Law Enforcement Hinges On Decision

(Editor's Note: This is the fifth in a series of articles dealing with the right of the state of Oregon to prosecute crimes committed by Indians on the Klamath Reservation.)

By LYLE DOWNING

It is very much a matter for conjecture as to what will happen as far as law enforcement on the Klamath Reservation is concerned, if Circuit Judge David R. Vandenberg refuses to take jurisdiction in the Gloria Wilma Barkley murder case. The Barkley woman is accused of slaying her mother on the reservation last September.

The decision which must be made by Judge Vandenberg is whether the state of Oregon has jurisdiction to try 10 major crimes since the federal government, under the provisions of Public Law 280 enacted last August, gave up crime prosecution rights on the reservation.

Many law enforcement officers, questioned by the Herald and News, believe the government "put the cart before the horse"

Skyscrapers Blotted Out; Visibility Nil

NEW YORK (AP) — Sunshine trickled down onto the metropolitan area Saturday, trying hard to burn off a five-day curtain of smaze and smog.

The smog—fog added to smoke—was a new development in the eastern seaboard's unseasonal warm weather. For three days it was just smaze—smoke and haze—but last night fog crept into the picture.

The effect was the same, visibility almost nil in many places and a damp, stifling feeling on respiratory organs.

The Weather Bureau in New York expected the fog to be gone by noon, but with the smoke and haze still around, the difference would be one of degree.

Busy Idlewild and LaGuardia airports were at a standstill all night and through the morning hours.

In Connecticut, road traffic was snarled and more than 20 accidents were reported on one stretch of the Merritt Parkway.

Traffic on the northern section of the New Jersey Turnpike was slowed to 35 miles an hour.

Health Department authorities in the New York Metropolitan area and New Jersey were keeping a close watch on death reports to see if the twilight-gray "smaze" would add to fatalities.

Hundreds of persons have complained of scratchy throats and irritated eyes and noses, with chronic asthma sufferers being the worse hit.

Manhattan's famed skyscrapers often appeared blotted out in the gloom.

The unseasonably warm weather—yesterday's high was 69.9—has caused this unusual situation. A layer of warm air has formed in the ceiling, with the upper air acting as a lid to keep fumes and smoke from dispersing. The Weather Bureau terms this an "inversion" of the usual process.

The only relief in sight was a forecast of "some rain beginning tonight or Sunday." A cold wave moving east from Chicago could break up the condition, but that might take several more days.

Airliners experienced only minor delays during the daylight hours yesterday. However, by midnight last night all incoming and outgoing flights at LaGuardia and Idlewild airports were canceled.

Spokesman at both field said the ceiling was "zero" at 4 a. m. (EST) and no activity could be contemplated until much later in the morning.

Many observers have started comparing the fume and smoke haze with the smog in Great Britain last year which killed 13,000 persons.

But Dr. Morris B. Jacobs, director of the New York City Air Pollution Control Laboratory, said the gray pall hanging over the area was not smog, which is a combination of smoke and fog.

"In addition to soot," Jacobs said, "the haze includes particles of such things as fly ash, dust, earth, tars, asphalt, grit, loose paint from buildings and windows, rubber rubbed off tires by friction, and anything loose and likely to blow upward."

The accumulation of "smaze," was felt even in residential Westchester County and in sections of Long Island.

In Elizabeth, N. J., yesterday a "health alert" was sounded, that community being one of the hardest hit in the four-state area. First aid clinics were busy treating residents and workers for stinging eyes, burning noses, headaches and nausea.

Mystery Coyote In Seattle Dies After Capture

SEATTLE (AP) — That wandering Southern California coyote died Friday night. It seems the indirect cause was an over-rich Seattle diet.

His demise was reported by Doug Boaz, assistant manager of the King County Humane Society.

"We tried our best to save him," Boaz said. "We wanted to send him out to the Woodland Park Zoo."

"But he was suffering from shock and that collar which was choking him. That whoop over the head didn't help him any, either."

The animal, wearing a collar and dog license which read "Los Angeles, M2833. Expires 6-30-54" was captured by three young West Seattle boys this week.

He'd apparently been feeding on pet rabbits and cats and got so fat, Humane Society officers said, that his collar choked him. The boys found him semi-conscious and whopped him over the head with their play wooden tomahawk to make a capture.

Los Angeles disdained to claim ownership to the critter Thursday night, saying the license was issued in San Pedro. Someone opined he maybe belonged to a sea-going man.

Jim Crismon Hurt in Wreck

Jim Crismon, enroute to this afternoon's Oregon-Oregon State football game in Eugene, landed instead in Klamath Valley Hospital this morning when his car hit a slick spot near the Chiloquin junction and landed in the ditch.

Crismon suffered bruises and shock and was scheduled for X-rays this morning after complaining of a back pain. He was taken to the hospital by a passing motorist.

Crismon, ex-Klamath Union High School and University of Oregon yell king, is now an advertising salesman for the Herald and News.

Mossy Holds To His Story

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Ex-Premier Mohammed Mossadeq, facing an army court-martial on treason charges, laughed aside a prosecution suggestion Saturday that he confess alleged past misdeeds.

The suggestion was made by Azemodah at the opening of the 12th session in the trial of the former dictator. He is accused of attempting to overthrow Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi, defying royal decrees and illegally dissolving the lower house of Parliament.

"I hope this man one day will rise and confess," Azemodah told the court. The 73-year-old Mossadeq laughed scornfully and replied: "Oh yes."

"If you stand up and confess to your past deeds, the first person to stand up and sacrifice himself for you will be me," the prosecutor declared.

Mossadeq's reply was an ironic "God help you."

The interchange came as Azemodah continued to read the indictment against the former premier. Court sources said he planned to take another three or four days in reading the charges and expanding on them.

Tax Ruling Reverse Asked

WASHINGTON (AP) — The executor of the estate of W. E. Stewart, former Portland resident, has asked the U. S. Tax Court to overrule an Internal Revenue Service claim that the estate owes $33,096 in federal taxes.

The appeal was filed by Clarence D. Phillips, attorney for Lorne L. Miller, trust officer of the Portland Trust Bank and executor of the estate.

Miller asserted the government erred in including as one of Stewart's assets the sum of $42,000, which revenue agents reported as outstanding in loans to Reginald L. Rankin of Los Angeles. Miller said he knows of no such loans and argued that even if they existed, they would be uncollectible because of the statute of limitations.

The government also added to Stewart's estate $164,000 in gifts to Graeme Stewart, which it contended were made in contemplation of death or in lieu of a will. Among the items listed was a ranch in Siskiyou County, Calif., valued by the government at $121,000.

Miller said the ranch was given only a few months after it was purchased in 1943 for $10,000. Both then and in subsequent years, when the reported cash gifts were made, he said, Stewart was in good health and hence could not have made them in contemplation of death.

He said the Internal Revenue Service also erred in not permitting deduction of $28,302 from the estate to offset a bequest to Lewis and Clark College.

Paratroopers Grab Stronghold Deep In Guerrilla Territory

By LARRY ALLEN

HANOI, Indochina (AP) — Thousands of French and Vietnamese paratroopers have jumped deep into mountain territory of the Communist-led Vietnam to grab a major base for new raids on their guerrilla foes.

The French High Command announced their forces, supported by U.S.-supplied fighter bombers, yesterday seized the big rebel war base at Dien Bien Phu, 180 miles west of Hanoi.

Gen. Rene Cogny, French commander in north Indochina, said the capture:

1. Provides a center of the rallying and training of partisan fighters from the pro-French Thai tribes and for raids by them and the French forces on the Vietnam.
2. Removes a major threat to the Thai tribal capital of Lai Chau, 50 miles to the north. The Vietnam failed to capture Lai Chau in their sweeping offensive last winter which seized large areas of the Thai country.

E. H. Bunnell Death Learned

A telephone communication from the Columbia Press, Washington D.C., received by the Herald and News today told of the death in George Washington Hospital in that city of Edward H. Bunnell, 71, reported to be a brother of Robert E. Bunnell, Klamath Falls.

A former resident of Klamath Falls by that name now resides in Sandy Ore., and a second Robert Bunnell was the late Klamath County Judge Bunnell. A check of other families by the same name failed to identify them as related to the man being buried today in Washington who was a retired vice president of the Assn. of American Railroads, famous in railroad adding circles as an advocate of mechanical devices to improve railroad accounting and statistical work and author of a book, "Railroad Accounting and Statistics," manual for railroad personnel and students of transportation to be published in the near future.

In addition to the brother, believed to be in Klamath Falls, he is survived by his widow, Mary Elizabeth, Washington D.C., and two sisters, Clarissa Bunnell, Trinidad, Colo., and Mrs. Ina Carpenter, Leon, Ia.
