Riot of Fun At Golf Club Party

Reamex Auxiliary's annual costume golf tournament and luncheon was a huge success again this year. With judging and prizes awarded by a well-masked, black-robed, white-mop-wigged jury and assisted by an able bailiff who levied heavy fines of bubble gum chewing on those who weren't in costume, (Mrs. Wilfred E. Lamm)

Donna Sproat and Ellen Farrens 1900 Hot Rods won low gross in the golf tournament. Singapore Eva Ashley and Timber Faller Leah Maskell won low net.

A number of prizes were awarded to those with winning costumes. A petition was circulated and read by the bailiff to de-bar the judges for disorderly conduct and biased decisions. De-barred, defrocked and unmasked, the shameful judges were revealed as Mrs. W. O. Smith, Mrs. Guy Hancock and Mrs. H. E. Hauger.

The regular meeting preceded mustering ceremony, forming of the lines for instruction and speeches by the visitors.

Ladies Kelly and Townsend were presented with beautiful hand painted plates made by Lady Frances Munsell.

Following the meeting a reception was held and light refreshments were served.

SHIRLEY ANN MASON IS REGAL BRIDE IN WHITE VELVET, TULLE AND SATIN WITH PEARL AND SEQUIN EMBROIDERY

Snow white velvet, yards of white tulle over satin and sequin and pearl embroidery were fashioned into the beautiful wedding gown worn by Shirley Anne Mason in the First Presbyterian Church, Oct. 25, when she became the bride of David B. Hatfield. The close-fitting bodice of velvet featured an illusion yoke with choker neckline and an off-the-shoulder effect was achieved with satin applique, pearl and sequin embroidery trimmed.

The long fitted sleeves extended to points below the wrists. The same jeweled trim was used on the panels of the skirt, forming a vee at the waistline. Her fingertip veil was gathered to a pillbox of the same material trimmed with a petite bow. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis and eucharis lilies centered with a white orchid.

The attractive bride is the daughter of Mrs. Carl H. Mason, 2025 Lawrence; and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. William H. Hatfield, Oakland. Mrs. Hatfield is a former Tulelake resident and David is presently living there. The ceremony united two foremost Basin families.

Shirley was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Thomas C. Barnes. Some 200 guests witnessed the impressive double-ring service read by the Rev. David P. Barnett Jr., at 2 p.m., before a colorful fall arrangement of rich yellow and orange chrysanthemums banked with fern and illuminated with lighted tapers in floor candelabra.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Thomas C. Barnes, sister-in-law of the bride wore a bouffant floor-length gown of iridescent sage green tulle. The bodice neckline was framed with many rows of small tucks forming a decolletage in front, and briefly covering the shoulders. Self-covered buttons formed a line to the wide band which snugly encircled the waist. She wore slippers dyed to match and carried a cascade arrangement of bronze chrysanthemums, which also were used in her head wreath.

Bridesmaids, Mrs. C. J. Vaughn (Mary Havens), Barbara Rae Osborn and Mrs. Martin Franz (Britta Lion), all wore dresses and flowers identical to the matron of honor's.

Best man was Byron J. Brown, and ushers were Bill Alexander, Robert B. Moore and John W. Pettigrew.

Mrs. Lorne W. Simons, organist, accompanied soloist Jewell Cantrell Howard.

Mrs. Mason wore a beautifully designed afternoon dress of cocoa brown tissue tulle. Tiers of self-corded banded the skirt, and the bodice featured a deep narrow vee neckline. Her level hat was of mauve pink felt accented with cocoa brown panne. The soft pink was repeated in the orchid corsage and pink gloves.

Mrs. Hatfield wore a smart pearl gray afternoon suit and her stunning costume was complemented with a close fitting hat of deep plum velvet with orchid trim, an orchid corsage in the same tones and dark accessories.

The reception was in the Pine Grove Room of the Willard Hotel immediately after the ceremony. Mrs. Dean H. Osborn and Mrs. Guy L. Harmon, the latter from Eugene, poured; Ann Coey and Ann

Egan served punch; Mrs. D. D. Havens, former Klamath Falls resident, now of Portland, cut the cake; Mrs. Robert Sproat Sr., and Mrs. Oliver W. Spiker assisted; and Mrs. Bill G. Alexander passed the guest book.

For travel, Shirley wore a white knit suit, pink pastel coat and hat, black accessories and her corsage was the orchid from her bridal bouquet. The bride, a graduate of KUHS, was a student at the University of Oregon for almost four years, and was affiliated with Sigma Kappa sorority. Her husband was in the navy four years, and after that time spent six months in the South Seas with the Vanderbilt expedition.

Mrs. Lee Preston, (Charlene Harmon), close friend and sorority sister of the bride, unable to be here for the wedding called from Mt. Rainier, Md., to extend best wishes to her former college roommate. A cablegram was received at the reception from Judith Sattler, formerly on faculty at Mills School now in Vienna, Austria.

After a honeymoon to San Francisco and Monterey, the new Mr. and Mrs. Hatfield are at home in Tulelake.

Out of town guests here for the occasion were Mrs. D. D. Havens, Mrs. Charles J. Vaughn and Mrs. Richard Kraushaar (cousin of the bride), all from Portland; and Mr. and Mrs. Guy L. Harmon, Eugene, who at one time lived in Klamath Falls.

Pre-nuptial events which were given for the bride included a luncheon Oct. 23, given by Mrs. D. D. Havens and Mrs. Charles Vaughn for Shirley and her attendants; and Dr. and Mrs. Dean H. Osborn were hosts at the rehearsal dinner given at their home for the wedding party and out of town guests.

The Courtwrights expect to have Janice home in a week, or when she reaches five pounds. She is their first child.
