinion of his drinking pals, but, in reality, a petty man."

Kemal laid siege some time ago to the heart of a student of his, a buxom lass by the name of Khalima Akmedova.

"With what heartfelt shyness and pure joy did Khalima meet Kemal. She sang the finest songs for him. She read beautiful poetry to him."

And then they were married. Things went along fine at first. Then Kemal started stepping out—without Khalima. There were fights. Then Kemal made his big mistake, at least as far as Pravda is concerned. He took a whip to his wife and turned her out in the street.

Town officials heard about it, but didn't take action Pravda tells why.

"They were having troubles with their own multiple wives and their hands were full."

'Cattlemen Of Year' For All Counties Listed

County selections for the 1953 Oregon "Cattlemen of the Year" contest were announced by the Oregon Cattlemen's Association office in Prineville.

Cattlemen selected are Herbert Chandler, Baker; Everett Shibley, Clackamas; Al Powers, Coos; J.R. Breese, Crook; Irving Stanbro, Grant; Jenkins Brothers, Harney; Morrow Brothers, Jefferson; Gerry Klose, Josephine; Ben Day, Jackson; Henry Gerber, Klamath; Ray H. Kerr, Lake; Jim McEwen, Malheur; Steve Thompson, Morrow; Wallowa; and Louie Ibrig, Wheeler.

From this list five district winners will be chosen for final selection by the contest committee. The state winner will be announced on Dec. 1. The winner selected will receive the Herman Oliver Trophy as a reward for the advancement made in cattle operations. Herman Oliver, John Day, prominent Eastern Oregon cattlemen, donates the large trophy each year. The contest is sponsored by the Oregon Cattlemen's Assn.

Cattle Group To Provide Steer Calves

The Oregon Cattlemen's Assn. will make steer calves available to 4-H and FFA members at its second annual Fall Feeder Sale at Corvallis on Nov. 4. The program the association has undertaken is an attempt to make top quality animals available to youngsters at a minimum price. A drawing will be held on Nov. 4 at 1:00 p.m. which will allow 4-H and FFA members to choose calves in the order in which their names are drawn.

The boys and girls will be charged a price set by a committee of three which will be no more than 1 1/2 cents above the top priced calves sold through the ring.

These top quality calves will be withdrawn from consignments for the 4-H and FFA sale prior to the main feeder sale on Nov. 4.

Boys and girls interested in purchasing animals should ask their 4-H and FFA leaders to notify Jim Ullings, livestock extension specialist at Oregon State College immediately so that the association will know approximately how many calves should be made available.

Sawdust Gives Away Swipers of Saw

OGDEN, Utah (AP)—Police officers Vern Lundgren and Don Mueller, returning from an investigation into the theft of a power saw, stopped a car that ran a red light. The two men in the car had sawdust on their pants, the officers observed.

Under questioning, they admitted the theft.

Firm Wool Prices Seen

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department predicted Thursday that prices to domestic wool producers will continue firm for above the national average support level of 53.1 cents.

In a summary of the wool situation here and abroad, the department said average prices to domestic producers for the 1954 crop probably will not be greatly different from this year. The average for the 1953 season, it said, was estimated at slightly above both last year and the 53.1 cent support level.
